Local action follows indictment

Valenza requests, receives leave as environment chief

by LYNN ASINOF

Michael Valenza, chairman of Wheeling's Environmental Commission, has requested and been granted a leave of absence following his indictment last month by a federal grand jury.

Valenza joins Building Director William Bieber, also indicted last month, in voluntarily removing himself from office at the request of the village board.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon announced Valenza's request, saying he had been contacted by the commission chairman at 3:35 p.m. Friday. "He had just left his attorney, and his attorney suggested he request a leave of absence," Scanlon said.

Board members unanimously approved Valenza's leave of absence, and appointed senior environmental commission member William Rogers to serve as acting chairman.

Valenza, a former trustee and plan commission chairman, was indicted on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with a delivery of more than $1,700 of furniture which he allegedly received as part of a shakedown of Wickes, Inc.

The commission chairman pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court just hours before requesting the leave of absence. When contacted yesterday, Valenza had no comment on his leave from the commission.

Village board members last week asked Valenza to voluntarily remove himself from office, at least temporarily. The Herald disclosed that a board representative phoned Valenza during a closed-door meeting called to discuss what village action should be taken on the indictments.

A similar phone call was made to Bieber, who requested a leave of absence last Wednesday.

Valenza's LEAVE will be in effect until the charges against him are resolved. Meanwhile, the environmental commission will continue to operate with two members, Rogers and Robert Kingsbury.

"We must continue the work and we will continue to hold meetings and prepare ordinances," Rogers said yesterday. "Our tentative timetable is within a year we would like to establish all the ordinances we need for the environmental commission to operate in the future. That's going to be a hard job."

Village trustees had little comment on the matter, other than saying Valenza acted in the best interest of the village.

"I feel that the less said the better because you have a case that is going to be tried in court," said Trustee Al Lang. "And that's where it should be tried—not in the streets and not in the newspapers."

TRUSTEE DON JACKSON, the only current board member not to have served a term with Valenza, agreed with the action of the former trustee. "I think it is best that he not be involved with the village in any official capacity until the outcome of the trial," he said.

Jackson noted the pressure on the village board to take some action following the indictments, but said the board had few alternatives. "It's legally about the only thing we can do," he said. "If we were to take any other action we might be liable to a law suit."

Trustee Ed Berger also said Valenza's voluntary action removed pressure from the village board. "Absolutely, it takes all the pressure off the village," he said.

"It is unfortunate that all this came about prompting this type of situation," Berger said. "I hope everything turns out favorably. In the meantime, the commission has been placed in very able, competent hands."

THE INDICTMENT against Valenza followed a year-long investigation into alleged shakedowns in Wheeling. Also indicted were James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who is influential in village government; Nicholas Phillips, a Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals employee and Stavros' cousin; Ira Colitz, a county zoning board member who resigned his seat following the indictments, and William Hart, a former Wheeling trustee.

The first court hearing in the Valenza case is scheduled for 10 a.m. March 8 before Judge William J. Bauer.

Village hit for Bieber's paid absence

The Wheeling Village Board has received its first criticism for allowing Building Director William Bieber to take a leave of absence with pay while under indictment by a federal grand jury.

In two letters to the board, residents in and near the village objected to Bieber continuing to draw his $21,500-a-year salary while on leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Meindl, 698 N. Wayne Pl., said Bieber's salary should be placed in escrow "until a court decision is reached on his case. If proven innocent, the money is then his," they said.

The Meindls' letter echoed statements made by Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) spokesman Sheila Schultz when she called for Bieber's salary to be held in escrow. Mrs. Schultz said that Bieber could not legally be denied his salary, but said the money could be put aside until the charges against him were resolved.

A LETTER FROM a resident outside the village called on the board to suspend Bieber without pay. Delores Pusicko, 284 W. Hintz Rd., unincorporated Wheeling Township, said "These should be suspensions without pay."

Bieber requested and was granted a leave of absence with pay last Wednesday after being asked by the village board to voluntarily remove himself from office until charges against him are resolved.

The building director pleaded innocent last Friday to 15 charges against him, including extortion, conspiracy, perjury and filing a false income tax return. The indictments followed a year-long investigation into alleged shakedowns in Wheeling.

Village board members contacted on the matter either had no comment or said there was no alternative to Bieber's leave with pay.

"I can sympathize with the people who have written these letters and other people who feel this way," trustee Don Jackson said. "There are certain problems that might arise from other action."

TRUSTEE ED BERGER said the village had little choice in granting Bieber leave with pay. "We're only following advice given to us by our attorney," he said. "If we took other action and he is proven innocent, the village could be placed in a very unfavorable position."

Bieber, who is scheduled to appear before four separate judges, will have his first hearing on pretrial motions on Feb. 25 before Judge James B. Parsons.

Residents' complaints 'not accurate picture'

Developer hits Pleasant Run charges

by LYNN ASINOF

John Glorioso, developer of the Pleasant Run Condominiums, 1151 S. Elmhurst Rd., said resident complaints reported in the Herald yesterday do not present an accurate picture of problems in that development.

According to Glorioso, residents of the complex have elected three spokesmen to meet with him on various problems at Pleasant Run. He said Helen Slov, 1205 S. Elmhurst Rd., did not represent the development's residents in making statements to the newspaper.

"Where she considers herself a spokesman, I don't know," Glorioso said.

The developer also said that his firm, Glen Grove Development Corp., is not responsible for the maintenance of the buildings and grounds at Pleasant Run. "Lightbulbs and dirty hallways are not my responsibility," he said. "They have hired a maintenance company."

GLORIOSO, HOWEVER, said that Glen Grove does handle the hiring of the maintenance firm since the condominium association does not take over the project until all 10 buildings are completed. Only five buildings are now occupied.

Mrs. Slov charged that the maintenance firm, hired with residents' funds by Glen Grove, was not the one approved by the unit owners. She said the maintenance firm has not been doing an adequate job.

Glorioso said he rejected the unit owners' choice of a maintenance firm because that company did not do window washing. He also said that he could not hire a more expensive maintenance firm because the unit owners' association dues would not cover the cost.

According to Mrs. Slov, the biggest problems at Pleasant Run comes from flooding. Glorioso admitted the problem, but said his firm is now in the process of getting plans approved for a retention basin on a nearby piece of property, the Lemke farm.

GLEN GROVE recently received verbal approval from School Dist. 23 allowing a sewer easement across the John Muir School site to connect Pleasant Run with the basin. The easement is expected to be recorded in 30 days, with work on the basin beginning within 90 days of that time.

Finally, Glorioso said residents of Pleasant Run are responsible for the condition of that development. "If they say it looks like a slum, we didn't make it a slum," he said. "That's the way they're conducting themselves out there."

Environmental group to meet

The Wheeling Environmental Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight to discuss sections of a proposed environmental control ordinance.

The commission is also scheduled to review a request for a heliport in the village and various matters before the plan commission and zoning board.

The village board has just granted the environmental commission the power to review developments that do not come before the zoning board or plan commission.

The meeting will be in the committee room of the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Youth turns self into human torch...in police station

A 17-year-old Buffalo Grove youth soaked himself with lighter fluid Monday night and then set his clothing on fire in the Buffalo Grove police station, police said yesterday.

The youth was taken to Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge where he was listed in good condition yesterday. Police said the youth suffered only minor injuries from the fire because it was extinguished almost immediately.

Police said the youth was brought to the police station following a disturbance in his home. They said he was in a "highly emotional state" at the time of the incident.

Police also said the youth got the lighter fluid from the desk drawer of a policeman and set himself aflame after he was asked about the strange odor in the room in which the incident occurred.

The youth was apparently left alone in the room, because according to police officials, "there was no reason to suspect he would harm himself. They added that it was not the first time they have dealt with the youth."

No charges will be brought against the youth until he is released from the hospital, police said.

Building declines in Northwest suburbs

The Northwest suburbs followed the trend in the Chicago area last year, experiencing a substantial drop in the volume of house and apartment construction. According to Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn.'s 1973 annual housing survey, housing permits issued in the metropolitan area were down 25 per cent compared to 1972.

Breakdown for single-family home permits issued in the Northwest suburbs was:

Valenza on leave

Michael Valenza, former Wheeling trustee indicted on federal charges of extortion and conspiracy, has been given a leave of absence from his post as head of the village environmental commission. The leave was granted at Valenza's request, Village Pres. Ted Scanlon said.

High school boundary change?

High School Dist. 214 may change attendance boundaries next year because of burgeoning enrollment at Forest View High School. Affected by the possible change would be Forest View's boundaries with the attendance areas of Elk Grove and Prospect high schools. Forest View has the largest enrollment of the district's eight schools.

Teachers, board settle

Teachers and officials of Maine Township High School Dist. 207 have ended an 11-month contract dispute with an out-of-court settlement of lawsuits filed by both sides last year. The school board has agreed to recognize the teacher union and change a policy that limits bargaining issues to salary and fringe benefits. Board Pres. Robert Claus said he is "very happy to see that we've been able to work this thing out amicably. I'm looking forward to a good relationship with the teachers." DeWane Barnes, Maine Teachers' Assn. president, said: "I think some teachers may be dissatisfied but I don't think it's a widespread feeling."

Tax referendum deferred

A tax hike referendum originally set for April by Elk Grove Township School Dist. 39 has been pushed back at least until the fall. The district is seeking a 15 cent per $100 assessed value increase in taxes. School officials want more information on costs the district will face in coming years and more information on the public attitude toward the tax hike. Two surveys taken already show an April vote would probably result in defeat for the tax measure.

Attempted murder charged

A warrant charging attempted murder has been issued for a Hoffman Estates mother whose daughter was found Oct. 31 with a skull fracture and severe arm cuts. The mother, Ellen Erickson, of 2100 Hassell Rd., is free on a $30,000 bond on an aggravated battery charge originally made against her by police. She has since been indicted for attempted murder by the county grand jury and, according to Hoffman Estates police, has left the area. Her daughter, Amy, 3, was released from the hospital Nov. 5.

Belly dancing craze hits

The belly dancing craze has hit Elk Grove Village. More than half the 250 persons who have signed up for spring park district programs are women who want to learn how to belly dance. "We're going to open up six additional classes," said Rich Ludovisay, superintendent of parks. "Those who have signed up are on the waiting list and will be notified by mail right away."

Radioactive material lost

Amersham Searle Corp. of Arlington Heights yesterday reported it has lost a small amount of relatively harmless radioactive material. The material, Americium-241, was discovered missing several weeks ago but announcement of the loss was delayed until a search could be completed, a spokesman said. The material is relatively harmless unless carried next to the skin for a long period of time, the spokesman said.

Truck driver steers rig into picketers

A Lansing, Mich. truck driver drove his 50-ton semitrailer into a group of about 60 persons picketing the use of nonunion labor yesterday, pinning some against cars and running over others. Nine men were rushed to hospitals. One man was reported in serious condition. The driver was taken into custody after police rescued him from the angry crowd. It was the second incident of picket line violence in Lansing in two days.

Dash: Hughes, dairy hearings to reopen

Watergate committee counsel Sam Dash said yesterday he expected the panel to reopen public hearings on the Howard Hughes $100,000 campaign contribution and dairy industry donations. He said the hearings could resume late this month. The Postal Service meanwhile, located and delivered to Superior Court the missing subpoena ordering President Nixon to appear as a witness in a White House "plumbers" trial in Los Angeles.

Freight derails, blasts hurt 50 persons

A propane-carrying freight train derailed Tuesday night and triggered a series of violent explosions that hurled two railroad cars into the river and injured at least 50 persons, some critically. Police in Oneonta, N.Y., said they could not get close to the wrecked train because of the danger of even more explosions.

Political cash on hand — $24.3 million

Political candidates, parties and committees had $24.3 million cash on hand at the start of the 1974 election year, a study by the Center for Public Financing of Elections reported yesterday. Included is $3.6 million reported by committees as still available from President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

FDA begins review of cyclamates

The Food and Drug Administration has begun a public review of its 1970 ban on use of cyclamates in food products. The artificial sweeteners were ordered off the market as a possible cause of cancer. The review is expected to take until next year. Abbott Laboratories of Chicago argues that more than a dozen new studies show the sweetener would not cause cancer, interfere with fertility or reproduction, or cause birth defects.

Wage-price lifting for dentists asked

Dr. Carlton Williams, president of the American Dental Association in Chicago, asked the Cost of Living Council and President Nixon yesterday to free dentists from wage and price controls. Williams said dental fees went up only 3.7 per cent compared with services in general, up 6.2 per cent and food up 20.1 per cent.

Reward for I-57 murder information

Two Chicago companies and their concerned employees announced rewards totaling $10,000 for information leading to the conviction of those responsible for last year's three Interstate 57 murders. The two companies, each offering $5,000 are: Illinois Central Gulf Railroad and Lischultz Fast Freight, Inc.

Stevenson eyes Shawnee Forest oil issue

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, said yesterday that given adequate environmental and economic safeguards he would support taking oil and gas from the Shawnee National Forest. Stevenson said, however, "The forest must be preserved." He made the statement at a meeting with officials of the U.S. Forest Service in Harrisburg.

Britain's miners refuse business offer

Leaders of Britain's 269,000 striking mineworkers unanimously rejected an offer by wealthy businessmen to pay to end their two-days-old national strike. A union spokesman announced the vote after a three-hour emergency meeting of the 27-man executive committee of the coal miners union in London.

Italian court to rule on Pope's action

An Italian criminal court agreed yesterday to rule on the still controversial question of whether Pope Pius XII could have averted the Nazi reprisal slaughter of 335 Romans during World War II. "It is the first time that an Italian court will judge the actions of a Pope," public prosecutor Giorgio Santacroce said.

Extremists: more Catholic killings

The Protestant Extremist Ulster Freedom Fighters claimed responsibility yesterday for killing a teenage Roman Catholic and wounding five other meat packing workers in a machine-gun ambush in Belfast. It warned more Catholics would be killed. Police, meanwhile, expressed fear a bomb attack at Britain's National Defense College outside London would spur more vengeance killings in Northern Ireland.

Stock prices turned mixed after a weak opening on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 2.73 to 866.63, after being more than five points lower during the morning. At one point, the Dow slid just below the psychologically potent 800 mark, but fought back. Trading remained cautious, totaling 12,930,000 shares, against 12,930,000 shares traded Monday.

Appeal for international aid to help Phnom Penh homeless

From United Press International

The government appealed Tuesday for international efforts to aid the relief of thousands left homeless in the most severe rebel bombardment of Phnom Penh since the Cambodian war began nearly four years ago.

Rescue workers sifting through a square-mile area leveled in the shelling Monday found five more bodies, bringing the death toll to at least 96. A check of local hospitals showed 170 wounded.

The insurgents fired two Soviet built 122mm rockets at the city Tuesday, both exploded harmlessly in the Pong Peay Lake on the western outskirts.

Military police estimated at least 1,000 homes destroyed by fires that raced through the battered buildings until late Monday, sending up huge billows of smoke and leaving an eerie landscape of twisted poles and pipes and burning wood.

Cambodian boy scouts carried dead men, women and children on dirty, bloodstained stretchers to a waiting Red Cross truck that was so small the bodies were dumped unceremoniously one atop another.

Most of the victims were civilians living in a residential region jammed with refugees who fled to the capital to escape the fighting in the countryside.

WEARY CAMBODIAN troops continue to seek out insurgents near Phnom Penh. Shellings destroyed about 1,000 homes Monday.

Station owner could be fined $5,000

'Regulars only' gas illegal

From Herald news services

Federal energy chief William E. Simon Tuesday prohibited service stations from discriminating against buyers by selling gasoline only to regular customers or those who purchase large amounts of gasoline in advance.

Simon, acting under his authority to control prices and allocation of motor fuels, urged motorists to contact the Internal Revenue Service immediately if they believed they were being discriminated against in violation of his new ban.

A station owner convicted of violating the regulation under the criminal code could be fined up to $5,000, according to the Federal Energy Office, with lesser penalties for a civil violation.

Responding to Simon's ruling yesterday, Robert Jacobs, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Association, said operators had the "right to sell to regular customers," and added his group would fight charges they "are discriminating by selling gasoline only to regular customers. This is our right. We are not a public utility or a monopoly," he said.

Simon also announced establishment of a gasoline dealers advisory committee, comprising "ten veteran gasoline and fuel dealers," to counsel the FEO on local allocation problems.

Meanwhile, Simon's administrative assistant, Gerald Parks, said the FEO will decide within the next 10 days whether to order a rollback in domestic crude oil prices, no matter what Congress decides.

Parks said the energy office had been considering a rollback order for several weeks. Among the options, he said, was to order a reduction on so-called "new oil" — that produced from wells drilled since 1972 or from existing wells in volume exceeding 1972 levels — from $10 or more a barrel to $7.87.

A rollback provision inserted in the emergency energy bill by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., as a substitute for a windfall profits tax against oil companies would reduce the new oil ceiling price to a maximum $7.09 a barrel. While new oil is exempt from controls, the price of old oil of pre-1972 levels is fixed at a ceiling of $5.25 a barrel.

Earlier Tuesday, Budget Director Roy L. Ash said that Americans may have to make some changes in their lifestyles if there is to be any quick solution to the nation's energy problems.

Asked how long the nation would have to live with the "edge of the crisis," Ash said, "It will be over in a matter of months, not years." But he cautioned that there was no quick solution to the energy shortage itself.

The Federal Energy Office, meanwhile, confirmed that Illinois has been receiving less gasoline than most of its Midwest neighbors, with the worst "shortfall" in the Chicago area. A report said the state has been receiving between 90 and 85 per cent of its 1972 supply level, about 3 per cent below the average of other Midwest states.

Other developments yesterday:

• Two more states — Pennsylvania and Maryland — are joining the alternate day allocation plan for gasoline rationing, bringing the number of states using it to eight, plus the District of Columbia.

• Three major petroleum companies — Atlantic Richfield, Ashland Oil and Shell Oil — submitted a joint bid of $117 million to develop vast tracts of buried oil shale in western Colorado.

French balk at oil unity

From Herald news services

France was illuminated more than ever Tuesday as the chink in the ranks of the 13 oil-consuming nations meeting in Washington.

The French refused to go along with the 12 other nations — including France's eight Common Market colleagues — in supporting American proposals for a carefully coordinated response to the Arab oil embargo and stiff price increases in crude oil.

A communique to be issued last night representing the industrial world's answer to the Arabs was delayed, and even an hour-long meeting between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert could not strike the common ground needed.

Kissinger had proposed a sequence of events — to be completed by May 1 — that would conclude with a new, broader conference of rich and poor oil-importing states, and the oil-producing nations.

They would plan common strategy aimed at getting a "just" world price for oil agreed upon by sellers and consumers alike.

But France, which has been going it alone in trying to work out separate deals with the Arab nations, showed no signs of falling in line.

The bitterness of the closed-door debate became evident with the release of official texts of speeches delivered Monday by Jobert and the West German finance minister, Helmut Schmidt.

Schmidt said in his speech that "some governments" — a clear reference to the French — "might find themselves stuck with unbearable prices and deficits in their balance of payments" if they tried to go it alone and make private deals with the Arabs. He said nations should not act individually to save their own hides.

In his reply, Jobert said: "Of course, when everything is going well, approaches are friendly and completely elegant. But when everything is going badly, everyone tries to save his own hide. I see nothing against this."

Key Arab chiefs to meet

From United Press International

Leaders of four major Arab nations will meet in Algiers today to consider easing the Arab oil embargo, with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat reportedly in favor of resuming shipments to the United States.

Officials from Algeria, Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia also will discuss moves to work out a separation-of-forces agreement between Israel and Syria on the Golan Heights, Cairo diplomatic sources said.

Sadat was said to favor removing the U.S. from the list of embargoed countries and resuming limited shipments in recognition of Washington's role in working out the Egyptian-Israeli military disengagement accord. But in Baghdad, Iraq said it will not lift its boycott on oil shipments to the U.S. regardless of decisions reached in Algiers.

In Washington, President Nixon's aides said Tuesday he would like to make a side trip to the Middle East when he goes to Europe in April although he has no definite plans as yet.

Hearst kidnap plot: she's OK, demand food for needy

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The Symbionese Liberation Army Tuesday sent the father of kidnapped Patricia Hearst a recording of the girl's voice assuring him she was "okay" and a letter demanding a free food handout to the needy that could cost more than $130 million.

The 19-year-old Patricia, speaking in a listless tone interspersed with sighs, said she was a "prisoner of war" and pleaded with her newspaper publisher father to meet her kidnappers' demands as the only way she would be released unharmed.

The shadowy terrorist organization indicated it intended to hold the pretty, sandy-haired university sophomore at least five more weeks until the distribution of $70 million worth of food is given to the millions of poor and needy in California cities from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

There are 1.9 million people on welfare alone in the state.

The recording by Miss Hearst, dated Feb. 8, was sent to Berkeley radio station KPFA which also received the first communication from the SLA after the girl was carried screaming from her apartment Feb. 4.

Hearst and his wife, Catherine, listened to the recording on a radio in their palatial mansion home and then were brought a transcript of the demands.

Asked if he would meet the "ransom" terms, Hearst said the family would "try to make every gesture of good faith" but that he could say nothing more until he had time to study the message.

In its latest communication Tuesday, the SLA issued a "declaration of revolutionary war" and called on all dissident groups — Asians, blacks, browns, Indians, women and homosexuals — to join it.

The terrorist organization described itself as a federation of "different races and people and political parties who have agreed to struggle in a united front for the independence and self-determination of each of their races and people and the liquidation of the common enemy."

The enemies it listed were the "fascist capitalist class and all their agents of murder, oppression and exploitation."

• The Soviet state's running battle with dissident Nobel prize-winning novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn took a grave turn Tuesday, as police arrested him at his Moscow apartment and forcibly took him to the state prosecutor's office. Russian ballet star Valery Panov — dismissed from the Kirov company two years ago when he began efforts to leave the country — has again been offered a visa to emigrate to Israel. • Funeral services will be held today in Stevens Point, Wis., for Mrs. Augusta Bruce, the last known survivor of the most tragic fire in North American history. Mrs. Bruce, dead at age 106, was 3 years old on Oct. 8, 1871, when the blaze destroyed the logging town of Peshtigo, Wis., and 16 surrounding communities, claiming at least 1,500 lives. Much of the world didn't learn about the fire until five weeks later because Peshtigo was so remote and the fire — by bizarre coincidence — raged the same time as the Great Chicago Fire.

• Happy birthday to Bess Wallace Truman, 69 today. She'll spend it in the century-old Independence, Mo., mansion that has been her home since girlhood. According to a friend: "No one would dare plan a party for her. She wouldn't like it." Which makes her a lot like Harry.

• Blood is not necessarily thicker than water: That's the observation of Delegate Ted Stacy of West Virginia's legislature, whose twin brother is running for his seat. To make it worse, the brother is a Republican while Stacy is a Democrat. He said he always knew there was a political difference because when they were kids he would work all day cutting grass while his brother would hike three people to work for him; and take the profits. "We're speaking," he said, "but not to each other."

Congress lower than Nixon in poll

While President Nixon is suffering a low ebb of confidence from the American public, a recent Louis Harris poll shows that the people have even less faith in the U.S. Congress.

According to United Press International, a Harris poll conducted in mid-January showed that only 21 per cent of the people believe that Congress is doing a good job. The most recent Harris poll on Nixon's performance gave him a 30 per cent rating.

On specific issues, public confidence in the Congress ranged from a low of 6 per cent who believed it was doing an adequate job of controlling inflation, to 19 per cent who agreed with its handling of the Watergate issue.

Schaumburg GOP opposes RTA

Schaumburg Township Republicans have adopted a resolution opposing the proposed Regional Transit Authority and determined to conduct a door-to-door campaign for defeat of the proposition in the March 19 referendum.

State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg Township GOP committeeman, said the township central committee voted 40-0 in favor of the resolution.

He said the main reasons for the opposition to the RTA proposal were inadequate suburban representation on the RTA governing board; a lack of guarantees that tax money for RTA would be spent for benefits to the suburbs; and a lack of limits on taxing power of the RTA board.

GOP fund-raiser March 8

Totten also has announced a fund-raising dinner dance to be held at Lancers Steak House, Algonquin and Meacham roads in Schaumburg on Friday, March 8.

Following the dance, a buffet breakfast will be served at the Black Night Restaurant in Hoffman Estates from 1:30 to 2:30 a.m.

Democratic fund-raiser set

Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman Donald L. Norman will host a fund-raising dinner Friday, Feb. 22, at Allgauer's Fireside Restaurant, 2855 N. Milwaukee Ave., Northbrook.

A cocktail hour is scheduled for 7 p.m., with dinner to be served at 8 p.m.

Pederson forms committee

Bernard E. Pedersen, Palatine Township Republican committeeman, has announced formation of a "citizens committee" to aid his bid for reelection as committeeman.

Named as chairman of the committee was Ed Louis of Palatine, long active in township Republican affairs. Other members named to serve were Carl Bals and Warren Collesor, Phil Chouinard and Don Payton, all of Palatine; Ruth Ellen Blowney of Rolling Meadows; Niki Keller of Inverness, and Mel Timmons of Hoffman Estates.

In announcing formation of the committee, Pedersen claimed it represented a broad base of support throughout the township, and repeated his charge that his opponent, Anton Valukas, represents an attempt by the Palatine VIP Party, which he says is a coalition of Republicans, Democrats and independents, to take over the township GOP.

Solid-state TV

by Ed Landwehr

The trend in TV manufacturing is to modular solid-state construction. There are many advantages to the public and to TV servicers, too.

For example, maintenance cost for the life of this equipment is less. When a deficiency occurs, you need only localize the trouble and replace the module. This is done quickly right in your living room, saving involved bench work ferreting out small details.

Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights, carries all the important modulars on home calls besides tubes and other circuitry parts. This way we can make many service calls during a working day at less cost per mile. This saves on gasoline, an important consideration during these times. When you phone 255-0700 for service, we'll assure you complete satisfaction.

Village board wrapup

Parley on retention basins set Feb. 28

The Wheeling Village Board will meet with the Wheeling Park District Feb. 28 to discuss village plans for improving both the Husky and Heritage park retention basins.

The park board requested the meeting, saying that work on referendum projects promised in 1972 will depend on village plans for improving these retention basins.

"The voters of the park district have waited patiently for the park to begin these improvements, and we are ready to proceed as soon as possible, due to rising costs," said Park Board Pres. Bob Ross in a letter to the board.

The village has been working on upgrading the retention basins for the past several years, but plans for the project are still being developed.

Ross said the park board needs to know the village's plans so that a time schedule can be set for improvements to both sites. The park plans to install tennis courts at Husky Park, and do grading and landscaping work at both parks.

Paint plant variation OKd

Board members approved a variation that will allow the Enterprise Paint Co. to build a plant with a large amount of unrestricted open storage and manufacturing space.

Village ordinance allows only 9,000 square feet of open space before requiring the construction of a fire wall. The paint company's variation will allow the construction of 148,000 square feet of storage space and 38,000 square feet of open manufacturing space.

Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said he did not think the extra open space will cause a fire hazard because the product is water base paint. He further noted that the company will install an oversized sprinkler system, and will contribute funds for the village to install a new well in the area.

Sign variation tabled

Board members tabled action on a sign variation that would allow the Gaslight Shopping Center, 729-751 W. Dundee Rd., to erect a pole sign.

Kole Real Estate, Ltd., owners of the center, failed to produce written evidence from all shopping center tenants on whether they wanted to participate in the sign. The zoning board had asked that written evidence be presented to the trustees before any action is taken on the matter.

The zoning board had also asked that parking bumpers be installed in the shopping center's parking lot. Larry Ham of Kole Real Estate said the bumpers are at the center but have not been installed because of snow.

The matter will be reconsidered when Kole Real Estate can provide written evidence that all tenants have been contacted about the sign.

Commission terms changed

Members of most village commissions will now serve for terms starting on July 1 and ending on June 30.

An ordinance changing the appointment dates was proposed by Trustee Al Lang, who said the appointments were made too soon after village elections. Previously, appointments were made on May 1 and ran through April 30.

Lang has asked the village attorney to find out if it is possible to change the appointment dates for those commissions established by state law. These commissions include police and fire, electrical, police pension board and the board of health.

Nurses Club helped

The village has agreed to purchase four stethoscopes and blood pressure cuffs to help the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club with future hypertension clinics.

The hypertension clinics are designed to alert residents with high blood pressure of their condition. Two such clinics have already been sponsored by the club.

Trustee Ed Berger said the four blood pressure kits will cost about $200. He suggested the village purchase the equipment because it is difficult to borrow these kits for the hypertension clinics.

Amended zoning map approved

An amended zoning map was approved by the village board, reflecting various zoning changes made during the past year.

The updating of the map is required by law, and is used by the zoning board for planning purposes. The map shows the zoning of each parcel of property in the village.

Open street sweeper bids

Two bids were opened Monday night for a new village street sweeper. The Schuster Equipment Co. entered a bid of $14,756 for the equipment, which has a 14-week delivery time. Bruce Municipal Equipment, Inc. gave a bid price of $15,455, with a 12-14 week delivery.

The bids will be reviewed by the village, with the purchase being awarded at the next board meeting.

The village also authorized the payment of $8,774 to Arthur J. Gallagher and Co. for the village's workmen's compensation insurance program.

Dist. 214 wrapupDistrict pulls out of computer co-op

High School Dist. 214 has pulled out of the Northwest Education Cooperation computer cooperative after sharing the cost of computer services with seven elementary districts for two years.

The Dist. 214 board of education Monday voted down a recommendation from the district administration to continue to use NEC computer services by a 5-to-2 margin. The board then authorized school officials to begin negotiations with Westinghouse Learning Corp. for computer service and to ask Westinghouse if it might also provide computer service to elementary schools through Dist. 214.

During the past year, Dist. 214 and several other districts have been critical of the service provided by the computer cooperative. Last month, Dist. 214 board members examined bids for other computer companies to determine whether they could get better service on their own for the same or lower cost.

Dist. 214 now will pay about $171,000 per year for computer services through Westinghouse, compared to $219,000 from NEC, according to Robert Weber, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for business services.

Dist. 214 administrators argued that if the district pulls out of the cooperative, the remaining elementary districts will have to pay a total of $90,000 more for the computer service.

"We believe that either the co-op or Westinghouse can supply our needs," said Supt. Edward Gilbert. "But we have to recognize that what we do has an impact on the elementary districts."

Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, said yesterday she is "naturally sorry the decision was made to leave NEC. It is a serious thing when a district with the size and potential of Dist. 214 withdraws." However, she said Dist. 214's action does not necessarily mean the computer cooperative will dissolve.

She said NEC will now reassess the computer plan and "see what we can take out of the plan that was geared specifically to Dist. 214's needs." Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 had earlier withdrawn from the cooperative because it felt the costs were too high.

Sick pay for pregnant teacher?

A teacher at Elk Grove High School may be Dist. 214's first teacher to receive sick pay while she has a baby.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told board members Monday the U. S. Supreme Court ruled a few weeks ago that pregnancy must be considered illness and a woman is entitled to sick pay as long as her doctor says she is unable to work. Nora Bremer, teacher of foreign language at Elk Grove High School, has notified Gilbert that she will ask for sick leave this semester when she has her child.

Teachers at Dist. 214 now receive maternity leave without pay and the teacher and her doctor decide when she will begin the leave of absence. Gilbert asked the board to think about the case to determine whether they should write a new policy regarding maternity leave.

Teachers can now accumulate up to 120 days of sick leave and can receive another 240 days from the sick leave bank run by the district education association. With the maximum sick leave, a teacher could conceivably leave the job for two years and receive sick pay, said Gilbert.

School to open earlier this fall

High School Dist. 214 will open before Labor day next year, three days earlier than this year, according to the 1974-75 school calendar approved by the board of education Monday night.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended moving up the starting date to allow a full two weeks winter vacation and to end the school year earlier in June to make it easier to schedule summer school.

Teacher workshops will begin on Aug. 26, teacher's institute will be Aug. 28 and classes will begin Aug. 29. Winter vacation begins Dec. 20 and classes will resume Jan. 6. The second semester will begin Jan. 27, spring vacation will begin March 27 and classes will resume April 7. The last day of classes next year will be June 13.

Contractor to give $3,000 for floor

High School Dist. 214 will receive $3,000 to refinish the gymnasium floor at Rolling Meadows High School from Wil-Freds, the school's general contractor.

Dist. 214 board members have complained that cracks between the boards in the floor are too wide and the wooden floor is slightly warped. Monday night the board agreed to a $3,000 settlement from the contractor if he will also repair the asphalt parking lot at the school which has deteriorated since the school opened three years ago.

Forest View may alter boundaries

Attendance boundaries for Forest View High School in Arlington Heights may be changed next year to offset increases in enrollment.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board of education Monday that Forest View will have 2,915 students next year, the largest enrollment of any of the district's eight high schools. Most of the students attending Forest View come from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines. Enrollment is expected to increase until the 1977-78 school year when it will reach 3,320. The school's "capacity" is 2,500.

Gilbert said he will give the board a number of alternatives for reducing the enrollment at Forest View when the board meets Feb. 25 and a change in boundaries will probably be one of them. Gilbert said he would also consider busing some students at Forest View to another school, open enrollment to allow students to select another school, or building of an addition to the high school.

IF BOUNDARIES are changed, Gilbert said Prospect High School and Elk Grove High School may be the ones affected. Prospect will have 2,395 students next year with the present boundaries and Elk Grove will have 2,480. Gilbert stressed the enrollment situation at Forest View will have to be carefully studied before a decision can be made. "I don't want to speculate," he said.

Gilbert ruled out the possibility of building another high school. The district's newest school, Buffalo Grove, opened last fall. "We just don't see another high school in the picture for at least five years," said Gilbert. Most of the district's growth in the future will be in the northern part of the district, not in the Forest View or Elk Grove areas, he said. Dist. 214 now owns property in Prospect Heights which it has set aside for its ninth high school.

See a specialist when tissue around teeth loosens

About five years ago a dentist discovered that the bone around my teeth was deteriorating, but he did nothing about it. He told me there just wasn't anything that could be done, that my teeth would just loosen and fall out.

Needless to say, this has just worried me sick. I just can't believe that there isn't someone who can help me. I have always taken pride in my appearance, and I am 33 years old. So, I sure don't want my teeth to fall out. I have been in the hospital for tests and X-rays to make sure the condition was confined just to my teeth. The doctors could give me no reason for the bone condition either. So, I'm hoping that you can tell me someone who could help me with my problem.

I have noticed that my teeth are shifting and seem to be getting loose, mostly my front teeth on the bottom.

Your description fits a common dental problem. The bone, gingiva (gums), and

by Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

supporting structures around the teeth degenerate and cause this problem. There are probably several different causes for this problem. I am happy to tell you that most dentists believe it can be, and most certainly should be, treated.

The usual form of treatment is to remove all the deposits that have accumulated and hardened around the teeth just under the gingiva. The main goal of treatment is to eliminate the possibility of food particles and degenerated tissue cells that normally occur from accumulating around the root of the teeth, and eliminate any infection.

Often because of earlier deposits the gingiva is pulled loose from the root of the teeth and leaves little pockets at the root for accumulated material. The dentist treats this problem by removing the loose gingival tissue so that your remaining gingiva fit snugly against the tooth root and there are no pockets. With these measures and the home treatments he usually prescribes, the process can often be stopped.

YOU NEED to see a dental specialist called a periodontist. He can and will do something about your problem.

The cause of all of these problems is not known and a good general medical evaluation in such cases is important. There is good evidence that a deficient calcium intake will contribute to this problem in some cases. Adequate vitamins with a general good diet are important. I would suggest that your first step should be to see a periodontist. I would also recommend that you be sure to get enough calcium, at least a quart of milk a day. Use the fortified skim or low fat milk to avoid a high fat intake. Also take large doses of Vitamin C. Take 1,000 milligrams a day. Some think this helps. In this amount, it won't hurt you. If you smoke, stop smoking at once. These measures should help, but you need those treatments from a periodontist. If you follow these measures you may well be able to save your teeth.

'Super salesman' hustles his cars as others wail

by EDWARD S. LECHTZN
EAST DETROIT, Mich. — How come Joe Girard's selling cars while most auto salesmen are sitting on their order books?

Mainly because he knows what it takes to clinch a deal. He's been the No. 1 Chevrolet salesman since 1965 and the best in the world for the past several years.

He sold 1,350 new and used cars and trucks last year — one at a time with no fleet sales.

"I'll do anything to make a sale," says Girard who says he's an actor. He knows what a customer wants to hear and he knows when to listen.

HE SELLS 50 many cars that he can offer a price lower than just about anybody else. His customers come from all around the country to Merolis Chevrolet in this Detroit suburb. Often they wait in line to see him.

Sales are down some because of the gasoline shortage, but Girard nearly hit 100 sales in January, more than some dealerships sell in a couple of months.

"I'm on stage. I try to relax the people," Girard explains. "They're afraid to death of salesmen."

GIRARD HAS HIS own techniques. One is smiling and another is never getting too technical about a car.

"I don't know what makes them run. I stay off that subject," he says.

"Get the ball rolling. Talk about anything except cars. That loosens them up."

"Some salesmen don't know when to shut up. Sometimes it's best to just listen," Girard says. "But keep on writing. If he likes what he sees on the order form, he'll sign it."

GIRARD HAS A small 6-foot-by-12-foot office that's crowded with a small refrigerator-bar, file cabinet, his desk and a bench just a foot away.

That keeps the customers close. He never sits down without his order form. No scratching out a price on a slip of paper hidden from the customer's eyes.

There's been a change in the car market and Girard, unlike many salesmen, has adapted quickly.

"Your salesmen of today are a very spoiled bunch of guys because of all the big years we had when the people would come and say, 'Do you have it and when can I have it?'" he said. "What I say is forget the past and remember you're a salesman and not a clerk."

"Now you have to sell them," the No. 1 salesman says. "I'm still selling big cars. Some guys haven't sold anything in three weeks."

"WHEN WAS THE last time a sales-

Business today

Car poolers can save on policies

Car poolers can save money on their auto insurance premiums. Two insurance companies doing business in Illinois recently, announced rate reductions for policyholders in car pools: Safeco Insurance Companies and the Kemper Insurance Companies.

Reductions of up to 18 per cent will be granted to motorists who drive 15 miles or more one way but on no more than two days a week, or two weeks in a five-week period, said Safeco president Gordon Sweany. A nine per cent reduction in premiums is available to motorists who normally drive more than three and less than 15 miles to work.

Palmer App, vice president and central division manager for the Long Grove-based Kemper Insurance Companies, announced savings of 13 to 18 per cent for policyholders who cut their auto use.

man offered you a demonstration ride?" he asks. "I'll do it every time if the customer wants it."

"I don't do it. I have my assistants do that. If the guy has a trade-in, I'll have my assistant take him over to the used car lot for an appraisal."

"If you give the customer a demo ride, you've obligated him," Girard advises. "Salesmen had better revert to the old ways because you have to be a pro to sell today."

Girard has sold more cars for GM than any other salesman since 1965 — not including the men who take fleet orders of 50 and 100 cars at a time. He's bitter that he's never gotten any recognition from the top corporate officers.

"They've never invited me down to the GM Building to meet the top guys," says Girard. "I'd like to hear them say, just once: 'We're proud of you, Joe.'"

Motorists find that fuel economy means car pooling and proper maintenance.

Reducing auto use can cut insurance rates

by CARLTON SMITH

If you've switched from commuting by auto to using mass transportation, or participating in a car pool, you may qualify for a reduction in your auto insurance premium, under new rating regulations, and possibly a rebate.

While you may have seen this news before, what you may not have been told is that in most cases, you will have to let your insurance company or agent know that you're driving less, ask what reduction you qualify for, if any, and apply for whatever you've got coming in reduction or refund.

You will not get it automatically. In most cases, the companies have no way of knowing that you're driving less, until you tell them.

Some do get that information when a policy comes up for renewal, and some drivers may get the reduction automatically. But don't count on it. Check with your company or agent even though you've renewed recently, or have renewal coming up soon.

The average driver who's eligible for a rate reduction will save about $30, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

HERES HOW YOU can tell whether the rate reductions apply to you:

The driving reclassifications (which lower premiums) are being made by all companies affiliated with the Insurance Services Office, a national rating and advisory organization. This means, generally, all companies except the few big "independents," and most mail-order companies.

In four states, there's an exception to this general rule. In Illinois, Massachusetts, North Carolina and Texas, ISO is not the licensed rating organization. No rate reductions — just now, anyway — for owners of cars registered in those states.

Otherwise, the new rates became effective this month for all ISO-affiliated companies, so your first step is to determine whether your insurer is one of these companies. Your agent can tell you this.

(The other, nonaffiliated companies, by the way, are expected to follow suit soon. If you are not insured by an ISO affiliate, watch for the news that other companies are reclassifying drivers, and then apply for your reduction.)

HOW DO YOU qualify for a reduction? You'll have one coming if you've cut your commuter driving enough — either to work or to school — that you can be dropped into a lower mileage category.

It's standard practice, in determining how much you pay for auto insurance, to begin with a base rate which owners pay if the car is used for pleasure only. For those who drive to work or school regularly, the base rate is increased by a certain percentage, depending on the number of miles per week.

If you are now paying a drive-to-work premium, here's how you can get dropped into a less expensive classification:

Is the distance you drive, to work or school, between three and 10 miles, one way? Then you can get a "pleasure use" classification if your car is used two days or less a week, or your car is used, daily, for two weeks or less in a five-week period.

GETTING DROPPED down to a pleasure-use classification, in this case, results in a 13 per cent reduction in your insurance premium.

Is the distance you drive, to work or school, more than 10 miles one way?

Then you qualify for a rate reduction if use of the car is limited in either of the two ways described above. But in this case, you are dropped down to a "less than 10 miles" category, and you qualify for a healthy 18 per cent reduction of your premium.

Cheetah II still packing 'em in—despite inflation...

by BARRY SIGALE

The cover charge has been raised eight bits to $4 per person while the seats remain the same — uncomfortable — yet Miss Nitro has been filling the place now for 50 weeks in a row.

The U. S. Supreme Court doesn't approve of the show, nor does the Lake County Board of Commissioners, but so far their rulings and ordinances have had no effect on the gate.

Mark DeFoor, owner and proprietor of the Cheetah II nightclub, featuring nude dancers in the far north suburb of Half Day, can see the day coming when he might be forced out of business, either legally or by competition. Still, he doesn't show any worry.

Now that Monday night football has evaporated from television screens, attendance at the Cheetah II has picked up on the opening day of the week to go along with the full houses every other night.

TAKING IT from the top, patrons don't flinch at the price of admission and they don't pay attention to the soreness they get from the chairs, which they are literally on the edge of, anyway, throughout the evening.

The action, taken by the nine justices and patterned after by the 24 commissioners, basically stated that it is illegal to serve liquor in establishments that have topless-bottomless dancers (Cheetah II), live six shows or stag films.

DeFoor, a veteran of court battles since he revolutionized the burlesque business with the opening four years ago of the original Cheetah in Kenosha, Wisc., "threatened" to serve ice cream sodas to avoid the law but instead took his opponents to court.

Though he was certain his customers wouldn't mind, he determined a better idea would be to appeal Lake County's amendment to its liquor control ordinance. Despite the outcome, he said this week, it appears certain he will lose either way the courts decide.

"I TALKED TO my lawyer and he said the case looked good," said DeFoor of the Appellate Court's deliberations. "But I don't like it."

A victory, said DeFoor, means that several enterprising businessmen will open topless-bottomless nightclubs of their own in Lake County (they are still illegal in Cook County) and provide unwanted competition to the Cheetah II, which has experienced only a minor rivalry with Mr. Mort's in Round Lake and the Sugar Shack across the Illinois border.

Since a quick victory means instant competition and a quick loss means further court contests (and more business), DeFoor would prefer the issue drag on and on. It probably will, for at least another year, or enough time for DeFoor to fill his pockets.

Meanwhile, Miss Nitro, an acrobat injured before she got the chance to compete in the Olympics, turns cartwheels to the soulful "Superfly" sound during a finale of flickering lights and a standing ovation.

Chicago-Dubuque train service back with Amtrak's 'Black Hawk'

Regular train passenger service between Chicago and Dubuque will be available for the first time in three years as Amtrak inaugurates the "Black Hawk" on Thursday.

The trains, financed in part by the State of Illinois, will make the trip in 4½ hours with stops in Rockford, Freeport, Galena and East Dubuque. Departure is at 8:20 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and the return train leaves Dubuque at 5:55 p.m. On Sundays and holidays the train leaves Dubuque at 7:30 a.m. and arrives in Chicago at noon.

SACRED HEART of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows will hold its annual "Friends of the Heart" benefit dinner on Thursday at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Park Ridge.

Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m. followed by a filet mignon dinner at 8:30 p.m. Music will be provided throughout the evening by the "Singing Strings of Kim and Dave." The program will conclude with a presentation by Principal Gerald Gilles and Supt. Father James Michaletz.

Tickets, priced at $75 per couple, may be obtained by calling the school at 392-6880. Proceeds from the ticket sale will be added to the general school fund. Benefit chairmen Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lamich and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brady hope to top last year's net income of $8,754.56. Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the "Friends of the Heart" fund may do so by contacting the school.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Two-notrump affords options

The two notrump response to a major opening bid by an unpassed hand is popular with all bridge players, who feel that the Declaration of Independence gives every red-blooded American the right to bid notrump before his partner gets a chance to do so.

It also is one of the least necessary bids there is. We have seen many minor suits there is. We have seen many minor suits there is. We have seen many minor suits there is.

Thus, when we take this bid out of our suit and give it the artificial meaning that it is a forcing raise of partner's major suit, we aren't hurting our regular bidding at all.

The first great advantage of the Jacoby two notrump is that it allows an entire extra round of bidding below game.

The rebids by opener are:

1. Three of a new suit to show a singleton or void.

2. Four of own suit to show no singleton and minimum.

3. Three notrump to show no singleton and sound bid.

4. Three of suit to show no singleton and at least three points above a minimum.

5. Four of new suit to show specifically 5-5-1-1 distribution.

Today's hand shows a 22 high-card-point slam bid by the use of the Jacoby two notrump. South rebids three hearts to show the singleton. He has a minimum

Crowds 'come home' to mark Lincoln's (265th) Birthday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Sunny skies and temperatures near 60 brought crowds to Abraham Lincoln's home and tomb Tuesday as the former President's home town celebrated his birthday.

Illinois Republicans used the occasion for a fund-raising luncheon, featuring their senatorial candidate, George M. Burditt, as main speaker. And Lincoln scholars from around the nation gathered at the Old State Capitol to present papers and discuss the former President's life and works.

About 300 persons attended morning ceremonies at Lincoln's tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery, following a motorcade through downtown Springfield.

ILLINOIS ADJUTANT Gen. Harold Patton, representing President Nixon, placed a wreath in front of the tomb and monument, as did state Veterans' Comm. John J. Houlihan, representing Gov. Daniel Walker.

Also present for the ceremonies was American Legion national Comdr. Robert E. L. Eaton.

Legion departments from France, Connecticut, Missouri, Wisconsin and Indiana also sent wreaths for the 40th annual legion-sponsored event.

A guard at Lincoln's home — recently converted into a national historic site — said nearly 400 persons had visited the home by 3 p.m. "A normal crowd for this time of year is about 400," he said.

Schools and state offices were closed for the day in honor of the former President and many of the additional visitors, the guard said, appeared to be school children on tours.

AT THE OLD CAPITOL, Sangamon State University and the Illinois State Historical Society kicked off a two-day Lincoln seminar with a paper on "Lincoln and Frederick Douglass: Another Debate."

The seminar features papers by scholars from Texas, California and other points around the nation.

Republicans, including Burditt, State comptroller George W. Lindberg, supreme court clerk Justin Taft and state party chairman Donald Adams, spoke from a podium flanked by pictures of Nixon and Lincoln.

Burditt quoted Lincoln's "House Divided" speech and the works of Carl Sandburg as he sought support for his underdog candidacy against U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III.

A camp just for handicapped kids

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Handicapped children in the Northwest suburbs will go to camp this summer thanks to citizens who are donating time, money and materials to put a neglected campground near Bartlett, Ill., back into operation.

The 10-acre camp was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative by the state last summer. Because the camp was left vacant for several years and suffered extensive vandalism, NEC officials asked the community to help clean and rebuild the camp. NEC now says the camp will open July 1.

But the remodeling job isn't finished. The camp, named Sunrise Lake Camp for the Handicapped, will open only as a day camp this summer and its only facilities will be a craft cabin, nurses quarters, lodge and boat house. NEC officials want to turn Sunrise Lake into a year-round residential camp with plumbing, heat, electricity, and bunkhouses for 60 children.

IF NEC bought the necessary material and equipment for the camp and hired someone to do the remodeling, Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center for the Handicapped, said it would cost about $300,000. NEC doesn't have the taxing power to raise the money but will have to rely on government grants, contributions from local schools and donations from individuals and community organizations.

So far many groups have been involved in the renovation. Several scout troops in the Northwest suburbs have cleaned the sumpsite and plan to make nature trails and plant more trees. A Naval Reserve unit cleared some of the rubbish from the camp last fall and plans to develop roadways and paths. The Streamwood Civil Defense unit's scuba diving club volunteered to clean up debris from the camp's 11-acre lake.

The NEC governing board has allocated $2,500 for development of the camp and Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will donate the proceeds of their art fair March 23 and 24 to the camp. More contributions have come from the Suburban Township Assn. for the Retarded and from Parents and Teachers of the Handicapped at Kirk Center.

Most of the remodeling and design work for the camp is now being done by the practical architectural construction class at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights. The 15 students in the class have already demolished two bath houses, the caretakers home and a cabin and salvaged about $900 worth of lumber.

BEFORE THE camp opens in July the class will remodel and put an addition on the craft cabin, redesign the nurses quarters, repair or replace the roof, windows and doors on the lodge and build a boat house.

The class has constructed two homes near Lake Geneva, Wis., since the course was first offered at Forest View in 1971.

SUNRISE LAKE CAMP for the Handicapped is now being remodeled by Paul Durham and other students from Forest View High School's practical architectural construction class. Persons from the community are donating their time and money to clean, renovate, and furnish the 10-acre camp near Bartlett.

the camp a class project for several years until all the building and remodeling work is completed.

A building construction class in High School Dist. 211 has also asked NEC what it can do to help rebuild the camp.

MORE WORK could be done on the camp if NEC could give the students more money or materials, said Sterrett, and the list of what is needed is long. One of the first projects will be the water and sanitation system, he said.

The camp also needs a new well and some of the pipes need to be replaced. Electricity and gas lines have to be hooked up, sand and crushed rock is needed for roads and concrete or asphalt is needed to lay paths for wheelchairs. NEC wants to buy a mobile home for the caretaker and his family so he can stay at the camp around the clock.

The camp will also need kitchen equipment, fishing gear and sports equipment. This summer Sterrett said he hopes to include swimming, fishing, boating, nature study, crafts, and field and lawn (Continued on Page 13)

Pentagon cost-cutter still seeks to regain job

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON — The inadequacy of the U.S. Civil Service Commission hearings as a truth-finding mechanism in personnel cases is underlined by a $3.5 million civil damage suit brought by Air Force cost cutter A. Ernest Fitzgerald against his Pentagon persecutors.

Fitzgerald battled four years before winning a civil service ruling that he was "wrongfully" fired from his Air Force job after testifying to the nearly $2 billion in cost overruns on the C-5A Lockheed jet transport program.

Fitzgerald's fight to win reinstatement in his $36,000-a-year Air Force cost analyst job produced a devastating record of conspiracy against him.

Sworn record before the Civil Service Hearing Examiner Herman Staiman is filled with evidence of false statements, destruction of records, falsification of records, evasions and misuse of executive privilege that is as bad, if not worse, than the original Watergate trial record.

However, unlike Chief U.S. District Judge John Sirica, the Civil Service Commission was uninterested in getting at the whole truth and appeared more interested in protecting the Air Force hierarchy.

Likewise, the Justice Department and the Air Force weren't concerned about following up the charges of perjury, falsification of records and criminal retaliation against Fitzgerald after testimony before the Joint Economic Committee chaired by Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Although the Civil Service Commission last September ordered Fitzgerald's reinstatement with back pay to January, 1970, he wasn't actually reinstated in a job until December.

Fitzgerald has accepted a post under protest, contending that although the job pays the same salary as his former job, it does not have comparable responsibilities. He also said he was barred from work "on the major weapons systems, where the real savings can be made."

The Air Force hasn't paid him any back pay for the four years he was out of the job and the Civil Service Commission has given Fitzgerald no backing in getting a settlement from the antagonistic Air Force hierarchy. The Civil Service Commission also has rejected a claim to pay for the court costs and lawyers' fees to fight for his job.

Although President Nixon applauded the civil service ruling for Fitzgerald as "an equitable solution" to the difficult problem, the White House has turned a deaf ear to Fitzgerald's pleas for justice.

After months of pleading with the White House and the Civil Service Commission, Fitzgerald and his lawyers, John Bodner and William Sollee, decided there was no alternative but to go directly into the federal courts with their civil damage suit.

The $3.5 million damage suit will permit Fitzgerald to call many Air Force witnesses for questioning under oath that he was barred from calling earlier by Civil Service Hearing Examiner Staiman.

Staiman refused Fitzgerald's requests for subpoenaing the four Air Force officials who were identified as having initiated a "conflict of interest" and "security" investigation of Fitzgerald by the Air Force Office of Special Investigations (OSI).

Fitzgerald and his lawyers charge the four Air Force officials, identified on reports as "T-1," "T-2," "T-3" and "T-4," had maliciously conspired to destroy him. General Joseph J. Cappucci, head of the OSI, admitted that an investigation by his office "washed out" what were initially only "vague" charges.

General Cappucci further admitted in the hearing that the Air Force had destroyed the investigative reports that were favorable to Fitzgerald but had retained the allegations from the four "T" informants that were derogatory and proven to be unsubstantiated.

Hearing Examiner Staiman permitted General Cappucci, former Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans, Jr., former Assistant Air Secretary Spencer J. Schedler and Air Force Col. James D. Pewitt to claim "executive privilege" and refuse to disclose internal Air Force and White House conversations dealing with the firing of Fitzgerald.

Federal court officials are certain to permit Fitzgerald to call any relevant witnesses in his civil damage suit. In the light of the Watergate rulings by Chief Judge John Sirica, the courts are unlikely to let loose claims of "executive privilege" stand in the way of the full truth.

Through the processes of pretrial deposition, Fitzgerald and his lawyers hope to bring the whole sordid story to light and to focus attention on the promotions that members of the anti-Fitzgerald group have received since his original firing.

Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Federal Aviation Administrator Alexander P. Butterfield, Air Force Col.

Hans Driessnack, General Duward L. Crow and former Air Force Chief of Staff John P. McConnell also are named as defendants in Fitzgerald's suit against the Air Force for "falsely and maliciously fabricated and concocted reports" to justify firing him.

The hearing should provide some interesting new insights into the duplicity of Pentagon brass.

'State of Universe' next?

WASHINGTON — If an unknown House Republican had his way, the diplomatic corps would be barred from future joint sessions of Congress simply because it takes up too much space and comes across on television as a "deadpan assembly."

The lawmaker unloaded his gripes in a confidential memo, dated Dec. 14, 1972, and addressed to a House Republican task force that was studying congressional reform. He referred to the President's annual State of the Union message.

"The west Republican side of the chamber, particularly, is packed to the gunnels with collapsible chairs to try to accommodate the growing numbers who attend. Even if it were not otherwise an indecorous situation, it is surely a hazard to safety. Heaven help us if an emergency ever required a speedy exit!" he wrote.

The author was sufficiently convinced of his cause that he wrote a letter about it to President Nixon and one to Speaker Carl Albert. So far, the complaint has been pigeonholed by all concerned, probably because of its potential for an international incident.

The crowding, he noted, results from "the vastly increased diplomatic corps now numbering some 127 officials."

"With millions of eyes focused on this dramatic scene, that expense occupied by this extraneous element forms a strange and unfortunate backdrop to the President's appearance. That is precisely the picture conveyed by the TV camera. Many viewers assume this deadpan assembly is a group of disinterested — or worse — congressmen."

He proposed instead that Congress hold a "quasi-social" affair somewhere else once a year to mingle with the diplomats and that the President give a "State of the Universe" address for the diplomats only.

The congressman's basic complaint is, of course, lack of seating. The Democratic majority shoves the foreign corps to the Republican side, forcing GOP members to find their own seating.

State of the Universe affairs are not really all that crowded, though, with the leadership trotting out scores of page boys, staff members and aides to fill empty seats that would otherwise cause embarrassment to the President when the TV camera pans over the room. However, the Dec. 6 swearing of Gerald R. Ford as Vice President was a disaster for William "Fishbait" Miller, the venerable doorkeeper who announces and escorts the diplomats, Senators, cabinet members and Supreme Court Justices to their seats for joint sessions.

A larger than anticipated crowd turned out to see the House Republican leader sworn in as 40th Veep of the United States, sending Fishbait into a musical chairs orgy.

"Hey Carl," Fishbait called to the Speaker. "Tell the pages and staff to get out of the chairs." Albert complied. Still Fishbait had senators and cabinet members wandering aimlessly looking for chairs. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., disappeared up an aisle and wasn't seen again.

"Hey Carl," Fishbait called again. "Tell the members to get their kids outta here." Albert complied. Still there were members standing and looking for seats. The diplomatic corps, seated earlier, sat firm, unmoving and unmoved.

Fishbait took Admiral Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, by the arm, his staff following and asked Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., to move and make room for the admiral.

Annunzio let the admiral and Fishbait know in his best Chicago language he was an elected member of Congress entitled to a seat and the admiral was only an appointee of Congress and he had better look elsewhere.

The usual unperturbable Fishbait, who once escorted the Queen of England into the chambers for a Joint Session of Congress and told her, "Hey, Queen. Come sit over here," is still mulling the fallout of that Dec. 6 firestorm (UPI)

Herald editorial

Strike could have been eased

The violence-stained independent truckers' strike is almost over — and some blame for its existence must rest with the federal government.

As throughout the rest of the current energy crisis, there has been little if any early federal attention to legitimate cries for help until those cries resulted in a substantial disruption of the American economy.

Earlier this year, independent truckers had complained loudly that they were victims of the gasoline shortage. They argued that their sometimes marginal operations were threatened by lowered speed limits and rising fuel costs.

Two weeks ago the truckers got serious about shutting down American highway commerce, and they almost succeeded. A pattern of threats, violence and intimidation closed truck stops, slowed interstate trucks and produced some scattered but serious food shortages across the United States.

The federal government's initial response was to pass the buck to the states, even though interstate trucking was the issue. National guard troops became necessary in several states, including Illinois last week, while massive federal disinterest in the strike dissolved — but only slowly.

Indeed, the governor of Pennsylvania, Milton Shapp, turned out to be a key negotiator in developing a settlement with the scattered bands of truckers who disrupted travel through his state. Yet he received little interest from the White House as he worked out a settlement.

There was a need for fast White House action in this strike, for it was the kind of labor crisis which should have prompted the kind of "law and order" response for which President Nixon's administration is famous.

Yet, in the end, violence and intimidation helped coerce the government into a settlement. Perhaps swifter federal attention to legitimate trucker complaints would have prevented the violence that did occur. Perhaps lives would not have been lost, and perhaps injuries would not have occurred, if the government had moved swiftly.

The settlement spells economic trouble ahead for all of us, for higher fuel costs to shippers mean higher food prices will result. More disturbing is that the government, as the result of the settlement, will consider allowing larger, more damaging trucks on American highways — a move that could cause us severe road damage in the years ahead.

The lives of independent truckers are difficult; and they are as much as anyone the victims of the energy shortage. With some attention the federal government could have responded better to some of their legitimate demands — thus making unnecessary the wildcat strike which is just now ending.

Backs sheriff's police

I find I must take exception to a portion of your January 15 Herald editorial. You stated, "There's a continued sense of 'rugged individualism' from residents who remain in unincorporated areas and refuse to accept the need for professional police and fire protection that only an incorporated community can supply."

You are apparently unfamiliar with the Cook County Sheriff's Police Department. The Cook County Sheriff's Police Department is the third largest in the state and provides for its citizens a wider range of services than any other in suburban Cook County. Among these are suburban locations each year. These are but a few of the professional services available to residents of Cook County. Services, that because of size and progressive commitment, no other suburban agency can provide.

I must, therefore, strongly disagree with your premise that quality police service can only be provided by an act of incorporation.

Urbanologist Pierre de Vise predicts:

'By 1990, suburban area will be bigger—but not better'

by MARCIA KRAMER

Take the Northwest suburban area as we know it today. Add about 300,000 people. Give it small cars and small homes. Toss in a few jobs, close to home but not necessarily good jobs.

That, at a glance, is what we can expect the Northwest suburbs to be like in 1990. Growth will continue, but the standard of living will slip as the energy shortage tightens its grip.

That's what sociologist Pierre de Vise envisions, at least. There will be more of us, the well known urbanologist predicts, but we won't be as well off as today and won't expect as much. We will have become used to getting by with less, just as in the past few months we have become accustomed to paying 97 cents a pound for ground beef and waiting in line for gasoline... when it's available.

IN 1990, "We won't be leading as full a life as today," asserted de Vise (dub-vee-ZA), an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus. Two of the biggest components of the American dream today — a big car and a big house — will go the way of the horse-drawn buggy and homemade log cabin. "The love of the big automobile" — he flicks his hand — "that's over. We're never going to see it again. The desire to live in a large house" — again he motioned its demise — "that's going to change. We'll do with less space, less open air."

According to his own predictions, de Vise himself is behind and at the same time ahead of the times. He lives in a large house in Chicago's South Shore neighborhood, but drives a compact car.

HE DOESN'T PRETEND to know the intricate causes of the current energy shortage or even whether it is a legitimate rather than manufactured shortage. De Vise's forte is to take census data, combined with an assortment of trends, and to come up with a sociological picture of the Chicago metropolitan area. At the request of The Herald, he focused on what the Northwest suburbs will be like in the future, especially if the energy shortage continues, as it's expected to do.

De Vise predicted that the population boom of the 1960s will continue in the next two decades, and that the typical Northwest suburbanite will still be white upper middle class.

The 1960 population of 145,700 in six Northwest suburban townships will more than double to 345,600 by 1970. By 1990, de Vise says, the population will practically double again, to about 654,000. The largest growth is projected in Barrington Township, which will witness a 163 per cent increase, to 20,000 persons; in Palatine Township, which will swell by 180 per cent, to 142,000 persons; and in Hanover Township, which will grow by 120 per cent to 46,900.

WHERE WILL ALL these people live? Apartments and condominiums, says de Vise. "There won't be much more single family houses built," he said. Of the six Northwest suburban townships, only Schaumburg will continue to build single family homes because it still has plenty of open land. In the other areas, where land is growing scarce and property costs are rising, multifamily housing will abound.

The occupants of these new apartment games in the camp's activities. The camp will be open to all handicapped children of school age in the area even if they are attending private schools. "If we develop it as a public school program then private schools don't feel as free to use it," said Sterrett. "We're trying to make this a complete community project without drawing heavily on tax money," he said.

School officials who would like to use the camp this summer should contact Sterrett at Kirk Center, 550 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, 359-3100. Anyone wishing to help rebuild the camp or donate money or materials may also reach him there.

Pierre de Vise buildings will be predominately white, according to de Vise. By 1990, blacks will account for 5 per cent of the population, mostly in Des Plaines, which is closest to Chicago and offers a wider range of housing than most suburbs. "Northwest Cook remains the most remote for black people. I expect it will be the very last sector blacks will move to because there is no black nucleus." Most of the black population, de Vise feels, will move to areas where a black housing pattern has already been set — many of the southern suburbs, for example, west toward Oak Park or north toward Evanston, North Chicago and Waukegan.

One of the key reasons the Northwest suburbs will continue to grow in the next two decades is jobs. More and more factories and offices will move to the Northwest suburban area from the city. "The city is no longer as important to most industries as it used to be," de Vise said. He pointed to changes in transportation technology making trucks (strikes notwithstanding) the main carriers, rather than railroads. With the interstate highway system, suburban areas are attracting a fair share of the industrial market.

JOBS IN EVEN the near future will be influenced by energy needs. "People may switch jobs to work closer to home," de Vise predicted. "They may sacrifice pay and the type of job for proximity." The reason: Limited public transportation coupled with the worsening availability of gasoline. In 1990, "automobiles will continue to predominate," de Vise said. "But we'll probably find some combinations of auto and public transportation, and we may find more car pooling."

"We have now reached the peak of prime transportation. I don't foresee more expressways being built. Something must give; adjustments will be made. People will be more selective where they work — the distance and time to get there." Within two decades, de Vise said, "the proportion of suburbanites working in the suburbs will continue to go up. Two-thirds of the jobs and 70 per cent of the workers will be in the suburbs."

Immediate effects of a prolonged energy shortage "will be felt most severely" in the Northwest suburbs. Layoffs have already begun at O'Hare Airport, where half of the 22,000 employees live in the Northwest sector. If flights continue to be canceled because of a fuel shortage, de Vise warned, layoffs will spread to motels and restaurants in the O'Hare area.

OTHER LOCAL effects: A temporary slowdown in new construction, especially in commercial and industrial buildings; and a pinch on shopping centers such as Woodfield and Randhurst that may have to wait in line behind homeowners to buy heating oil.

In general, said de Vise, "Until we make a technological breakthrough, which may take 10 or 15 years, we'll see a decline in our standard of living." Anything that requires energy that we have come to take for granted, especially "the things we hold high in values" such as air conditioning and heat, will feel the pinch. We won't be as well off in 1990 in terms of lifestyle, says de Vise. "I think we've had our best days in the last 15 to 20 years in terms of being extravagant about things like energy."

ON ITS THIRD time around this old comforter gets dressed up in an old fashioned flower print of cuddle-soft challis. New covering is a simple "pillowcase" type of cover which is held in place with yarn ties.

CHECKED GINGHAM with eyelash trim makes up this new comforter. It is quilted by machine. When you purchase batting and fabric on sale, you can sew your own comforters for half the retail price.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

A way to fight inflation

by MARIANNE SCOTT

The energy crunch is a long way from being over. Besides shortages, prices on just about everything are going up, up, up. Keeping warm and "making do" may soon be a way of life — again.

Our grandmothers knew all the tricks of keeping costs down and making do. We've borrowed one of these tricks from granny — refurbishing and making new, inexpensive, puffy comforters for the bedroom or for snuggling into while watching TV.

Quickest and easiest way to redo an old comforter or quilt is to make a slipcover. Even an amateur seamstress can do this in less than a day.

FLOWERED PLISSE, quilted by machine, gives new life to a worn out comforter. Covers, which can be made in a variety of fabrics, are a simple way to "make do" as prices on new merchandise soar.

The slipcover is really a huge pillowcase into which you simply slip the old comforter. Granny tied them with leftover yarn hanks to keep everything in place. You can use yarn, too. And you might want to try pompons instead of knots. Or you can quilt on your sewing machine.

YOU CAN retain the old-fashioned flavor by choosing nostalgic florals, paisleys or ticking prints. Other prints run the gamut from bandana, patchwork and animal prints to polka dots or plaids. Plisse, challis, gingham, pima, dotted Swiss, velour, velvet or corduroy are just a few of the fabrics you have to choose from.

You may even wish to use the new polyester double knits, or even fake furs. You can also use pretty sheets.

When you see all the pretty fabrics you'll want to cover several comforters — even those that don't need them.

Some quilts, such as the old patchworks, can be renewed by cutting the ties and replacing the matted batting with new, fluffy Dacron batting and perhaps using a pretty new material for the reverse side.

For some of us the old patchwork quilts are too heavy — they often weighed up to 12 pounds or more. New, lightweight batting will make the quilt more usable.

WHEN REPLACING batting or making a new comforter an easy method is to baste the batting to the wrong side of fabric to be used for the quilt back. Then turn upside down (batting down) and place top fabric of quilt (right sides together) and sew around three sides.

Then turn right sides out and finish the fourth side by hand or by machine. Or you may find it easier to lay the batting inside the front and back of the coverings, which are then laid with right sides out. Then sew a tape all around the edges.

When quilting on the machine (the new battings crush easily to fit under the pressure foot) it's easiest to quilt in straight lines which have been drawn on the fabric surface with chalk and yardstick. Large T-pins come in handy for holding the batting in place.

YOU CAN also make removable covers for old bedding which can be slipped off for laundering, then tacked or snapped in the corners to keep them from slipping.

If your comforter is to be no more than 66 inches wide, and you choose 45-inch material, you'll need three times the length of the comforter. Wider comforters or covers will require four times the length.

You'll need one package of batting (it comes all in one piece) for a puffy, lightweight comforter, two for a heavier one.

If you wish to make a more complicated comforter you can make a patchwork design using leftover scraps from other sewing projects. Pieces can be square or oblong, large or small. You can also use one large patch, centered, with smaller patches filling in around the sides.

IF YOU sew your children's clothes it's fun to use the scraps from these garments. In years to come the kids will enjoy pointing out a fabric and saying, "I remember this dress!" One area mother cut out and saved the patches, but left them for her daughter (now adult) to sew up. But it's fun years later, too.

For little girls (or boys) sewing patches is an excellent way to learn to use the sewing machine. It's a lesson in cutting, too, as well as making straight seams that come out even.

Remnants picked up for little or nothing in the fabric shops can be used for making new and inexpensive quilts or comforters. In buying new fabrics you can often pick color or design-matched materials, but an assortment of prints is also pretty.

So keep warm by making do. Granny would be proud of you. Not only will you be saving money, you'll be creating something from patterns not found in the shops, something that is "you."

Speaking of . . .

by KAY MARSH

If you're interested, there's no energy shortage in the Cub Scouts these days. This is the time of year when each local pack holds its Pinewood Derby, an annual affair that combines certain aspects of the Indianapolis 500, the Kentucky Derby, Little League and the chariot races in "Ben Hur."

In case you're not familiar with this spectacular event, it begins about a month before when each Cub Scout brings home a little plastic bag full of wood, parts and instructions. The rules state that "entrant must build car with the help of his father," but fathers tend to construe that little word "help" very liberally.

Some fathers are rumored to devote hours to studying such topics as the aerodynamics of wind resistance and cutting friction. Others draw on top engineering talent at their places of business. Others go out and buy special tools, or call in consultants.

Mothers, fortunately, tend to play a mere spectator role, though many report paint stains on the kitchen table or good saucepans ruined by melted lead.

RACING SPECIFICATIONS, by the way, are precise. For one thing, the car can weigh no more than five ounces. After some unfortunate experience with inaccurate home postal scales, most families schedule a few trips to the post office for more exact weigh-ins. One way or another, building the car usually turns into a project involving the whole family.

And it's whole families who turn out on race night. At least one father shows up with a complete tool kit, suitable for constructing, say, the Houston Astrodome. And even the most professorial-type father usually has a screwdriver or so in his tweedy pockets.

The crowd, as you might expect, is wildly partisan. Invariably, a few small brothers and sisters flop down on the floor near the end of the track and get in the way of the judges. Other siblings race around wildly while cars are weighed and inspected.

Finally, the first two entrants place their cars in position to race down a slightly elevated track with two lane strips, and they're off.

"OFF" IS LITERAL in a few cases, as cars jump the tracks. Other cars are too low and drag on the lane strips, drawing to an embarrassing halt somewhere around mid-point.

Most, however, manage to make their way to the end of the course. Winners keep competing with other winners until, interminable heats later, the final winners are determined.

The cars are amazingly different. Out of 35 or 40 entries, no two are even very similar, much less alike. Some are stripped down to rafts riding on wheels; others have elaborately carved details. Some have carburetors added, or even smokestacks. Some resemble a Düne Buggy; others the Toonerville Trolley.

At our last local Pinewood Derby, the most appealing car was rectangularly Mondrian, but painted to look like a Chinese dragon. There were also the curved hoods of the old Hupmobile; the flying fins of an ancient Cadillac; vestiges of every vintage year in Detroit's heyday. Some entries had crooked racing stripes and wheels that tended to wobble, while others were as streamlined and professional as the Indianapolis winners that inspired them. Many called to mind Tom Wolfe's famous book, "The Kandy-Kolored Tangerine-Flake Streamline Baby." And, of course, they were painted every possible color, plus a few impossible ones.

IT SOON BECAME obvious, however, that one of four entries would be the champion. One was bright red, shaped to an aggressive point in front and curved slightly at the rear. One was a plain gold rectangle, with a smaller rectangle sandwiched on it at the back to make it a double-decker. One modestly varnished racer resembled nothing so much as a Play Skool toy, being simply curved and leaving design details to the spectator's imagination. And the final contender was a sleek, streamlined blue racer, complete with stripes and a piece of plastic placed over the driver's seat to cut down wind resistance.

Endless heats and chewed fingernails later, the blue racer finally emerged victorious by approximately half an inch. Medals were awarded and photographs taken.

The rest of us packed up our racers, Cub Scouts and cheering sections and toiled home sedately to the telly.

But just wait till next year!

Purdue students gather at Jill Wybest's wedding

The wedding festivities for Jill Wybest of Mount Prospect and Thomas E. Webb of Louisville, Ky., had the atmosphere of a college reunion.

Sixty students from Purdue University attended the couple's Jan. 19 nuptials, which included an entertaining serenade of fraternity, sorority and Purdue songs.

The wedding was solemnized in the Church of the Cross, United Presbyterian, in Hoffman Estates, followed by a dinner reception with dancing at the Marriott Hotel for 150 guests.

Jill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wybest, 1451 Blackhawk Drive, has completed her junior year at Purdue and is transferring to the University of Cincinnati now that she and her husband are living in that city.

TOM WORKS for Indiana-Michigan Power Co. in Cincinnati. He graduated in '72 from Purdue where he was affiliated with Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity. His parents are the George Webbs of Louisville.

The couple exchanged vows and rings in a four o'clock candlelight ceremony. Jill's ensemble was an ivory crepe gown with antique lace and pale pink ribbon trim and a shoulder-length veil edged in matching lace and held by a cap of the lace. She carried white roses with blue silk flowers.

MRS. THOMAS (Lynn) Murphy, her sister from Duluth, Minn., was matron of honor, wearing a ruby red velvet dress with matching jacket and carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom's brother, George Webb, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Webb

Also in the wedding party were Tom's sister, Suzanne Webb, and Rebecca Holmway of Louisville as bridesmaids. Rebecca was the bride's roommate and a Chi Omega sorority sister. The groomsmen were Lee Flower of Springfield, Conn., and Ken Crain, Louisville.

The bride is studying interior design at the university. She is a graduate of Forest View High School.

New recipe for hash-browns result of experimentation

Dear Dorothy: The frozen hash-brown potatoes aren't too bad but I'd sure like a good recipe for the homemade ones.

—Evelyn Meehan

I developed one after months of experimenting — trying to imitate one served by a certain restaurant. Mix a tablespoon of flour with two cups of boiled, seasoned potatoes cut into small pieces. Grate a little onion (or sprinkle on a little dry minced onion) over the whole thing — and stir in two tablespoons of coffee cream. Drop large tablespoonfuls into hot shortening in a skillet. When lightly brown on one side, turn to brown the other side.

Dear Dorothy: I didn't have time to iron my sprinkled, starched curtains so put them in the refrigerator for several days. When I finally got to them they were covered with mildew. Wasn't sure what to do but, as they were white, I put them in a pan of cold water into which I'd poured a little chlorine bleach. In 30 minutes the mildew disappeared and the curtains were as white as snow. I rinsed them well and started the ironing procedure all over again. — Mrs. B.J.

Chlorine bleach solution is the perfect thing to use when white things get mildewed, but I confess to being surprised that anything would mildew that fast in the refrigerator.

Dear Dorothy: We recently found ourselves with no coffee filters. I substituted cleansing tissue. It worked fine. Wonder if there might be any problem that could affect our health? — L.W.D.

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

The water goes through tissue differently than through regular filter paper, but if you like the coffee, there isn't anything to worry about. After all, cleansing tissue is sterilized and as clean as any filter paper.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Dangerous celebrant

The Health Insurance Institute reports that one of the most dangerous persons in the nation today is the drunk driver.

About half of the estimated 56,000 persons who will be killed in traffic accidents this year will have been drinking themselves or will be the victims of an intoxicated driver. About two of every three alcohol-related deaths will be caused by a small fraction of America's drivers (about seven per cent) who habitually drive while drunk.

Area wrestlers compete in four districts

Elgin Larkin field draws touted teams

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Is there a state champ brewing in Elgin this weekend?

Thoughts along that line are, of course, premature. There are too many uncertainties... too many intangibles... to accurately predict even a sectional winner let alone a state champion.

But using last year as a guide line to this winter's playoffs, there is at least a potential contender entered at Elgin Larkin's district tournament and they would have to be favored to rule over this tough eight-team gathering.

That team is Addison Trail, a bridesmaid downstate a couple of years ago boasting five exceptionally fine individuals this time around. Their opposition will be formidable even from the beginning.

At Larkin in addition to the newly crowned Mid-Suburban tourney champ Schaumburg and overall co-champion Elk Grove there will be the number three team finisher in the rugged Tri-County circuit — Lake Park — plus a pair of clubs from the tough Upstate Eight in Elgin and the host Royals.

Add in MSL's South Division winners from Conant and a brand new team from Hoffman Estates and the result is a genuine barnburner of a tournament in the making.

Sessions will be at 6:30 Friday night and 1:00 and 6:30 p.m. Saturday. Here's how this toughie figures to stack up by weight:

88 Pounds — Lake Park's Keith Hackney (15-6-1) is a solid bet to hook up with Larkin's Jeff Jarka (18-7-1) in the big showdown.

105 Pounds — Tom Stallman (22-3) will have to get the Blazers off in the right direction but he'll face a rugged test from Conant's returning district champ Keith McCreary (18-5). Elk Grove adds in Kevin Crews (12-8-1) and even Hoffman Estates has a youngster with potential in Rich Skaggs (14-2-2 on the soph level). After last week however Stallman's biggest challenge will probably

AGONY AND ECSTASY. Harper, Triton share Skyway crown

If the third time is the charmer, then Harper can consider itself half-charmed after the Skyway Conference wrestling tournament Saturday.

The 50-50 situation was the result of losing out to Triton in an ever-so-tight battle for meet honors. The second place Hawk windup coupled with their first place finish during the dual meet portion of the campaign brought about the overall tie for the title with the Warriors.

The two clubs monopolized the conference gathering, splitting up the 10 championship slots equally. Harper's winners included fiery 126-pound Al Gordon, whose overpowering display resulted in tournament most valuable wrestler laurels.

Probably the most impressive Hawk quality though was that they were even in the running for team meet honors at all when it was over. Harper trailed by 16½ points going into the finals and needed a super windup to turn things around.

"We almost did too," sighed coach Ron Bessemer. "We had to win eight of our last 10 bouts and wound up taking seven of them. It wasn't any one individual who let us down however... there were a number of places down the line where we could have changed the final verdict."

Two of those were at 134 and 142 where Bessemer felt his entries may have been looking ahead past opening bouts. As a result, Gary Thacker at 134 was stopped 14-9 by McHenry's Scott Vierck and Milay lost to Ray Caywood, also of McHenry, 11-6.

Both Hawks then battled their way back through the wrestlebacks to capture thirds.

Possibly the pivotal match of the meet was one lost by Ken Trommer at 158 to Triton's Sean Grennan in the finals. He was pinned at 2:48 of an overtime session and his main fault was probably not being conservative enough.

"That decision was a shame because Ken outwrestled him all the way. But he had an early 2-0 lead and didn't stay with it... otherwise, the match wouldn't even have had to go into overtime."

At 177 Steve Glaser was the victim of another malady — lack of competition. There were only three entries and Glaser drew the bye, resulting in having to wrestle his first and only match for the championship.

According to Bessemer, he was simply flat while absorbing a 4-2 setback.

There were some bright sides to the affair for Harper as well. Unseeded Marion Cotten at 150 made his way into the finals on a default and then pulled off a stunning 8-3 win over Triton's top-ranked Ralph Berg.

Bernie Kleiman also retained his 118-pound crown, opening with a 3-24 pin over Bruce Parker of McHenry and then turning back Rick Almedia 6-3 in the finals.

And Steve Frankovic at 167, and John Silver at heavyweight also collected titles while Ron Vylasek annexed another second at 190. Frankovic scored a pair of pins, sticking Warrior Russ Weglarz at 5:35 in the finals.

Silver opened with a pin and crunched Chico Hatke of Triton 8-1 in the championship clash. Vylasek knocked off Lou Mohapp of McHenry in his opener but then lost a toughie to nationally-ranked Ray Greeley of Triton in the finals 6-5.

The best news of all was Gordon's demonstration at 126. The rugged vet started off with a 3-38 pin over Larry Keefe of Lake County and advanced through the semis with a 2-46 fall over McHenry's Ken Bohad.

In the finals he put Mike Lawrence of Triton down for the count at 4:32 and sauntered off with his MVP honors in the process.

The final meet standings had Triton with 157½ and Harper with 153½. During the dual meet season the Warriors had forged a 6-1 circuit mark while Bessemer's club was winding up unbeaten at 7-0.

The Hawks will be idle now for a week in preparation for the upcoming Region IV tourney, to be conducted this year at Moline.

More wrestling news Thursday

98-pounders in spotlight at Ridgewood

The site is about the only thing unchanged for the Ridgewood wrestling district in Norridge this weekend.

The lineup is different, with St. Patrick out and Forest View in. The balance of power is different, shifting from last year's winner Maine East to Notre Dame along with Maines South and West, and possibly the hosting Rebels.

Even the sessions are a little different. Last year the meet ran Thursday evening, Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening. This time around it will open on Friday night at 6:30, continue Saturday morning at 10 a.m. and wind up that same afternoon beginning at 1 p.m.

A number of familiar faces will still be on hand. And they figure to play an important role in the team outcome as well standing the best chance to earn one of the two sectional qualifying berths at each weight.

The Dons will roar into the tourney fresh from a stunning upset conquest at the Suburban Catholic Conference meet with a 15-5 dual meet mark in tow.

The Hawks bring a 13-1 dual meet log into the fray, having lost their one match to neighboring Maine West only recently. Ridgewood, with some especially strong representatives in the light weights, could also be a factor.

Here's the situation by weight:

98 Pounds — A tremendous showdown is shaping up between Falcon John Gross and Tony DeGuida of the hosts. Both unbeaten and recently crowned loop champs, they will be battling to take over the district throne owned by eventual state champ Jack Horowitz of Maine North last year. DeGuida (26-0-1) has the edge with experience, a 75-9-1 mark fashioned over three campaigns. Junior Gross includes 11 pins and nine shutouts within his unblemished 23-0 ledger. The lone outside threat will come from Paul Vee (16-0-1) of the Dons.

105 Pounds — Notre Dame's Vito Vee (22-4) was a runner-up at this weight last year. He'll have no easy time this time around either with Warrior Bryan Real (18-0), South's Kurt Flech (15-2-1), East's Kurt Schmidt (17-3) and possibly Forest View's Jamie King (13-11).

112 Pounds — Kevin Walsh (23-2-1) of the Dons has the inside track here. Other possibilities include Demon Paul Board (11-6), Maine North's Bob Russo (13-3) and Falcon Kevin Smith (14-9-2). Also back is Dave Jenkins of the Hawks who qualified last year.

119 Pounds — The nod goes to defending district champ Chuck Myers (16-5) of Maine South. His prime competition could come from Mike Delahanty (17-1) of Notre Dame and Ray Saphira (15-13) of

Marwitz wins league honors at 119

Tim Marwitz successfully defended his conference throne and John Breen came within a bout of capturing one himself, but elsewhere St. Viator had little success in the Suburban Catholic loop wrestling meet conducted at Holy Cross last weekend.

Cowich John Zid's Lions finished in seventh place at the ten team gathering, scoring 21 points to wind up well off the pace. Team honors went to Notre Dame, edging out both the reigning champs from Carmel and the host Crusaders with an 84½ tally production.

It was the first time in five years that the Corsairs had not taken the championship trophy home from the meet. The Dons nosed them out by a single point while Holy Cross finished with 79½.

There were half a dozen returning champs on hand and all but one came up repeaters. Marwitz, bigger by three classes from the 98-pound prize he bagged a year ago, breezed into the finals and then captured an overtime 4-2 decision from Notre Dame's Mike Delahanty to annex top 119-pound honors.

Marwitz had opened with a 5-05 pin over Jack Garrity of St. Patrick and then dumped Mark Perkins of Holy Cross, 7-1.

Vreen, at 167, felled Bob Matczak of St. Francis de Sales at a quick 0-40 in his opener and polished off Carl Nielsen of St. Pats 7-2 before absorbing a 10-2 loss to Carmel's John Styx in the finals. Breen then wrestled back into second place.

Those two turned out to be the only Viator point-getters. Tim Jordan at 95 pounds out in his first match to Paul DeBoo of Holy Cross 7-2 in overtime and was also stopped in the wrestlebacks. John Butler at 105 and Bill Savage at 112 both absorbed a pair of pins.

Larry Ruane at 126 and Chris Traxler at 132 dropped leadoff bouts and weren't

Hersey hosts meet; eight teams enter

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

The feeling is mutual.

The feeling of who is glad about who is coming to Hersey's district wrestling tournament, that is. For some unknown reason, Dundee and Crown have been tossed in with six Northwest suburban entries at the Husky meet and both sides would just as soon not be meeting up with the others at this early stage of the game.

For Dundee and Crown, out of Carpentersville, the reluctance stems partially from the energy crisis. Arlington Heights is a long way to drive when there is a much closer district conducted at Elgin-Larkin.

Furthermore at sectional time, although the area is flanked by both Elgin and Barrington sites, Card and Viking qualifiers must travel all the way to West Leyden to shoot for state berths.

There is also a loss in spectator interest. These schools compete with Elgin area teams all year and are now plucked away to battle with clubs for the most part unfamiliar to them.

The sentiments of Fremd, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington, St. Viator and the host Huskies about this intrusion takes on a different direction. There are some excellent youngsters invading their territory this weekend to possibly usurp a batch of qualifying positions.

The MSL squads and the Lions want as many of these slots as they can for themselves, of course.

Hersey, if they can rebound from last week's disaster at the conference meet, still must be considered a threat for district tournament honors although they'll share the favorite billing with Dundee. The Cards finished with a 12-7-1 dual meet record and are about as strong and balanced as the Huskies.

The Pirates also tapered off last week and are in need of rally. The other squads all have some excellent individual talent.

Sessions will run at 7 p.m. Friday and at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday. Here's Nine schools launch bids at Wheeling

The Spartans are expected to have their way again.

This is the situation at Wheeling where nine teams will gather this weekend for district wrestling action. Glenbrook's North's Spartans reigned over this tournament handsily when it was conducted last season at Lake Forest and there is no reason to think they won't do so again.

The Northbrook-based outfit will carry an impressive 18-2 dual meet slate into the arena. They dropped their opening match to Libertyville and lost a tight one to Carmel around Christmas and have been unstoppable ever since.

Also similarly to 1973, Deerfield and the hosting Wildcats are expected to supply the main opposition to GBN. They placed 2nd and 3rd respectively last year.

There are four returning district champs and two of them are Wheeling grapplers. Last year's credentials will afford no free tickets in 1974, however, especially at the lighter weights where competition will apparently be the keenest.

Sessions will be conducted at 6 p.m. Friday and at noon and 6 p.m. Saturday. Here's a weight-by-weight breakdown of the meet:

98 Pounds — A flock of good matmen here starts with Highland Park soph Robbie Flax (25-5-2) who qualified last year at the expense of Buffalo Grove's Bob Daulton (21-5), then with the 'Cals. Lake Forest has a good one in Kevin Gaddi (18-6) and so does GBN in Pete Somberg (17-9-1) but the top billing of all would have to go to Warrior Jim Dugo (17-3-5) who won it all in '73.

105 Pounds — Spartan George Messenger (14-6), Little Giant Billy Clark (17-11) and Bison Jim Brough (15-7-2) are the definite frontrunners.

112 Pounds — Grove's Rich Wilhelm (19-9) could hook up with Jim Schweitzer (10-3) of Glenbrook in this division's finale.

119 Pounds — Neal Kendall (16-6-1) won the district last year at 105 but he can garner no better than a third seed now behind Parker Tom Petta (26-0) and GBN's Jack Costo (21-1). Also in contention: Tim Collins (19-6) of Deerfield and possibly Barrington's Mark Ramsland (10-10).

126 Pounds — Rich Moran (15-8-2) of Wheeling is coming on and could capture a crown here. Broncho Kurt Bierbaum (10-5-1) is his major hurdle.

132 Pounds — Look for Deerfield's Meshes (22-2) and Mark Marschewski (17-4) of Lake Zurich and a recent Northwest Suburban Conference victor to face off in this title match.

Something's gotta give! Wheeling, Hersey collide

With Wheeling, Hersey, and Arlington deadlocked for the top spot in the North division of the Mid-Suburban League with 8-2 records, tonight's contest at Wheeling between the Wildcats and the Hersey Huskies is about the most important game either team has played thus far.

"These next two games are the whole ball of wax for us," said Hersey coach Roger Steingraber. "I know it . . . the kids know it. If we can't get fired up for Wheeling and Arlington, I don't know what it will take."

For Wheeling, the game is "do or die." One loss will eliminate Ted Ecker's quintet from title contention.

The primary concern for Ecker this week has been the status of 6-foot-4 forward Bill Pickler, who suffered a severe back bruise in a game two weeks ago.

"Pickler's alright," his coach affirmed. "He's still sore, but he'll be 100 per cent by Wednesday. You know, he means a lot to our team — a lot of rebounding, a lot of scoring, and a lot of defense underneath."

Ecker also has a capable substitute for Pickler, 6-2 junior Mike Brzuskiewicz, who tallied 22 points and 10 rebounds against Rolling Meadows last week.

"I'm certain of using 'Brush' because of what he's done for us," said Ecker.

The Wildcat coach must reckon with Hersey's 6-11 center Dave Corzine. "Everybody figures they have to stop Corzine," Ecker noted, "and that's tough for us since our tallest man is 6-4. But I think our good defense will shut off their other kids."

"If we can do a decent job on the big man," Ecker continued, "we'll be okay."

The Wheeling coach will go with a starting lineup of Pickler, George Kaage, Bill Kenney, Scott Keenan, and Bob Westrich.

Steingraber, the Hersey coach, is still haunted by the memories of the 61-42 loss of Wheeling earlier in the season.

"Their kids came out to play in the second half," Steingraber said, remembering the Huskies' worst defeat ever in conference play. "Kaage got 19 on the second half and made us look bad a couple of times inside."

Hersey will certainly offer a bigger starting lineup this time, with 6-6 Rich Madison, 6-6 Clyde Glass, and Corzine going against the Wildcats.

"Clyde is coming off his best game of the season (12 points and 15 rebounds against Fremd) and Rich gives us more bulk inside," Steingraber said.

Starting guards for Hersey will be Mark Krause and Tim Conrad. Bill Seiler will also see some action, the coach said.

North title scramble offers many possibilities

by ART MUGALIAN

There's a joke going around the Mid-Suburban League's North division this week. And it's not too funny.

It goes like this: If the standings end up with Arlington, Wheeling, and/or Hersey tied for the top spot, the winner will be the first team that submits a reasonable proposal to break the deadlock.

Probably the most legitimate solution to such a log jam would be a three-way duel at dawn. With pistols.

Actually, a triple tie for first place is not all that likely. With each team yet to play two games, Arlington would have to beat Rolling Meadows and lose to Hersey, the Huskies would have to lose to Wheeling, and Wheeling would have to fall to Fremd. Or, Arlington could lose to Rolling Meadows and defeat the Huskies, Hersey could beat Wheeling, and the Wildcats could top Fremd. Either way, the Cardinals, Huskies, and Wildcats would wind up with 10-3 records.

The league's system for breaking ties places premiere importance on wins and losses in one's OWN division. Therefore, since Arlington and Hersey have one loss each in the South, and Wheeling has none, the 'Cats will come out on the poor end of any comparison on that basis.

So, if it ends in a three-way tie, the championship will hinge on the results of the two-game Hersey-Arlington season series, which is the next criterion. Since the Huskies won the first game by seven, if they win, or lose by less than seven, against the Cards, they've got the title.

However, if the Huskies lose by exactly seven points, the next criterion is the number of games won by six points or more in one's own division: That's right.

Two-way ties are also possible — though less interesting. If Arlington and Wheeling win both of their games, the Cardinals will be champs by virtue of their better record in North division games. As a matter of fact, the only way the Wildcats can win the title is if they beat Hersey and Fremd, AND Arlington loses at least once. Even if Arlington loses twice, and Hersey and Wheeling split their remaining games, the 'Cats would come up short since Hersey has the edge in the North games.

Obviously — if it's possible to be obvious at this point — a pair of Huskie victories over Arlington and Wheeling would wrap up the title for Hersey.

The possibilities seem enormous. But one local mathematician has figured that there are only 16 different ways the season could end. That's all.

With tonight's Hersey-Wheeling battle just the beginning, the next two weeks of MSL action should provide plenty of drama, intrigue, and suspense. There will probably be some good basketball, too.

Spartans favored at Wheeling

135 Pounds — Mike Kamins (20-6-1) of Wheeling might have been top man but a nose injury has made him a very doubtful starter. That leaves Barrington's Dirk Vandenberg (6-4) with a nice road to the crown unless possibly Tom Bickner (12-8-2) of Buffalo Grove can knock him off.

145 Pounds — An interesting skirmish developing . . . for second place. GBN's Nick Liakos (24-1-1) has first all but wrapped up while Ted Benson (17-5) of Deerfield unless he drops down, Greg Moll (16-6-2) of Barrington, John MacNaughton (21-6) of the Scouts and Jay Slezak (17-8) of Wheeling tangle for the runnerup berth.

155 Pounds — Dale Cox (14-4-4) of Lake Forest may have an easy path at this weight.

167 Pounds — No one except possibly Deerfield's Dave Getz (9-4) should even mildly challenge returning district champ and conference champ Ken Smith (27-0) of the 'Cats.

185 Pounds — North's defending 167-pound district champ Terry Flannery (17-4) is certified there again but will probably be hiked to this bracket where he heads up a field that also includes Mark McKenzie (18-4-1) of Lake Forest and possibly a sleeper in Wheeling's improving Ed Wargo (17-9-2).

Heavyweight — Kurt Buckowich (21-6) of the Scouts and GBN's Frank Gangware (14-8) will probably scrap in the finals.

At Fair Lanes Bowl

In the Thursday Eye Openers League, Chris Mangle fired a 200 game which was 98 pins over her 112 average. She finished with a 609 series. Other high scorers were Angie Pilcher 524-208, Marilyn Klug 462-174, Jean Brogdon and Esther Soukup 173s. Ann Grimble 189 and Carol Sammons 164. Pam Shell covered the 6-10 split. High series of 207 was rolled by the Golden Girls, while the Sacre Blues had a 758 game.

Illinois gymnasts have head start

Iowa State University has won national collegiate gymnastics titles in two of the past three years. Sister school Iowa University placed a solid eighth behind winning State in 1973.

Could it be that Iowa's college-feeding high schools have finally matched or bettered the caliber of Illinois' prep gymnastics talent?

The answer is a simple and emphatic "NO!"

In fact, the root of Iowa State's success can be traced directly to the Land of Lincoln which 15 members of the Cyclone strongmen call home. Only one Iowa State competitor hails from Hawkeye country.

Cyclone head coach Ed Gagner admits that pre-college gymnastics programs in Iowa are relatively non-existent.

"It's an almost hopeless situation," the 10-year veteran said. "This state is providing only a token situation for gymnastics at the high school level. There's no reason why every school in the state shouldn't have a gym team."

Prospect High School will open its doors to 77 teams at the Illinois state meet in March. Iowa counted just 18 squads in its season climax last year and some of them entered but one or two performers.

Adding further to Iowa's embarrassing prep gymnastics plight is the fact that two of the nation's largest producers of gym equipment are located in the state — the Nissen Corp. of Cedar Rapids and American Athletic Equipment of Jefferson.

A partial answer to the prominence Illinois has enjoyed in the sport of gymnastics on the high school level is located right in the heart of Des Plaines.

The clear-span building at 1300 Oakwood Ave. is the American Academy of Gymnastics — a private organization developed by Leonard Isaacs.

Taking a cue from the highly-prosperous Northwest YMCA program, Isaacs has overcome the obvious pitfalls of time and equipment limitations with his private gymnastics school.

Essentially, the Academy caters to youngsters ranging in age from 8-16, six days a week. At present, cost of the program varies from $22.50 for the basic one-hour a week class to $38 for five hours a week. All classes extend for 10 weeks.

Over 150 gymnasts are currently enrolled at the Academy and they come from as far as Hammond, Ind., Wauconda, Elgin, Grayslake and Lake Bluff.

"Actually we have the facilities for 300-500 kids," Isaacs, a law school grad, said. "We think our costs are rather small compared to some of the other clubs. We set up the system so that kids could almost always afford the program and not consider it a luxury."

The American Academy of Gymnastics is only in its first full year of operation, but the rewards haven't relied on the program's maturity.

The Academy's competitive capabilities were clearly established when the girls' team captured victories at a regional meet in Northbrook in the senior division, a second in the junior bracket and a big first at the junior edition of the Midwest Open earlier this year.

The club's most advanced girls' squad — the Elite team — notched second at the AAU Junior National Championships in Louisville last year and placed third in the YMCA Nationals in New Orleans.

Isaacs and his experienced staff of coaches — Donna Corzo who was the 1967 United States Gymnastics Federation junior all-around champion and Richard Manning — stress fundamentals at all levels of competition.

"There's a certain fear element present in gymnastics," Isaacs said. "It's probably comparable to getting hit on the blindside in football or being beamed in baseball."

"But I think we can control that problem by teaching the ability to withstand the pressure of that fear. Our step-by-step training acclimates the kids into new positions and builds their confidence."

"Our philosophy, as in all sports, is to teach a strong, personal discipline and respect for gymnastics."

The reward? "Gymnastics is a strength-building exercise at any level," Isaacs continued. "It gives you a kinesiology awareness — air sense — that is a carryover into other sports. It teaches you to fall properly, gives you security in any position and is tremendous development for arms, legs, feet and hands."

"We're introducing gymnastics as a simple activity. We're not trick-crazy as much as we are conscious of developing fundamentals. We want the kids to get enjoyment out of it and not consider it drudgery."

By the time Academy-instructed gymnasts enter high school, they should be familiar with competitive pressure and have a fundamental training background.

From there, the kids go on to become prep stars and choice recruiting material for colleges... like Iowa State University.

Hoffman, Formco sweep in Classic

by GENE KIRKHAM
Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows Bowl hosted the Paddock Classic League on Saturday with two teams winning seven points and the standings closing to where five squads are only four points apart. Formco Metal Products was a seven-point winner over Commercial Embroidery with games of 978, 1015, and 951 for a 2950 team total.

Walsh Flyers rally to tie Woodfield Wildcats at 3-3

The energy crisis was in evidence Saturday night in Kenosha as the Woodfield Wildcats saw their 3-1 third period lead result into a 3-3 tie with the Walsh Flyers. The tie extended the Wildcat unbeaten string to six games.

The start of the game was delayed about 30 minutes as the game officials had to get gasoline on the way up from Chicago. The crowd of over 700 partisan Flyers fans had little to cheer about in the first period as they watched the Wildcats score the only goal. Vi LaCroix started the play by going in alone on the Flyer goalie and pulling him far out of his crease with his shot. Dennis Soboj sent the loose puck to Bob Swanson who had an open net to shoot at.

The Wildcats went ahead 2-0 in the second period as LaCroix took a pass from Soboj and beat the Flyer goalie. Later the Flyers scored to make it 2-1 at the end of two periods.

The Wildcats took a 3-1 lead as Soboj passed to Bartlett, on the left point, who let go a low slap shot which was tipped in by Swanson for his second score of the game. With 10 minutes to play the Flyers made it 3-2 as they scored on a power play. In a flurry around the Wildcat net with three minutes to go the Flyers scored the final goal which tied the score 3-3. Neither team was able to score another goal, and the game ended in a draw.

The next Wildcat game will be against the Zion Kings on Saturday Feb. 16 at The Woodfield Hockey Center. For information call 892-3990.

Commercial Embroidery rolled 929, 918, and 904 for 2751. The Formco team was led by Ray Olson's 649 series with games of 232, 223, and 194 with Bob Kula adding 200, 224, and 199 for 623 and Mike Heffner shooting 607 on games of 215, 181, and 211.

After inadvertently using an illegal bowler and having seven points reversed in the standings, Formco is now in second place with 26 points.

Hoffman Lanes was the other seven-point winner as they had an up-and-down series in their match, with Nameless Five.

Hoffman won the first game 874 to 861, then rolled a big 1102 game to win the second and dropped back to 837 to win the third game and the series with a 2833. Randy Aubert rolled 182, 244, and 212 for a 638 series to show the way for Hoffman Lanes who is now tied for fifth place with 2723 points.

Sullivan Pontiac won five of seven points over Gaare Oil Co. with games of 982, 952, and 1011 for a 2945 team series. Gaare rolled 892, 968, and 967 for 2827.

Dick Kamin of Sullivan was the top individual scorer of the night with 893. Kamin missed his 700 series after throwing a double in the tenth and counting seven pins on a high hit. His games were 249, 232, and 218 with one stretch of 13 strikes in a row from the fifth frame of the first game to the fifth frame of the second game.

Al Haase was the leader for Gaare Oil with 217, 214, and 192 for a 615 series. Gaare is now tied for first with 27 points while Sullivan is in sixth with 19 points.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware won five of seven over Kole Realty with games of 1023, 967, and 908 for a 2898 total. Kole Realty won the second game with their 1013 game and totaled 2782 for a team series.

Wally Lofthouse led the scoring for Ace with 217, 214, and 192 for a 623 series with Barry Stjernberg contributing 223, 211, and 173 for 607. Des Plaines is now tied for first with 27 points while Kole is tied for fifth with 23 points.

Next week the league moves on to Ten Pin Bowl with the following games scheduled: Sullivan Pontiac vs. Des Plaines Ace Hardware, Gaare Oil Company vs. Kole Realty, Formco Metal Products vs. Nameless Five, and Hoffman Lanes vs. Commercial Embroidery.

The bug and his bite

Sportsman's notebook

by Bob Holiday

After years and years of using the stuff in various forms and compounds, finally I've had the opportunity to talk directly with one of those mysterious scientific fellows who compound the gunk that we paint, rub or spray on ourselves to keep away the bugs.

His name is Gene Mace and he didn't have a thing to do with that anti-personal spray of the same name. Bugs are his bug, and in only a few minutes of talking, he can tell you more about the things that fly around and bite than you probably want to know.

The bare bones reason that we get bit by any of the insects is that they, the insects, need a "blood meal" before they can reproduce. Now, I am as understanding and cooperative as the next guy in most things, but my own personal attitude is that if my blood is the sole aphrodisiac brother bug can find, then I am recommending celibacy.

Since I was a kid, I'd heard the old idea that if you let the mosquito, or whatever bug was biting, finish filling his belly and fly away unmolested, you wouldn't get a red, itchy welt. That idea probably requires more stoicism than most of us are able to exhibit, which is all right, because, as it turns out, it's another of those "old wives' tales" with no basis in fact. (In the interest of equality, I find it necessary to mention that I have heard a lot more "old husbands' tell me that story than "old wives," but that's another whole argument.)

When a bug sits draining a meal from your jugular, he is also inserting, from his own mouth, a fluid that keeps the blood, your blood, from clotting before he is finished with lunch. When he flies away, you have a protein or allergic reaction to the fluid he left behind. And you get an irritating little bump that requires scratching. So, if you're the generous sort, let him finish his meal, but all you'll be doing is letting him pour more anti-coagulant into the wound.

And a wound, it truly is. The mosquito and the stable fly are a little more humane in their work. They insert a needle-like snout that sucks in the blood like a doctor's syringe. The deer fly, black fly and horse fly, however, come roaring in like a dive bomber, slash open a cut with a front-end saw and then lap up the pool.

I also learned a few other things that may or may not make me a little smarter outdoors. That big, black fly that can chew through three layers of socks and two pairs of jeans to get at ankles is not a black fly... it is the stable fly. The real black fly is much smaller, but even tougher. The "no-see-ums" are sand flies. All of them like you better if you hold still, except the horsefly, or greenhead, which, sportingly, likes a moving target. Black flies like the color blue; mosquitoes prefer any dark color; gnats and midges will drive you zonkers buzzing your head, but they don't bite.

"Off," the repellent that Mace helped develop 17 years ago, uses an ingredient affectionally known as "Deet," because its real name is about this long. Deet was developed by the U.S. government to protect servicemen from malarial mosquitoes in the tropics. The problem with "Off" is that it does keep away the mosquitoes, but the biting flies rather ignore it. So Mace and his associates have now made "Deep Woods Off," which they say repels everything that flies, except, perhaps, pigeons and Kahoutek.

Mace admits that no one is really certain why repellents keep bugs from digging in when they land on protected skin, but speaking as one of several human test animals, he says it works.

"We'd get word at the lab in Racine that the black flies were thick in Maine," he said, "and away we'd go." They would sit in the woods, pants legs rolled up, watching and counting as flies landed on the unsprayed "control" leg and bit; while on the other "treated" leg, they landed, pronounced an audible "yeek!" and flew away. He also notes that in several parks, the "experimenters" were reported to the local rangers as "suspicious," by other hikers. Remarkable.

Some cautions for using spray and lotion type repellents: Never spray your face. Spray your hands and rub your face. Repellents, including "Off," are "plasticizers," which means you'll ruin anything plastic you spray it on. In short, it won't hurt your skin, but it will peel paint! It might smart some if you have a bad sunburn; it tastes terrible, but it's non-poisonous. In fact, Mace says, you'd have to drink three cans of "Off" before you would even get an upset stomach. Although it is perfectly safe for children, it should probably not be sprayed on babies, since they will transfer a small amount to their mouth by way of fingers and toes. Again, it wouldn't hurt, but it ain't chicken soup either.

Scientists admit they don't know why some biting insects prefer to scrounge around in your hairline, while others prefer arms or ankles. And they aren't sure how the bugs find you.

People will tell you that light attracts them, but entomologists believe it is the heat in the light. Although some of their navigation is visual, most believe they are attracted by odor and heat. The carbon dioxide your body gives off is also suspect.

Mosquitoes and flies aren't particularly good fliers, being rather unsound aerodynamically, so, like bumblebees and Midway Airport, a good breeze or rain will shut them down. The rain isn't much help, but you can try to remember to pitch your tent where you can feel a good breeze.

Repellents are usually good for about 12 hours under normal conditions, Mace said. But if you perspire heavily, or go swimming, or if the concentration of bugs is particularly heavy, re-apply about every three hours.

The new stuff, I see by my notes, also repels chiggers and ticks. I guess it will have to do, at least until someone develops an entovasectomy.

-Elgin Larkin District

come from Saxon Gary Evans (4-0), aggressive three-time MSL champ and two-time district qualifier.

112 Pounds — One of the notorious Cortez brothers, Kevin (24-1), goes here for Addison Trail. Only recently he handled one of his chief threats, Schaumburg's Terry Ruddy (22-4-1). There are also Dave Mulcahy (16-7) of the Maroons and Steve Hernandez (12-9-1) of the Royals. Don't rule out Lancer Tom Popowski (19-3) either.

119 Pounds — Ralph Cortez (21-3) will have to hold off Delio Garcia (7-1) of Elgin and Saxon Joe Hannon (17-3), fresh from an MSL tourney conquest.

126 Pounds — Grenadier Rick Morris (18-2) should face Elgin's Eric Leutz (20-5) in the finals. But Lancer Dennis Sorenson (18-7-1) and Schaumburg's Ron Kuchnia (15-8-2) could also have their say about it. The Hawks will add Jim Thomas (17-1 at the soph level) to this tough battle.

132 Pounds — Cougar John Beck (20-1) looked impressive en route to his second conference title last week. His main threats will no doubt come from Elgin's Dennis Sticler (15-8) and Gren Pete Gianaris (17-3-1).

138 Pounds — This weight is totally up for grabs. Kurt Arthofer (11-10-3) has as good a chance as anyone of annexing top honors.

145 Pounds — Things are much tougher here. Leo Montemayor (18-2) would have to be considered a favorite but Larkin has a conference runnerup in Steve Schudell (21-5-1), the Maroons have the number three man from the Upstate in Mark Hattendorf (18-6-1) and Lake Park has Cliff Spatafora (6-2) on the road back.

155 Pounds — Trail's Rich Zeh (22-3) is the man to beat. Elk Grove will send in Tom Balmes (11-2-1) and Conant will put up Dan Szymkowiak (17-5-1) to do the job.

167 Pounds — The runnerup battle would appear to be between Warren Skaman of the Trail Blazers (16-7) and Ralph Hansen (16-5-3) of the Lancers. Elgin's Jim Tanner (22-2) is a newly crowned conference champ and favored to win it all meanwhile. Grove's Steve Klitzka (8-6) is coming down from 185 and could be in it.

185 Pounds — Elgin's Mark Stettner (23-2) was runnerup in conference as was Saxon Maury Bello (12-5). Kevin Koppari (14-9-1) is another possibility but the class of this division is still Trail's Mark Zinni (24-1).

Heavyweight — The top seed will go to Lancer John Dettterback (21-0-4). One of his ties was with Cougar Bob Zepeda (16-5-3), whom Grenadier Earl Jursich (15-5-1) beat out for the MSL meet's runner-up slot. Andy Einwick (21-4-1) of the Royals, Elgin's Mark McDonald (17-7) and Saxon Ken Jaffke (5-4) add further complications to a tough showdown here.

Gross, DeGuida battle at Ridgewood the Rebels — both recent conference runnerups — or from View's Guy Semar (15-8). Jim Bethell (9-4-1) of Prospect also has potential if he is healthy again, and vet Jay Check (14-9) of East can't be ruled out either.

126 Pounds — Not an especially strong weight. The best bet is Ridgewood's Tri-County champ Mike Doti (24-3) although Knight Dave Oravec (12-7) also has to be considered.

132 Pounds — Again not a real strong division and again a Rebel, Ted Bourgart (19-4-1), would seem to have the edge. Also in the running are Falcon Rich Acosta (17-8) and West's Brad Bonniwell (10-4-1).

138 Pounds — Another Ridgewood entry, Gary Carr, will take a perfect 24-0 record in. Last year he was bumped off in the semis by Prospect's Randy Cherwin (15-9-1) who may be getting untracked now after a slow start. Forest View has Dennis Beach (6-1-1) coming back off an injury.

145 Pounds — Paul Berner (11-4-1) of Maine West appears to be the choice in another well-balanced field.

155 Pounds — Norseman Mike Schumacher (22-2) and Mike Mandolini (18-8) of the Dons are likely heading for a showdown. Mandolini just repeated as Suburban Catholic champ and qualified at the district last year at 145. Warrior Roger Herrera (9-4) is also in the running.

167 Pounds — John Skoulios (18-2-1) of the Hawks is the top nominee. His chief opposition is expected to come from Bob Kelley (16-3) of Maine North.

185 Pounds — Notre Dame's Al Marzano (25-2) is the class here. He is also a two-time SCC kingpin and will be gunning for repeat qualification. Tim Starck (15-3) of Maine South also has good credentials and Knight Steve Emil (10-8-1) is another with possibilities if he is healthy.

Heavyweight — A good field starts with West's Stan Cordis (16-3) and runs through Falcon Mike Petran (15-5) and East's Ron Grant (10-1-1) to Tim Jackson (18-5) of the Dons.

Five indoor meets—one area winner

by ART MUGALIAN
Track & Field Editor

The indoor track season is in full swing in the Mid-Suburban League. Five meets last week produced one area winner and several top individual performances.

On Thursday, Conant and Palatine locked horns in a triangular meet which also included the trackmen from Maine North. Joe Johnson's Pirates edged the Cougars of Ron Gummerson for first place and the Maine North Norsemen finished third. Palatine had 54 points, Conant 51, and Maine had 25.

Leading the way for the Pirates were Dave Tehle, who captured the two-mile run with a 10:01.6 time, and Mike Murphy, with first place finishes in the high jump (5-10) and the long jump (19-5). Paul Kearns took a first in the mile event with a 4:37.4 clocking.

Rich Falbo contributed heavily to Palatine's running supremacy with a second place in the 440-yard dash (:57.8) and one leg of the Pirates' second-place finish in the mile relay (3:56). Other runners in that race for Palatine were Jim Constantino, Jim Shaffer, and Clark Rasmussen.

Falbo also took second in the high jump (5-2). Gene Mollenkamp placed second in the long jump (18-10) and second in the 50-yard low hurdles (:06.6), and John Thullen finished right behind Kearns in the mile (4:45.7). Shaffer captured a third in the 440 with a time of :58 and Mollenkamp was third in the 50-yard high hurdles at :07.2.

Rasmussen won the 880-yard run with a time of 2:07.3 and he took a third in the 50-yard dash at :06.9.

Conant's strength showed itself in the pole vault and the shot put. Doug Paape cleared the bar at 12-6 and Fred Niloff and Scott Clark each achieved 12-9 as the Cougars wrapped up the top three spots. Charlie Redinger threw the shot 44-9½ for first place, Dave Johnson heaved it 43-6½, and Steve Kaminski reached 43-1 to give Conant the first three places in that event.

The Cougars' Len Olson won the 50-yard dash with a clocking of :05.6, Dan Kosrow took first in the 440 with a :55.3, and Olson, Kosrow, Dave Mansell, and Bob Every teamed up to win the mile relay at 3:45.3.

Jeff Brandl came in second in the high hurdles with a :06.8, and third in the low hurdles at :06.6. Bill Fasig captured third place spots in the high jump (5-0) and the long jump (18-7). Dave Elderkin finished third in the mile event with a 4:46.8.

Palatine's meet on Saturday found the Pirates finishing third with 35 points behind Bloom's 138, Harlan's 45, and ahead of Niles North's 22. Tehle was the only individual winner for Joe Johnson's team with a 2:05 in the 880. The 880 relay team of Mike McCostlin, Bob Castle, Mollenkamp, and Constantino gained points with a 1:43.5 clocking.

Kearns took a second place in the two-mile with a time of 4:38.3. Mollenkamp captured a second by running the 60-yard high hurdles in :06.3, and Murphy took second in the high jump at 5-10. Mollenkamp also finished third in the 50-yard low hurdles with a :07.7. The Pirate mile relay team — Falbo, Shaffer, Thullen, and Rasmussen — ended up third with a 3:59.6.

Fremd opened its season Saturday with a second place finish (42 points) behind Glenbrook North (59½). Niles East came in third (35½).

The Vikings of coach Pat Bregan captured three firsts in the running events: Wilson Fieldhouse ran the two-mile in 9:52.7, Dave Scott took the 880 with a time of 2:08.2, and Dave Wickham won the 440 at :58.2 pace.

Fremd's Eric Inbody finished second in the 880 (2:08.2) and second in the mile (4:46.1). Scott took third spot in the mile (4:46.1) and Steve Whited ran second in the 50-yard high hurdles (:08.4). Other second-placers for the Vikings were Jeff Overson in the long jump (19-7) and Grant McNeerney in the pole vault (12 feet).

The results of Rolling Meadows' first indoor meet were Wheaton North 64, Glenbard North 49, and the Mustangs 24. Joe Vitton's trackmen took three firsts and a pair of third place spots in Thursday's action. Greg Bowen ran a :05.8 fifty-yard dash for top honors, John Sloan took first with a shot toss of 55-9½, and Mark Harris pole vaulted 12-6, good for a first place finish.

Jim Hupp ran third in the 440-yard dash (:57.9) and Mike Mattheis came in third in the 60-yard low hurdles (:08.1).

Hoffman leads by two; L-Tran rolls big 2893

by GENE KIRKHAM

Bowling at Elk Grove Bowl on Sunday, the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League again saw the leadership change as Hoffman Lanes moved back into first place by two points.

Scoring was big with L-Tran Engineering beating their previous high team series with a 2893 on games of 1005, 932, and 956, for a new season high.

L-Tran was a five point winner over Arlington Park Towers who rolled 921, 999, and 919 for a 2799 series which was second only to L-Tran.

L-Tran's Isobel Kosi led the individual scoring with games of 238, 213, and 184 for a 635 total. Marlis Pleckhardt had 220, 177, and 209 for a 606, Toshi Inahara had a 201 game and a 569 series and Vi Douglas had 534.

Des Plaines Lanes and Thunderbird Country Club each won seven points as Ten Pin Bowl hosted the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League Saturday.

Des Plaines led the scoring for the night in their sweep over Franklin - Weber as they opened up with a big 1066 first game and followed with 903 and 888 for a 2657 team total.

-Hersey mat district

how the Hersey district looks down the line:

98 Pounds — Dundee freshman Rick Fitzgerald (18-5-1) is an excellent prospect who took second in the state junior high meet last year. Husky Joe Rizza (16-4) lost out early in the loop meet and should be anxious to make amends. Other possibilities are Gary Holub (14-9-1) of Arlington, Jim Carlstrom (19-10-1) of Meadows and perhaps Lance Gackowski (14-13-1) of the Pirates.

105 Pounds — Crown's Jerry Sandman (25-1) would have to be billed as the class of the class. Hersey's Don Sorenson (16-8) came on strong at conference time but Palatine's Jim Hanetho (18-5-2) didn't. They'll probably tangle with Dundee soph Dave Helmski (22-1-1), a returning district champ, for that other berth. Don't count out Fremd's Paul Morales (17-7) either.

112 Pounds — Arlington's Mike Barry (19-3-1) heads up the list. Dan Loecco (11-9-3) bumped him off last week and is also in the race, as are Mike Padder (15-9) of Dundee, Roy Carlstrom (17-10-2) of the Mustangs, and Pirate Paul Bordenkircher (10-5-1).

119 Pounds — This one looks like a tough struggle for second place with Tim Marwitz (23-1) of Viator latching on to the number one rung. Top contestants include Roger Matix (18-9-2) of Meadows, Mike Czarnecki (15-11) of Hersey, Mike Carbock (17-5) of Crown and Dennis Kalas (15-5) of Dundee.

128 Pounds — Conference champ Tom Helmski (19-2-1) of Dundee has this one pretty much wrapped up. Other contenders are Husky Mike Pusatera (11-8-2), Fremd's Dan Neubauer (12-8-1), and Pirate Chuck Tuttle (9-5-2).

132 Pounds — Again Dundee is in the driver's seat with Steve Penley (20-4-1), a returning district champ who took fourth in the sectional last year. Crown has Brad Kampas (16-7) who wrestled up most of the season and Fremd has Dan Lynch (17-9).

138 Pounds — The nod at this level goes to Palatine's John Loneragan, (23-6), a returning district champ who just annexed a loop title. Others in the running are Pete Martin (12-3-3) of Meadows, Mark Furlong (14-6-1) of the hosts, Low Puls (15-6-2) of Dundee and Arlington's John Schroeder (14-6).

145 Pounds — Pirate Randy McAlister (23-2) had a 21-match winning streak interrupted and lost out on the conference title last week, but he's a state qualifier who should be tough to beat from here on out. His chief competition at Hersey will be Eric Strutz (16-7) of the hosts and Scott Bittner (13-8-1) of Arlington.

155 Pounds — A good race could shape up here although Pirate Lon Marchel (23-4) a loop champ and returning district titlist has the edge. Herb Darmofal (17-4-1) of Arlington, Jeff Svensson (15-7) of Fremd, Dundee's Rich Besinger (9-7-5) and Crown soph Mike Compton are all in the running.

167 Pounds — A real good battle could develop here. The contenders include Tom Bullen (15-5-2) of Fremd, Jim Stancrak (15-6-2) of Arlington, Brian Nelson (16-5-1) of Hersey, John Breen (15-5) of St. Viator, Blaine Domich (14-9) of Dundee and Rich Murren (13-8-1) of Crown are all in the running.

185 Pounds — Musky Jeff Reinhard (17-3) has a reasonably clear path here. Fremd's Gary Peterson (17-6) is probably his chief opposition.

Heavyweight — Anything goes with the big boys. Dundee's Marc Bennett (12-7-1) will get top seed if he competes but has been troubled by an injured shoulder. The rest of the entries have average records or below with possibly Arlington's Bill Riess (11-12-2) heading up the field.

Elk Grove, Palatine, Prospect gain victories at Ice Spectrum

Elk Grove, Palatine, Prospect and Barrington were winners this past weekend in high school hockey at the Arlington Ice Spectrum.

Five goals and three assists by Jere Weber helped Prospect smash Wauconda, 10-1. Terry Cunningham had three goals and three assists for the Knights. Bill Iverson and Rich Carlson provided the other goals.

Larry Misch scored four goals as Elk Grove won over Fremd, 4-2. Joe Dances, Jim Samuels, Tom Balcer, Bob Brum and Bob Morika scored the other Green-dier goals. Jim Hoss scored twice for Fremd.

Mark Langer had two goals and Mark Dietrich one as Palatine blanked Forest View, 3-0. In the other game, Barrington beat Crystal Lake, 4-0.

New standings are Barrington 12-3, Palatine 11-3, Elk Grove 11-3, Prospect 10-5, Fremd 7-8, Crystal Lake 5-4-1, Forest View 2-12-1 and Wauconda 0-15.

Saturday's games will feature Fremd vs. Barrington (4 p.m.), Elk Grove vs. Forest View (5:30 p.m.), Wauconda vs. Palatine (7 p.m.) and Crystal Lake vs. Prospect (8:30 p.m.).

Arlington holds baseball sign-up

Registration for Arlington Heights Boys Baseball will be held at Recreation Park on Saturday, Feb. 16. Hours for registration will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. All boys who will be between the ages of 8 and 16 by July 31, 1974 are eligible to play.

Boys who have never played in AHBB before must bring their birth certificate with them. In addition, a parent or guardian must attend the registration to sign up the boy, and one parent from each family must sign up to help in the program.

Regular fees for AHBB will be as follows: $11 for the first boy and $7 for each of the other boys in the family. If more than four boys in a family play ball, there will be no registration fee for them. In addition to the fee, each boy must buy six pancake tickets at $1.25 each.

One parent from each family must help in the program in some capacity or pay an additional $15 per boy. There are many things a mother or father can volunteer for: managers or coaches are usually needed at all levels; people are needed to work on equipment, scorekeeping, umpires, building committee, field development, tryout committee, office help or program book.

If you have any questions or are in need of additional information please call Mert Taylor, at the AHBB League office, 392-0975.

Kennel Club figures show poodles popular

Top ten — Figures released by the American Kennel Club show that Poodles continued in 1973 to be the most popular breed. The total number registered for the year was 193,400, despite a 25,499 drop-off from the previous year.

Next in line were German Shepherds, 90,907; Irish Setters, 54,211, up to third from last year's fifth place; Beagles in fourth with 54,125; Dachshunds, 51,000; Miniature Schnauzers, 41,745; St. Bernards, 35,397; Doberman Pinschers, 34,169, up from 10th; Labrador Retrievers, 33,575, and in 10th place the Cocker Spaniels with 31,158, up from 11th place.

In 1973, breeds in the Sporting and Working groups compiled higher registration totals than in 1972, while the other four groups had combined totals less than the year before. Sporting group breeds, for the second consecutive year, recorded a 12.1 per cent increase in registrations over the prior year.

Just in case someone wants to know, there were 1,099,850 dogs registered in 1973 compared to 1,101,943 in 1972, a two-tenths of one per cent decrease.

Think snow — As if we had not had enough. However, this weekend, Feb. 16 and 17, it will be mighty important to the sled dog racers up at Channel Lake.

The 1974 Fishing Derby and Winter Festival will be on for both days with the sled dog races starting each day at 12 noon.

Location of the event will be at the south end of Channel Lake, off of Rte. 173, three miles west of Antioch. For more information, call Bill Brook, 312/395-2700, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., or Larry Masek, Midwest Sled Dog Club president, at 312/356-7448.

Meeting for Shih Tzu owners — The Chicagoland Shih Tzu Club will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 26, at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library at 8 p.m.

Owners, as well as people interested in the breed, are welcomed to attend. If you want more information, call Ruth V. Roath at 312/653-3391.

Dalmatian owners take note — There will be a Fun Match held by the Chicagoland Dalmatian Club on Sunday, March 3, at Prospect High School, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Classes will include a Sweepstakes, conformation and obedience. All judging will start at 12 noon with registration from 10 to 11:30 a.m. The entry fee is $2.50 and all entries will be at the gate.

The public is invited and admission is $1.00 for adults, with children free.

For answers to questions, contact Norma Bailey, match secretary, at 312/289-7992.

Barks & Bays — Have you checked that Christmas puppy's collar? Too often owners forget that the dog's neck is growing larger. A correct fit would enable you to easily slip your fingers under the collar.

We have what it takes to keep up your car at Robert Hall Village!

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW ABOUT CONSERVING ELECTRICITY.

Forgotten filters can cost you money.

Since filters are usually out of sight, they're usually out of mind. That is, until you notice something wrong with your heating or air conditioning. Then you may find a dirty filter behind it.

Dust or lint on filters reduces your system's ability to move heated or cooled air.

It's a good idea to check your filters every 30-60 days. To remind yourself, you may want to do it the same day you pay your fuel bill. If the filter is dirty, clean or replace it. Clean filters also help keep your home cleaner. This principle applies essentially to all heating fuels—electricity, gas or oil.

Don't forget the filter on your clothes dryer either. Clean it after every load to keep your dryer in top operating condition. Maintaining clean filters is only one area where we have information that can help you conserve energy. If you would like our booklet "101 Ways to Conserve Electricity at Home," write Commonwealth Edison, Department AV, P.O. Box 767, Chicago, Illinois 60690. We'll send it to you free.

Follow the rules when boating

Spring is almost here and, for you boaters, here's a review of boating's basic safety rules from the Johnson Motors News Bureau.

Suppose you're on your favorite lake and you suddenly see a boat ahead and to the right of you. As you continue, you realize you're on a collision course. What should you do?

You should make sure that there isn't a collision, because the other boat has the right of way. If he is ahead and to the right, he's in your danger zone, so it's your job to avoid the collision. He should remain on course and maintain speed, while you slow down or steer around him.

If you're backing up, the stern of the boat becomes the bow when determining the danger zone. Ahead and to the right really depends on which way you're going.

There's an old boating adage that power gives way to sail and that large gives way to small. This generally holds true. If you're out in your outboard rig, and there's a sail boat near, it's your job to avoid the sail, and you've got to be careful with your wake, too. Rowboats also have the right of way.

But don't carry this to extremes. If you're in your outboard rig, and a freighter is steaming down on you, don't expect him to give way. You're much more maneuverable than he is and should move out of his way.

If you see a boat heading right towards you so there's danger of a head-on collision, it's up to both of you to change course to avoid the collision, and it's best to steer to the right, so the boats pass port-to-port.

When you're passing a slower boat, should you pass on the right or left? It really doesn't matter, but the boat being passed has the right-of-way, so be sure to keep well away and watch your wake. You're responsible for your wake and any damage it does. Again, the boat being passed should maintain its speed and course.

Be equally careful around fishermen. You want to make sure you don't upset their boat, or that your prop and their lines don't become close friends. Monofilament line isn't easy to unwind from a prop shaft.

If the water is very calm and much lighter in one area, it is a sign of shallow water. The deeper the water, the darker the color. A break in the current, eddies or turbulent water may mean there are submerged logs or rocks.

Of course, any boat must be equipped with the required safety items: like life preservers for every passenger, fire extinguisher, proper lights, whistle or horn. No boater would want to be without an anchor, compass, extra line, tool kit and a paddle or other form of auxiliary power. Flashlight, spare can of gas, and bilge pump are things that hopefully won't ever be needed, but are indispensable when they are.

Efficiency highlights Evinrude models

Eighteen outstanding and efficient outboards for 1974 have been introduced by Evinrude Motors in Milwaukee. Included are engineering advancements, new styling, thrifty performance and electrical diversity, suited for every imaginable aspect of watersport.

Topping the line is the '74 135 hp "Silver Starlite," which highlights a brilliant silver finish, a standard, factory installed "Power Trim and Tilt," stainless steel (SST) cupped propeller and a 12 ampere alternator.

The cupped Teflon coated SST propeller enables the customer to obtain proper setup and propeller selection for better operating efficiency, while the 12 amp alternator doubles the usual amperage output for the expanded use of electrical instruments and boating lights.

Evinrude's new low-profile 1974 9.9 Sportwin and 15 hp Fastwin are both three inches narrower and two inches shorter, fore and aft, over last year's 9.5 Sportwin. Both the all new 9.9 and 15 are identical in appearance and weight; the 9.9 Sportwin uses a .41 gear ratio at 5,000 revolutions per minute — the Fastwin develops 15 hp at 6,000 rpm. Both engines are equipped with a splined propeller shaft and propeller hub, eliminating the necessity of a drive-pin. Carburetors on both models have been placed "up front" for a clean, wasteless fuel flow directly into the cylinders.

The '74 Evinrude Triumph 70 steps up five horsepower over last year's Triumph 65 by further refinement of the exhaust system and improvements in the inner-exhaust housing. The new Triumph 70 sports a more efficient combustion chamber and a larger capacity water pump that supplies a higher flow of water at increased speeds.

Diversifying Evinrude's '74 line is the all new, all electric "Scout" outboard, designed to aid the angler in the silent positioning of his craft. The "Scout" at full throttle draws a maximum 20 amps, through a 12 volt system, producing a 12 pound thrust. Features include a 10 degree angled propeller drive, LEXAN polycarbonate propeller, 360 degree steering, a quick shaft adjustment for desired depth and a sturdy design for either bow or deck mounting.

Stylishness and the right match for any boat and motor combination is Evinrude's new 1974 "Sport" line. The "Sport" row includes Evinrude's V-4 cylindered 135 hp Strangler, the in-line, three cylinder 70 hp Hustler and the twin cylindered 50 hp Sizzler. Each has its own "personalized" styling with a brilliant metallic blue, blinding white and bright red trim finish. All other innovations incorporated on the regular 135, 70 and 50 hp Evinrudes will also be found on the Sport line.

Increased strength and durability are the high points of Evinrude's new V-4

Starlites; 135, 115 and 85 hp. A new and improved crankshaft with larger crankpins and crankpin bearings adds more crankshaft counterweight to give the V-4's smoother running through the operating range. A new piston alloy has been developed for the V-4's which exhibits higher strength for high operating temperatures. Notable features include thrust-pin steering, programmed tilt lock, breakerless CD ignition, pressure backed piston rings, fixed idle jets, and adjustable bolt-on stern brackets.

Now in its third straight successful year, Evinrude's '74 Lark 50 hp is classified as a "fuel-miser," twin-cylinder, loop-charged powerplant. Idle speed carburetor adjustments on the Lark 50 employ a desensitized separate needle valve to improve settings.

Thus, individual adjustments on the carburetors can be made simply by using a screw driver through access plugs in front of the air silencer, resulting in more setting accuracy and less opportunity of falling out of adjustment. Drainless operation, a sound sealed exhaust water shield and a one piece gearcase are top features on the Evinrude Lark 50.

A new improved low tension ignition system highlights Evinrude's 1974 40 hp Norseman, offering more dependable starts and lower maintenance. The electric start Norseman will be equipped with a five ampere alternator, employing a new type rectifier to keep the battery charged all season long under average use. The Norseman incorporates a new, stronger and stiffer crankshaft with larger journal bearings, providing more counter balance and a smoother running engine. Aiding this new stronger crankshaft, the driveshaft has been enlarged adding to power-train durability.

Evinrude's "family-size" 1974 Sportster 25 hp is equipped with the ability to burn lead-free gasoline and features pressure backed piston rings, stainless steel drive and propeller shaft, low tension ignition and more. The Sportster's lightweight makes it Evinrude's largest portable outboard. It is also available in both electric and rope starting.

Evinrude's '74 Fisherman 6 hp incorporates rubber sound isolation, twist grip steering and speed control, and a sound sealed motor cover. It also features co-pilot control, a remote six-gallon fuel tank, and adapts to accessory top-mounted controls and optional remote steering and speed control.

Evinrude's 1974 4 hp Light and Yachtwin employ a completely new choke plate developed to improve starting characteristics by reducing the possibility of flooding. On both the angled-drive Lightwin and 90 degree Yachtwin, a new LEXAN plastic propeller offers extreme shock resistance and a reduction on gear-train loads through low inertia.

Evinrude's smallest internal combustion outboard, the 1974 Mate 2 hp, includes a new, more effective choke accounting for much easier starting. New limit stops have been added to the high and low speed needle valve adjustments, keeping the settings from extreme maladjustment. An automatic adjustable co-pilot provides "hands-off" trolling, while a new stern bracket and clamp screw offer a stronger and more stable rest on the transom. The Evinrude Mate 2 hp weighs only 24 pounds.

No fuel worries, agree boat dealers

by LINDA FISCHER

Worried about fuel for your pleasure boating this season?

Don't be!

According to several area boat dealers who have kept alert eyes on the energy situation, there will be enough fuel for boaters in 1974.

"The Federal Energy Office (F.E.O.) has assured the boating industry the F.E.O. regulations which went into effect Jan. 11 'do not discriminate among classes of users who purchase gasoline at a retail level."

"This means all retail gasoline customers, including boat owners, will be given equal and fair treatment at the gas pump," said Edward Hansen, president of the Midwest Boat Show and owner of Hansen Marine in McHenry.

Edward Hansen

If gasoline is available for cars, it will be available for boat users, he added.

Not that boats use a lot of gas. One half of one per cent of the nation's fuel goes for boats, noted Butch Autschbach of Seyl Outboard Motors and Boats in Ingleside. That's probably less than that spilled from heat-expanded fuel and overfilled automobile tanks. Boats use less than one half a tank per automobile in the United States per year.

Dealers are finding people do not believe there is a gas shortage. "It's a hoax," was the comment from John Moulis of Fox Lake Harbor in Fox Lake and Barry Paulsen of Munson Marine in Round Lake. "Buyers are intelligent enough to realize there will be gas," Moulis said.

"People are buying boats and worrying about gas later," noted Dick English of English Marine in Mundelein. "In fact, out of the Chicago area people are having no problem finding fuel."

Paulsen summed up the dealers' comments: "There will be gas for all."

Some dealers who sell gasoline at their marinas do expect, however, to have their supply trimmed. Ten per cent less than last year is the latest word received by Autschbach. "Of course, we were on allotment last year also. Then we got the same amount as we received in 1972."

Also, expecting a cut is Frank Waters of Pistakee Lake Marina in Fox Lake. "I've had indications I will get a good supply, but it may not be 100 per cent of last year."

Moulis, however, said Fox Lake Harbor expected to get the same supply of gas as last year.

Boating enthusiasts should expect to pay more for their pleasure this summer. As Paulsen explained, inboard/outboard engines consume about 20 gallons per weekend of riding. If gasoline goes up to 55 or 60 cents a gallon, the total weekend cost could be up $2 or $3. "But people are willing to pay the prices," Moulis said.

All the dealers agreed people could do just as much boating as before even if gas supplies are down. It all means a little conservation and advance planning. The two most prevalent tips from the dealers were to throttle back and avoid unnecessary idling.

"People know they can't be as extravagant this year. Shorter distances and lower speeds will be standard," Waters said.

Shorter trips should benefit such recreational areas as the Chain O' Lakes. It's well within a tankful of gas from the northwest suburbs for boaters to leave Friday and return Sunday. People may turn to picnics and swimming from boats on smaller lakes rather than trying long distance hauls, Waters feels.

The best advice the dealers could give was to keep those engines well tuned. "The most important point is — don't waste fuel!" Hansen advised. "If you keep your boat and motor in top shape and run them carefully, you will be surprised at the fuel (and money) you will save."

Sinking feeling

Boaters should always keep a sharp lookout for floating debris of any size. There is an old saying that you only see about one-third of an iceberg because the rest is under water.

According to boating authorities, the same could be true of what appears to be a small floating object. It could be large enough to damage a hull.

Midwest Boat Show—a boat buyer's market place

The Chicago area's first 1974 boat show will drop anchor for a 10-day stay Friday at the Arlington Park Exposition Center, Arlington Heights.

"The fifth annual Midwest Boat Show will give boating buffs and outdoor aficionados a head start in obtaining the latest in marine, water sport and fishing equipment," says Edward P. Hansen, Midwest Boat Show president.

"Our show is traditionally a boat buyer's market place where people come to shop for and buy their boats and boating equipment," according to Hansen.

Hansen says boating is one of America's most popular activities and that more than 47 million persons participated in recreational boating last year. They used 9,435,000 pleasure craft and spend more than $4 billion for boats, motors, accessories, safety equipment, fuel and related items.

Some 100 exhibitors from all over the Midwest will "dock" in the 125,000-square-foot exhibition area, displaying cabin cruisers, outboard motors, sailboats, houseboats, iceboats, rowboats and canoes, pontoon cruisers, paddle boats and rafts of all types as well as trailers and docking equipment and boating accessories.

Water sport and fishing buffs, according to Hansen, also will find plenty of new items including the latest in skis, scuba diving and snorkeling gear, underwater photography equipment, fish detection gear, rods, reels, lures, bait and tackle boxes, scalers, nets, hooks and lines.

Highlights of the show will include the Resort Hotel Association's $100,000 "Holiday for Two" Vacation Drawings, hundreds of daily door prizes, and nautical fashion shows.

The "Holiday for Two" drawings' grand prize is a 7-day/6-night Disneyworld vacation for two, including transportation, deluxe hotel/motel accommodations, tickets to Disneyworld and $100 in "Holiday dollars." Hundreds of other vacations for two will be awarded in any one of 28 U.S. cities, including some in Hawaii. Drawings are limited to adults 21 years or over (one entry to a family).

Daily door prizes will include boating accessories and water sport and fishing gear, with a grand door prize of Modar's Triton VHF-FM 25 watt Marine Radio-telephone with 12½ channel capability, delivered with channels 6, 16, WX and both offset crystals.

Nautical garb for men, women, teens and children from Montgomery Ward's Randhurst Shopping Center store will be modeled in six fashion shows held on weekends in the Exposition Center's dining room. Shows will be given at 7 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sun-

The Arlington Park Exposition Center is a stop on the North Western Railway. It is near the Northwest Tollway (Interstate 90) and Interstate 14 and Illinois 53 routes.

Boat show hours will be 6 to 10 p.m. opening day, Friday; noon to 10 p.m. Saturdays; noon to 7 p.m. Sundays, and 4 to 10 p.m. weekdays.

Admission will be $2.50 for adults and $1 for children.

TWINS DEBBY and Darcy model the latest in sportswear for boating enthusiasts from Montgomery Ward-Randhurst which will give weekend nautical fashion shows at the Midwest Boat Show. Fashion show times are 7 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays, all in the Exposition Center's dining room.

Coast Guard to give free boating course

A free basic boating course will be given each day of the Midwest Boat Show by Coast Guard officers.

Recreational boatmen will be able to attend the one-hour course at 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, Feb. 16-17, 23-24 and at 7 p.m. on weekdays, Feb. 15, 17-22.

The course is offered and instructed by Chief Steven Cuggino and his staff, petty officers Homer Ward and Robert Murphy. The three Coast Guard petty officers operate the Coast Guard Boating Information Center at Fox Lake.

The course was designed to teach the fundamentals of basic boating to the recreational boatman. Armed with the basic fundamentals, the pleasure boater will be less apt to get into any serious trouble, which all too often spoils a beautiful weekend.

The course was also designed to whet the appetite for the more advanced courses offered by the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the Power Squadron, the American Red Cross and the Department of Conservation. In addition, there will be a continuous showing of all the latest boating safety films.

Trolling tips

To help make fishing from a boat more productive, here are some tips for the most effective use of your outboard:

- Explore a new lake first. Cruise around and note fish covers, shady spots, deep holes. Consult a topographic map of the area.

- Check to see if state regulations permit trolling.

- By trolling with the lure in the water, you're covering a lot of territory. Use a deep weedless plug. If this fails, try a shallow diving plug. Vary trolling speeds. Check plug action.

- When fish are found, anchor and cast in that area. When the action stops, start trolling again.

- Reverse trolling is one of the best techniques for fishing the shoreline. You can go slower and work an area more carefully.

- When fishing weed beds or holes in open water, use the outboard to run upwind of the area, then drift.

In a nutshell, if you have an outboard, use it. Explore. Troll. Work a shoreline. Cast.

Fuel tips

Nelson Marine in Des Plaines offers these 10 pointers to conserve fuel while enjoying your boating.

1. Reduce to a comfortable planing level; don't run at full throttle.
2. Do your boating closer to home.
3. Keep your engine well-tuned.
4. Keep hull clean to reduce friction.
5. Plan your trip carefully to reduce running time.
6. Avoid quick take-offs.
7. Shut off engine when at dock or at rest.
8. Distribute weight properly — don't overload your boat.
9. Be sure your engine matches your boat.
10. Use the right propeller and keep it free of nicks and bends.

Heavy!

One of the things that can restrict a boat's performance is excess weight. According to authorities, it's a quite reliable rule of thumb that each 100 pounds added to a boat's load will cut top speed by one mile per hour.

Enjoy yourself while you beat inflation with the economical

Cruisers, runabout new at Glastron

A wealth of deluxe new features highlight the 33-model line from Glastron for '74. Among the many all-new models are an 18-foot Glastron/Carlson with jet or stern drive, six new cruisers from 20 to 25 feet long including three in the new 250 Caribbean series, and a new 14-foot open-bow runabout designed for the young boating family.

A new swim platform enhances the stern of Glastron/Carlson's CV-19 S/S jet drive and V-184 Crestlite jet drive, with a new boarding ladder giving easy access from the water to the V-184 stern drive. The new boarding ladder is standard on several stern drive models.

Open bow models ranging from 14' to 19' including outboard and stern drives sport the optional new tonneau bow cover. Hardtops are optional on five models, with or without side and stern canvas.

Leading the field of new boats for 1974 is the luxurious 18-foot CV-18 S/S from Glastron/Carlson, in stern drive or jet with custom metalflake finish in blue or apricot and white. Seating includes wraparound T-buckets for four in addition to two stern buckets.

There's a sweeping handrail from tinted windshield to stern, with built-in transom steps for easy access from the water. A molded ABS instrument panel features custom instrumentation, locking glove box and deluxe grab bar.

Glastron's V-184 Crestlite comes to the forefront with its optional hardtop, new swim platform on the jet drive and new stern boarding ladder on the stern drive model, all on Glastron's Deep Vee hull.

Other standard features include two laydown sleeper seats, two stern buckets, polypropylene cut-pile carpet, all color-coordinated with the fashionable brown and white hull.

An all-time classic, the V-187 Swinger stern drive sports a new boarding ladder as standard equipment, plus optional hardtop and new tonneau bow cover. Available in green and white, this super family boat features upholstered forward benches, siesta lounge seats and two bucket seats aft, all color-coordinated. There's side ski storage, bow locker, teak step pads and self-draining deck.

The jet-drive CV-19 S/S from Glastron/Carlson is back with new swim platform adding even more elegance to this performance leader. Luxury interior features molded ABS dash with full instrumentation, deluxe grab bar, cut pile carpeting, forward ski locker and lockable glove compartment. Wraparound T-bucket seats with wraparound jump seats in the stern and padded motor cover for lounging are all color-coordinated in custom metalflake gold or bronze matching the gleaming hull.

All of the new cruisers feature large cuddy cabins with bunks ranging from 6' 2" on the 20' to 22' cruisers with two bunks a full 84" long on all three cruisers in the V-250 Caribbean series. Star of the new series is the V-254 Command Bridge. Standard equipment includes recessed instrumentation, dual station controls, heavy duty ladder with handrail, and deflector windshield. The ABS instrument panel is hinged and features aircraft type quick release locks to provide ready access to wiring, instruments and controls for service.

Softtops are standard on most Glastron outboards. Glastron stern drives carry a softtop standard as well as command console instrumentation with accessory switches, speedometer, tachometer, electric horn, electric bilge blower and pump.

Accessories for stern drives include side and stern canvas, hardtops on several models, full camper canvas, and special galley/dinettes with four seating options on the Caribbean cruisers.

Safety features on all Glastrons include approved foam flotation, mechanical steering, lighting, bow eye and ski eyes. All models of Glastron boats are BIA certified.

ALL NEW FOR 1974 is this sporty 14' open-bow runabout from Glastron. The V-140 Skiffite with fastback stern design features tempered glass walk-through windshield, fold-down lounge seats, bow seat and locker, side ski storage, marine vinyl carpeting and bow rails. Other standard equipment includes sportwheel with mechanical steering, ski eyes, bow eye, marine hardware, button down stern curtain and inland lighting.

Johnson offers first electric outboard, new low-horsepower fishing models

Johnson Outboards has 32 models in 12 horsepower classes to tempt boaters, as well as an all-electric fishing engine, the first electric outboard ever offered by a major outboard manufacturer.

Having firmly established itself at the top of the high-horsepower crowd (a Johnson Stinger V-4 racing outboard holds the current world championship, won last November at Lake Havasu, Arizona), Johnson turned much of its attention in '74 to the fishing outboards, and the result is the all-new Sea-Horse 9.9 and 15 horsepower models, as well as the electric.

In the mid-range motors, Johnson technicians have boosted the popular loop-charged 65 five horses to 70 this year, yet at the same time retaining the 65's compact dimensions.

This year's top-of-the-line Sea-Horse is a refined 135, followed by the 115, 85, 70, 50, 40, 25, 15, 9.9, 6, 4, 2, and the electric, and all models are drainless, which means any unburned fuel is recirculated into the combustion chamber.

Johnson offers a full range of outboard accessories, including Trim-N-Tilt for all 50 horsepower and up Johnsons, except the short shaft 70. Factory installed Trim-N-Tilt units are available on the 135 and 115. Johnson's tilt pin steering is standard and a complete selection of propellers for every boat use is available.

The two newest members of the Sea-Horse stable — the 9.9 and 15 for Johnson '74 — offer the fisherman and low-horsepower outboarder what Johnson engineers term "the most convenient and sophisticated outboards in this power range ever designed."

Available in both electric and manual-starting models, the twin cylinder motors are all new from the top of their motor covers to the tip of their lower units.

The 9.9 and the 15 push-button electric-starting systems are built into the engines, and have an ease of portability particularly important to the traveling outboarder. Just disconnect two battery connections and the motor is ready to travel. And while it's on the road, it can be used without a battery, too, thanks to the manual-start feature standard on all Johnson 9.9 and 15 electrics.

Maintaining the Johnson tradition of putting more power into smaller packages, both the 9.9 and 15 share a powerhead that displaces just 33.2 cubic inches. That's two less than last year's 9 1/2-horsepower model.

Both the 9.9 and 15 get their firepower from FireFlash ignition, a low-tension type that delivers approximately double the voltage to the spark plugs at starting speeds than the old magneto systems. This means faster starts, easier starting, with less ignition wear. Auxiliary gap spark plugs give longer plug life, too. And there's a 5 amp alternator as standard equipment on both electric models.

The 9.9 and 15 feature full forward-neutral-reverse shifting, with a special linkage that allows only low-speed shifting. Throttle control — even on the electric models — is done through a twist grip.

Remote controls are available as an accessory.

The new Johnson electric outboard — the company's first production non-internal combustion outboard — is a quarter-horsepower 20-pound package of quiet convenience for the fisherman.

Designed for bow or deck mounting, the all-electric is the fisherman's fishing machine. The angled lower unit and a special two-blade Lexan propeller designed not to catch weeds makes it an electric motor as weedless as any electric available.

To let the fisherman concentrate on fishing, the no-hands motor controls are located in a single foot pedal. Pressure on the pedal steers the motor through 360 degrees of power. There's an on-off switch on the pedal, as well as a rotating speed control that allows the driver to dial any speed, from stop to full power.

The Johnson V-4s for 1974 offer such proven features as MagFlash capacitor discharge ignition that sends up to 25,000 volts of spark to the plugs in less than 5 millionths of a second (which is 250 times faster at the firing gap of its auxiliary gap spark plugs than ordinary ignition systems); patented pressure back piston rings that help improve fuel economy and dependability; and the same type of tuned exhaust system used on Johnson's champion racing outboards.

The new optional Super 135 and 115 feature factory-installed power Trim-Tilt, which lets the driver trim his boat for optimum performance while running at any speed.

Johnson, which pioneered the loop-charged motor in 1968, offers two "loop-er" models for 1974: a refined two-cylinder 50 and a new three-cylinder 70. Both offer electric-starting as standard equipment. The Trim-N-Tilt accessory is available for both electric-starting motors.

Both the 50 and the 70 offer such proven features as tuned exhaust, MagFlash ignition, pressure back piston rings, Power Shift II, command unit, thermoelectric warm-up choke and a patented dual cooling system that thermostatically provides heat for engine warm-up and low speed operation, then at high speeds switches to a pressure control for increased water circulation through the cooling system.

The long-shaft 70 has shock absorbers tucked out of sight for added protection against underwater and surface obstacles.

For the young-of-mind, regardless the age, the 70 is available in a distinctive Stinger 2 decor, contemporary styled in hot red and black.

The Sea-Horse 40 for 1974 offers FireFlash low-tension ignition that produces 25,000 volts, or nearly twice as much as the old magneto system, and has a 5-amp alternator with a new rectifier to keep the battery charged throughout the boating season.

The 25 offers as standard equipment FireFlash ignition, manual or electric start models, neutral start only, twist grip steering on the manual model and full forward-neutral-reverse shifting.

Refinements of proven designs mark the Johnson 2, 4 and 6 for 1974. On the single-cylinder mini-motor 2, for example, a new choke plate permits easier starting, while stops on the high- and low-speed needle valves discourage misadjustment. There's also a new, stronger stern bracket for more motor stability in turns.

THEY'RE OFF . . . in a race with the popular 12 foot, one-design Butterfly racing scow to be displayed by Pistakee Marina. Having a hull weight of only 137 pounds, the sailboat is easily car topped — and it is easily righted if "knocked down."

Dealership features package offers

Package deals are the main feature at the Boat Super Market, 3298 Kirchoff, Rolling Meadows.

"Boat, motor and trailer are sold for one low price," said Shelly Morris, president of Marine Marketing Assn., Inc. and owner of the Boat Super Market.

Morris said that because he buys in mass quantity, discounts are passed on to customers, especially with the package deals.

The facility also provides free boat storage for customers and a complete service operation with a trained staff to handle any repairs.

Morris plans to initiate a national franchise chain of Boat Super Markets as soon as the gas situation lessens. "The prototype store in Rolling Meadows has been a success, and we are looking forward to expansion," Morris said.

Morris has received several sales awards from boat and motor manufacturers that confirm his success in taking proven marketing techniques from other fields and applying them in the boat industry.

The Boat Super Market, located at the west end of Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, is open from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, Thursday, and Friday; 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and Saturday; from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. It is closed Tuesdays.

Tickets, please

On those warm summer days, everyone and his dog may want a ride in your boat, but be careful not to overload your rig. Check the OBC plate on your boat for its capacity. Seats don't indicate capacity.

Crowded?

During 1971 an estimated 44,905,000 Americans used the waterways more than once for fishing, water skiing or pleasure boating. That's about 123,000 boaters on the water every day of the year.

How to select dry land campsite

With the continued increase of boating convertibles, outboard or stern drive-powered boats that can double as campers, many boaters-turned-campers are faced with the problem of selecting a suitable dry land campsite.

Many campgrounds simply assign sites, which certainly alleviates the selection problem. Unfortunately, their choice might not always agree with your preference.

To help you choose an enjoyable campsite, outdoors experts offer these suggestions. Look for a spot that is well-drained, that seems to have good air circulation and a combination of sun and shade. Also, check nearby trees for large dead branches that might be hazardous in strong winds.

High ground offers natural drainage as well as a better chance of a breeze to keep flying insects away. But don't go too high! Cliffs and canyon rims might best be avoided!

If you are using an improved campground, select a site away from high-traffic areas, such as rest rooms or showers. Wherever you decide to camp, arrive as early as possible in order to get the best selection of sites.

After you have chosen a campsite, check the area for hazards. This is essential if you have children. One of the first orders of business should always be "where they may or may not play."

Finally, you should always show consideration for fellow campers. Pick up your litter and hold down the noise — including "emissions" from your children or pets. Also, leave that carefully-chosen campsite in tip-top condition for the next lucky camper.

Watch out

When cruising, steer wide of anchored fishermen. They may have lines or nets out for 50 yards or more and chances are they would be cut by coming in too close. Authorities also recommend slowing down as you approach fishermen and not opening up to cruising speed until well past their boat.

JOHNSON OUTBOARDS is featuring its all-electric fishing/trolling motor, the first such unit produced by a major outboard manufacturer. Its features include a lighted directional indicator, tough Lexan propeller, complete foot control, and one-motion lowering and retrieving.

COMBINING BOATING and camping in one vacation is rapidly growing in popularity. Using a Mercury 200 powered utility-type boat, this family can look forward to fun on the surrounding water. And, of course, there's an awful lot of fishing to be done.

Condition outboard before season

Most small boat owners will be putting between 50 and 60 hours on their outboards this season. The amount of wear and tear on the engine is equal to putting 10,000 miles on your car!

In that length of time, for a two-cylinder outboard,

- Each spark plug fires 15,000,000 times.
 - Contact points open and close 30,000 times.
 - The magneto delivers 30,000,000 charges of current, 15,000 volts per charge.
 - Spark plug wires deliver a total 450,000,000,000 volts.
 - The crankshaft will rotate 30,000,000 times.
- On this basis, it's easy to see why engine parts, particularly the ignition system, wear out, says Champion Spark Plug Co.

Conditioning your outboard before the boating season begins can eliminate the embarrassing situation where you are the first in the water — and also the first out, long before the fun season ends!

Make sure spark plugs are cleaned and gapped. If this was done last season, consider installing new spark plugs to get this season off to a good start.

Go over the rest of the ignition system carefully making sure contact points are in good condition, adjusted to the proper gap, and that spark timing is set correctly. Check all cables for broken insulation, loose connectors or for frayed spots. Replace all worn cables.

Make sure you have an extra set of spark plugs on board as well as a wrench to install them. Keep these in a good, dry place to avoid rusting.

Make sure the fuel system is clean, and all components operating properly.

With these sorts of precautions, plus your other normal "get-back-in-the-water" checks and adjustments, you're ready for another trouble-free fun season on the water.

Mercury '74 line provides improved performance

Additional corrosion proofing, improved operating performance and greater component reliability are among the benefits provided by nearly 100 refinements in the 1974 Mercury outboard line.

Significant improvements have been incorporated in every one of the 10 models. The horsepower range extends from 4 to 150-hp. All engines are of in-line design with configurations varying from one to six cylinders.

"Power porting," a recent development of the Mercury factory racing program, supplements the Direct Charge powerhead in the Merc 1500, 850 and 650. "Power-ported" pistons provide an additional fuel/air source for greater engine performance at or near maximum speed.

Several developments enhance the fishing qualities of the "Mini Mercs," 4 to 20-hp. A fishline cutter, integral with the lower unit hub seal on the Merc 75 and 110, effectively chops off tough monofilament line before it can damage the seal.

Approximately six pounds were shed from the Merc 75 and 110, due mainly to a completely redesigned cowling. The molded fiberglass cowl provides quick access to the powerhead and is corrosion resistant.

Pulse-tuned exhaust on the 65, 85, 115 and 150-hp Mercs increases power and fuel efficiency without increasing engine displacement. The design takes advantage of alternating pressure waves from adjacent cylinder exhaust ports, coupled with tuned length exhaust tubes inside the drive-shaft housing, to supercharge the cylinders.

Smoother, quieter trolling is a major benefit of a relief valve bypass and thermostat combination in the 40 and 65-hp cooling systems. The engine will reach and maintain optimum operating temperature from idle to full throttle. A large diameter diaphragm-type valve opens and closes depending on cooling water velocity.

Breakerless Thunderbolt capacitor discharge (CD) ignition has been extended to the Merc 75 and 110. The improved ignition system is standard on all Mercury outboards except the Merc 40 which has Thunderbolt Phase-Maker CD ignition. In the breakerless system, solid state components are sealed from moisture and dirt. Mechanical triggering devices are eliminated with no parts to adjust or wear, eliminating ignition tuneups and minimizing timing adjustments.

Perma Gap long-life spark plugs are used in every Mercury outboard. The Perma Gap design, with a tungsten center electrode, requires no gap setting, extending its useful life many times over conventional plugs.

Thunderbolt ignition can fire spark plugs considered "fouled" by conventional standards. A fast voltage rise, up to 40,000 volts in millionths of a second, forces the plug to fire so rapidly that minimum energy loss occurs through electrical leakage.

Mercury Thunderbolt ignition and Perma-Gap spark plugs allow the use of regular automotive gasoline at a 50:1 gas/oil mix, using Quicksilver Formula 50 or Formula 50-D outboard oil. Lead-free or low-lead gasoline without phosphorus additives is also recommended.

Electric starting is a standard feature on all Mercury outboards from 40 to 150-hp. Additionally, manual starting is available for 40 and 50-hp and an electric-starting kit is optional for 20-hp. All production electric-start models are equipped with an alternator to charge the battery while the engine is running.

Every production Mercury outboard has an internal fuel recirculating system which returns unburnt fuel or crankcase residuals to the firing chambers and also increases internal bearing lubrication. An improved rubber valve replaces the conventional ball check valve. It is self-cleaning and clog resistant to positively recirculate unburnt fuel.

For boating safety

- Look over your first aid kit. Is it completely stocked?
- Have you all the fuel and oil you will need?
- Are there enough life preservers and are they in good condition?
- See to it that the anchor is ready to go and that it is well secured to the boat.
- Check on the weather conditions expected.
- Tell someone on shore where you are going and when you expect to arrive.
- Check your compass and lay out a course.
- Test lights, horn, all engines and clutches.

Don't neglect PFD rules

The ABC's of boating safety took a new twist in October when new PFD regulations went into effect for all recreational boatmen.

Let's you confuse this with a serving of alphabet soup, PFD's are personal flotation devices — life jackets, buoyant cushions, ring buoys, and so forth. The new regulations, in effect since last Oct. 1, classify all PFD's into various performance types and describe which types are acceptable on boats of specified sizes.

It's not all that difficult, suggest boating authorities. As a matter of fact, if your boat is less than 16 feet in length, you probably already meet the specified requirement. Because on these rigs, the familiar buoyant cushion continues to be acceptable equipment — as long as there is one cushion for each person on board. However, the Coast Guard also recommends the use of a wearable PFD.

On recreational boats 16 feet and longer, there must be a Coast Guard approved wearable device for each person aboard the boat. In addition, one throwable device (such as a buoyant cushion or ring buoy) must be carried as well.

The new requirements do give you some flexibility and guidance in determining which PFD's to purchase and use aboard your boat. Just be sure to look for the Coast Guard approval number, which can usually be found above or below the manufacturer's stamp. Also, be aware that there are different sizes for adults and children.

To help you choose the correct PFD for your boat, or to verify if your present PFD's are acceptable, consult your marine dealer. If there is any doubt as to lifesaving equipment, a free pamphlet is available through the Boating Safety Branch of any Coast Guard District.

Teens 'rule' village

From the mouths of babes came wisdom—and some long speeches

by JILL BETTNER

"The Buffalo Grove Police Department has equipment to get things done because they need all the time they can get."

Mike Shirley

Twin Groves School

"The chief building inspector sees that houses are put in properly so that we don't have to worry about sleeping at night and getting gassed."

Tim Dunne

St. Mary's Junior High School

"Mr. Seaberg took me out to see the backwards sewers in Mill Creek."

Cindy Cook

Jack London Junior High School

What came out of the mouths of babes at the Buffalo Grove Village Board meeting Monday night surprised and embarrassed a few town officials.

It was Student Government Day and kids from local junior high schools stepped into the shoes of municipal employees and village officials to get a first hand look at how the village is run.

"The village treasurer only works part-time and he makes $25 a month," disclosed Sue Bussey, Twin Groves School, in her staff report to the student "village board." It met just prior to the regular trustees' session.

Each "official" reported to the student board on the day's activities before the trustees tackled the agenda of the mock meeting. They developed the agenda with the help of Village Manager Dan Larson.

THE AGE OF the persons filling the seats on the dais was about the only discernible difference between the mock village board meeting and the weekly sessions conducted by elected officials.

The student trustees argued over budget priorities, sometimes became impatient with a colleague's logic and took nearly twice as long to dispose of business on the agenda as anyone expected.

Items discussed by the board included:

• Sidewalk snow removal policy for sidewalks along major village streets.

• Review of snow removal responsibility for Dundee Road and alternatives.

• Drug Education Programs in local schools and suggestions for improving them.

• 1974 Capital Improvement Budget.

Student village trustee William Robinson, Twin Groves School, broke up the audience with his adamant demand that sidewalks be installed along Dundee Road from Arlington Heights Road to Cambridge Drive.

Student Trustee Mary Rose Fabish said the estimated $75,000 cost of installing the sidewalks would not be justified by the small number of residents who would use the walks.

WHEN ROBINSON protested that the sidewalks would be justified if only one resident used them and the walks saved his life, student Village Pres. Bill Libit said, "When you're doing what's best for the whole village, you may just have to lose one person."

Despite Village Clerk stand-in Pam Cannella's problems pronouncing names of student trustees for roll-call votes and Trustee Fabish's attempt to "absent" instead of "abstain" on one question, the student trustees managed to finish the meeting.

Student Government Day is conducted annually by village officials in an effort to better acquaint students with the operations of their local government.

Program halted at Northwest Opportunity Center

Food stamps not available in area

Food stamps no longer are available through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and officials there say many needy families are in danger of not being able to meet food needs.

Families seeking food stamps must now go to the downtown Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first-come, first-served basis. Most poor families in the suburbs cannot afford to take a day off from work to make the trip, said Mrs. Rena Trevor, a member of the center's board of directors.

Officials at the center and the Cook County branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) are attempting to convince state officials to reinstate the food-stamp program at the center. The program provides qualifying families with the stamps to supplement food purchases.

The food-stamp program is funded through the federal Department of Agriculture but is administered in Illinois through the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

Junior Woman's Club slates puppet show

The Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club will present Dr. Sunshine's Puppet Theatre in "A Very Bad Case of Abneessia" at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, March 2, at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove.

The program will be the third in a series of live professional theatre presentations for children in Buffalo Grove schools, ages five through 12.

The final program for this season will be the musical, "Mary Poppins," to be presented by the St. James Christie Academy. The show will be staged at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, April 27 at Cooper Junior High School. Interested parents may attend as guests.

MRS. TREVOR, yesterday said efforts through normal channels have failed to reopen the program at the center, which serves a seven-township area. Needy families are consequently in danger of not being able to meet their food needs, she said.

"Not only is there a backup, but there are other people waiting in the wings who are eligible for the program," she said. The center now has about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps, but the number will continue to increase, according to Mrs. Trevor. The increase will include families which are already in the program but which must be recertified every two to six months.

Until last month, two food-stamp representatives came twice weekly to the opportunity center to interview families seeking food stamp assistance. As many as 40 families were screened weekly.

Last month, however, state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent to seven area distribution outposts, including the center, because of a manpower shortage and a backlog of food stamp cases to be processed.

AFFECTED ALONG with the Rolling Meadows center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, Argo-Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights outposts.

This week the state moved to return food stamp counselors to the Montrose Avenue, Evanston and Maywood outposts, but personnel will still not be supplied to the other outposts, according to spokesmen for the state.

Village to back Lake Co.-Harper move

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has voted to prepare a petition asking the Illinois Community College Board to allow village residents in Lake County to attend Harper College.

The college board has prepared a preliminary map placing Lake County residents of the village within the boundaries of the College of Lake County. Until recently, those residents had the option to attend that college or Harper College, because the area was not in a junior college district.

The village board agreed to prepare the petition because it feels the village should be served by only one junior college district. The board also favors having the entire village in the Harper district because of its recent resolution asking Harper to consider Buffalo Grove as the site of its second campus.

If Harper College does build its second campus here, village officials feel all residents should have the opportunity to attend.

THE BOARD HAS directed Village Mgr. Daniel Larson to prepare a petition asking the Illinois Community College Board for a public hearing to consider the village's request. In order to be granted a public hearing, the petition must be signed by at least 50 Lake county village residents and presented to the college board by March 1.

The village board will look for Lake County residents who are interested in circulating the petition. Larson said if the March 1 deadline is not met, the Lake County portion of the village will be put in the College of Lake County district with no legal way of disconnecting it later.

Unless the boundaries are changed, Larson said, after Aug. 1 all students living in Lake County Buffalo Grove that are now attending Harper will have to transfer to the College of Lake County in Waukegan or pay a higher tuition rate at Harper. Lake County village residents now attending Harper are reimbursed for their tuition by High School Dist. 125.

Auto dealer plans to be reviewed

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission tonight will review plans for Grand-Spaulling Dodge's auto dealership at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

The zoning for the franchise was approved in 1971, but no plan has been presented to village officials. The dealership will be on an eight-acre tract on the southeast corner.

The plan consists of one building, with a showroom, service facilities and a parts and accessory store. The franchise will sell autos and small trucks.

Grand-Spaulling plans to begin construction of the dealership by spring with occupancy planned for early fall.

In other business tonight the plan commission will review plans for a 696-acre multi-family development north of the village. The DeBruler Co. has proposed building townhouses, cluster single-family homes and condominiums on the 66-acre site.

The site is northeast of Ill. Rte. 83 and Arlington Heights Road.

Developer disputes charges of poor Pleasant Run upkeep

by LYNN ASINOF

John Glorioso, developer of the Pleasant Run Condominiums, 1151 S. Elmhurst Rd., said resident complaints reported in the Herald yesterday do not present an accurate picture of problems in that development.

According to Glorioso, residents of the complex have elected three spokesmen to meet with him on various problems at Pleasant Run. He said Helen Slov, 1205 S. Elmhurst Rd., did not represent the development's residents in making statements to the newspaper.

"Where she considers herself a spokesman, I don't know," Glorioso said.

The developer also said that his firm, Glen Grove Development Corp., is not responsible for the maintenance of the buildings and grounds at Pleasant Run. "Lightbulbs and dirty hallways are not my responsibility," he said. "They have hired a maintenance company."

GLORIOSO, HOWEVER, said that Glen Grove does handle the hiring of the maintenance firm since the condominium association does not take over the project until all 10 buildings are completed. Only five buildings are now occupied.

Mrs. Slov charged that the maintenance firm, hired with residents' funds by Glen Grove, was not the one approved by the unit owners. She said the maintenance firm has not been doing an adequate job.

Glorioso said he rejected the unit owners' choice of a maintenance firm because that company did not do window washing. He also said that he could not hire a more expensive maintenance firm because the unit owners' association dues would not cover the cost.

According to Mrs. Slov, the biggest problems at Pleasant Run comes from flooding. Glorioso admitted the problem, but said his firm is now in the process of getting plans approved for a resection basin on a nearby piece of property, the Lemke farm.

Dominicks to give 5% for drug fight

Dominicks Food Stores today will donate 5 per cent of Buffalo Grove residents' purchases to the local Jaycees chapter for its "War on Drugs" program.

Buffalo Grove residents shopping at Dominicks are asked to bring along the yellow card they received with the village newsletter so that the money will be credited toward the Jaycees. Residents also are asked to make sure their sales slips are properly stamped.

The Jaycees several weeks ago announced that they are planning a program to curb drug abuse in the village, particularly among students in their early teens.

Dist. 96 wrapupParents to be told of trespass problem

Parents of Dist. 96 students are being asked by the school board to prevent their children from crossing private property when traveling to and from schools.

The Dist. 96 school board plans to write letters to parents of students attending Twin Grove and Willow Grove schools asking them to make sure their children use sidewalks instead of cutting through private lawns to get to the buildings.

The action was prompted Monday night after Elizabeth McFadden, 679 Aspen Dr. registered a complaint with the board on behalf of a group of parents concerned about children walking through their yards to get to Twin Groves School.

Another member of the group of about 12 homeowners, Donna Force, 1061 Twisted Oak Ln., also presented the same statement to the village board Monday night.

Mrs. McFadden said a meeting has been scheduled for next Tuesday for the homeowners to discuss the situation with Village Mgr. Dan Larson, and Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh. She added that Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman will also be invited to attend.

District to ask reading funds

Dist. 96 next month will apply for $2,700 in National Defense Education Act funds to go into the reading program in the district.

The district should receive 45 per cent reimbursement for the use of the funds if its application is successful.

Schools to hire two specialists

A part-time psychologist and learning disabilities teacher will be retained next year in the district through the Special Education District of Lake County (SEDOL).

The psychologist presently visits schools in the district two days a week to work with students. The learning disabilities teacher is in the district five days per week.

Teacher, nurse contracts OK'd

The contracts for two new employees in the district have been approved by the Dist. 96 school board.

Jean Ackerman has been hired to teach art in grades four through eight at Twin Groves School. Pat Austin has been hired as school nurse at Twin Groves School.

Milk price won't go up

The price of milk sold in Dist. 96 cafeterias will not go up, despite rising costs being charged the district by milk suppliers.

The school board has decided to absorb the extra increase rather than pass it on to students.

Valenza requests, receives leave as environment chief

by LYNN ASINOF

Michael Valenza, chairman of Wheeling's Environmental Commission, has requested and been granted a leave of absence following his indictment last month by a federal grand jury.

Valenza joins Building Director William Bieber, also indicted last month, in voluntarily removing himself from office at the request of the village board.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon announced Valenza's request, saying he had been contacted by the commission chairman at 3:35 p.m. Friday. "He had just left his attorney, and his attorney suggested he request a leave of absence," Scanlon said.

Board members unanimously approved Valenza's leave of absence, and appointed senior environmental commission member William Rogers to serve as acting chairman.

VALENZA, a former trustee and plan commission chairman, was indicted on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with a delivery of more than $1,700 of furniture which he allegedly received as part of a shakedown of Wickes, Inc.

The commission chairman pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court just hours before requesting the leave of absence. When contacted yesterday, Valenza had no comment on his leave from the commission.

Village board members last week asked Valenza to voluntarily remove himself from office, at least temporarily. The Herald disclosed that a board representative phoned Valenza during a closed-door meeting called to discuss what village action should be taken on the indictments.

A similar phone call was made to Bieber, who requested a leave of absence last Wednesday.

VALENZA'S LEAVE will be in effect until the charges against him are resolved. Meanwhile, the environmental commission will continue to operate with two members, Rogers and Robert Kingsbury.

"We must continue the work and we will continue to hold meetings and prepare ordinances," Rogers said yesterday. "Our tentative timetable is within a year we would like to establish all the ordinances we need for the environmental commission to operate in the future. That's going to be a hard job."

Village trustees had little comment on the matter, other than saying Valenza acted in the best interest of the village.

"I feel that the less said the better because you have a case that is going to be tried in court," said Trustee Al Lang. "And that's where it should be tried — not in the streets and not in the newspapers."

TRUSTEE DON JACKSON, the only current board member not to have served a term with Valenza, agreed with the action of the former trustee. "I think it is best that he not be involved with the village in any official capacity until the outcome of the trial," he said.

Jackson noted the pressure on the village board to take some action following the indictments, but said the board had few alternatives. "It's legally about the only thing we can do," he said. "If we were to take any other action we might be liable to a law suit."

Trustee Ed Berger also said Valenza's voluntary action removed pressure from the village board. "Absolutely, it takes all the pressure off the village," he said.

"It is unfortunate that all this came about prompting this type of situation," Berger said. "I hope everything turns out favorably. In the meantime, the commission has been placed in very able, competent hands."

THE INDICTMENT against Valenza followed a year-long investigation into alleged shakedowns in Wheeling. Also indicted were James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who is influential in village government; Nicholas Phillips, a Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals employee and Stavros' cousin; Ira Colitz, a county zoning board member who resigned his seat following the indictments, and William Hart, a former Wheeling trustee.

The first court hearing in the Valenza case is scheduled for 10 a.m. March 8 before Judge William J. Bauer.

Youth turns self into human torch...in police station

A 17-year-old Buffalo Grove youth soaked himself with lighter fluid Monday night and then set his clothing on fire in the Buffalo Grove police station, police said yesterday.

The youth was taken to Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge where he was listed in good condition yesterday. Police said the youth suffered only minor injuries from the fire because it was extinguished almost immediately.

Police said the youth was brought to the police station following a disturbance in his home. They said he was in a "highly emotional state" at the time of the incident.

Police also said the youth got the lighter fluid from the desk drawer of a policeman and set himself aflame after he was asked about the strange odor in the room in which the incident occurred.

The youth was apparently left alone in the room, because according to police officials, "there was no reason to suspect he would harm himself. They added that it was not the first time they have dealt with the youth."

No charges will be brought against the youth until he is released from the hospital, police said.

For April 13 board election

2 school board incumbents receive caucus backing

by LINDA PUNCH

Only two of three incumbents were nominated by the Des Plaines School Board Caucus to seek reelection on the Dist. 62 school board.

Nominees for the Des Plaines Elementary School board include incumbents Stuart Kisten and Philip Brock. Newcomer Wallace Meyer was nominated for the position now held by Glenn W. Glaser, who failed to receive caucus endorsement.

Glaser, a four-year veteran of the board, was unavailable for comment yesterday. Speaking before the caucus Monday night, he said that recent newspaper accounts portrayed him "as the board member in the black hat."

"A board member must be open minded and can't carry any banner for any specific group or club," Glaser said.

Glaser said a board member should "listen to both sides and take a stand in an open meeting."

"I have done this and will continue to do this," he said.

GLASER TOLD the caucus that his wife is a substitute teacher for the district and that his mother works in the administration. He added that it was not considered conflict-of-interest since both were employed by the district before he joined the school board.

The caucus makes no public statement on why it refuses to endorse a candidate. Teacher union spokesman indicated last week that they would be disinclined to support the incumbents, especially Glaser and Kisten. The two men were board representatives during last fall's heated contract negotiations, which almost led to a teacher's strike.

"It seems with anything as tough as negotiations, there are bound to be some feelings hurt," Glaser said Monday.

Mrs. Anne Evans, the only candidate seeking caucus endorsement for the Maine Township High School board, received unanimous approval for the Dist. 207 vacancy.

Teachers, board settle dispute

The 11-month contract dispute between the High School Dist. 207 board and teachers' union has ended with an out-of-court settlement between the two parties.

Board Pres. Robert C. Claus announced Monday night that the board had reached a settlement in a legal battle over contract negotiations. One provision of the agreement is that teachers accept a salary schedule approved by the board last fall.

The agreement also calls for recognition of the Maine Teachers' Assn. as the sole bargaining agent for teachers and amendment of the professional negotiation agreement which limits contract bargaining to salary and fringe benefits.

OFFICIALS OF DES PLAINES and the Cook County Housing Authority broke ground Monday for the new senior citizens' housing project. The $2.2 million facility will contain 129 apartments. The officials at the ceremony included Dr. Emerson Light, CCHA vice chairman; Victor Walchirk, CCHA executive director; Dr. Herman Bloch, CCHA chairman, and Mayor Herbert Behr. The building will be ready for occupancy by mid-1975.

Dr. Kermit Smith 'tries to live' his heritage

by JOHN MAES

To realize that Dr. Kermit Smith is part Indian, one needs only to tour his Des Plaines home. The trip seems more like a visit to a natural history museum rather than to a houseful of tokens of the heritage and culture he left behind.

The painting above the fireplace depicts the placid serenity of an Indian village while in another spot, the virile Indian brave, engraved in a metal plate, looks skyward while seated atop his painted pony.

"The handwork was used as a display of wealth," he said referring to the bright, handcrafted accoutrements filling display cases in the basement.

Although Smith is only one-quarter Indian, "I'm aware of my heritage and try to live it," he said, softly but emphatically as one hand gestured while the other toyed with Teddy, his French Poodle.

BORN ON A Ft. Peck, Mont., Indian reservation 34 years ago, his family was of the Assiniboine tribe, relatives to the Sioux.

"I was raised more or less by my grandmother who was very much an Indian in that she lived this oneness with nature and did very much for herself," he said. "We usually ate well, a lot of deer meat and homemade bread."

Built on a rather small frame with jet black hair, Smith, an osteopathic surgeon and Des Plaines Park District commissioner said, "I spent a lot of time celebrating as a kid. Indians believe in celebrating in the old tradition during summer and we'd spend whole summers going from one to another."

The education interest of his old-Indian grandmother, he said, guided his long-time desire to become a doctor. He attended St. Olaf College, in Northfield, Minn., where he met his wife, Mary, a native of Des Plaines.

They came to the city in 1962 after Smith received his medical degree from the Chicago College of Osteopathy.

AS FAR AS typical Indian reservation dwellers are concerned, Smith considers himself the exception rather than the rule.

His father, a wealthy landowner active in reservation politics, served as chief of his tribal board for many years. His aunt, Dolly Smith, was the first woman in the Montana State Legislature, serving in the late 1930s.

Some of the family activism has rubbed off on Smith who concerns himself with the lot of the modern American Indian.

"The reservation is changing," he said. "There are a lot of modular type homes going up but you can still see teepees."

ALTHOUGH HE said there is a "growing awareness of Indianism, especially among the younger ones," Indians still face problems.

"The people need jobs, motivation, something more fulfilling than they have now." The school dropout rate is high and there's just a lack of motivation to achieve," he said.

Alcoholism, also caused by lack of motivation, is another problem plaguing Indians, he said. "They're just encouraged to drink from boredom. It's an institution."

He disassociated himself from the militant Indian movement saying he disagreed with the dissidents who staged an

To offset enrollment

Forest View High attendance boundaries may be changed

Attendance boundaries for Forest View High School in Arlington Heights may be changed next year to offset increases in enrollment.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board of education Monday that Forest View will have 2,915 students next year, the largest enrollment of any of the district's eight high schools. Most of the students attending Forest View come from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines. Enrollment is expected to increase until the 1977-78 school year when it will reach 3,320. The school's "capacity" is 2,500.

Gilbert said he will give the board a number of alternatives for reducing the enrollment at Forest View when the board meets Feb. 25 and a change in boundaries will probably be one of them. Gilbert said he would also consider busing some students at Forest View to another school, open enrollment to allow

District pulls out of computer co-op

High School Dist. 214 has pulled out of the Northwest Education Cooperation computer cooperative after sharing the cost of computer services with seven elementary districts for two years.

The Dist. 214 board of education Monday voted down a recommendation from the district administration to continue to use NEC computer services by a 5-to-2 margin. The board then authorized school officials to begin negotiations with Westinghouse Learning Corp. for computer service and to ask Westinghouse if it might also provide computer service to elementary schools through Dist. 214.

During the past year, Dist. 214 and several other districts have been critical of the service provided by the computer cooperative. Last month, Dist. 214 board members examined bids for other computer companies to determine whether they could get better service on their own for the same or lower cost.

Dist. 214 now will pay about $171,000 per year for computer services through Westinghouse, compared to $219,000 from NEC, according to Robert Weber, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for business services.

Dist. 214 administrators argued that if the district pulls out of the cooperative, the remaining elementary districts will have to pay a total of $90,000 more for the computer service.

"We believe that either the co-op or Westinghouse can supply our needs," said Supt. Edward Gilbert. "But we have to recognize that what we do has an impact on the elementary districts."

Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, said yesterday she is "naturally sorry the decision was made to leave NEC. It is a serious thing when a district with the size and potential of Dist. 214 withdraws." However, she said Dist. 214's action does not necessarily mean the computer cooperative will dissolve.

She said NEC will now reassess the computer plan and "see what we can take out of the plan that was geared specifically to Dist. 214's needs." Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 had earlier withdrawn from the cooperative because it felt the costs were too high.

Sick pay for pregnant teacher?

A teacher at Elk Grove High School may be Dist. 214's first teacher to receive sick pay while she has a baby.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told board members Monday the U. S. Supreme Court ruled a few weeks ago that pregnancy must be considered illness and a woman is entitled to sick pay as long as her doctor says she is unable to work. Nora Bremer, teacher of foreign language at Elk Grove High School, has notified Gilbert that she will ask for sick leave this semester when she has her child.

Teachers at Dist. 214 now receive maternity leave without pay and the teacher and her doctor decide when she will begin the leave of absence. Gilbert asked the board to think about the case to determine whether they should write a new policy regarding maternity leave.

Teachers can now accumulate up to 120 days of sick leave and can receive another 240 days from the sick leave bank run by the district education association. With the maximum sick leave, a teacher could conceivably leave the job for two years and receive sick pay, said Gilbert.

School to open earlier this fall

High School Dist. 214 will open before Labor day next year, three days earlier than this year, according to the 1974-75 school calendar approved by the board of education Monday night.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended moving up the starting date to allow a full two weeks winter vacation and to end the school year earlier in June to make it easier to schedule summer school.

Teacher workshops will begin on Aug. 26, teacher's institute will be Aug. 28 and classes will begin Aug. 29. Winter vacation begins Dec. 20 and classes will resume Jan. 6. The second semester will begin Jan. 27, spring vacation will begin March 27 and classes will resume April 7. The last day of classes next year will be June 13.

Contractor to give $3,000 for floor

High School Dist. 214 will receive $3,000 to refinish the gymnasium floor at Rolling Meadows High School from Wil-Freds, the school's general contractor.

Dist. 214 board members have complained that cracks between the boards in the floor are too wide and the wooden floor is slightly warped. Monday night the board agreed to a $3,000 settlement from the contractor if he will also repair the asphalt parking lot at the school which has deteriorated since the school opened three years ago.

service and civic groups — met Monday to endorse candidates for the April 13 board elections. The four nominees must now seek voter approval in April.

Other candidates who failed to receive caucus backing were Lorelei B. Weller, 1874 Linden Ave., and Charles J. Cooper, 1616 Howard St.

SHARON FRIDLEY, a spokesman for the newly formed Concerned Citizens group, said yesterday Cooper will run independently with the backing of her group. Last week, the group announced it would back a slate of independent candidates to challenge caucus nominees for positions on the Dist. 62 board.

The other independent candidates, include Mary Kinser, 973 Margaret St., and Robert Meute, 2084 Chase. Both were rejected by the caucus nominating committee earlier this year.

Mrs. Fridley said the Concerned Citizens were waiting for Caucus action before making any plans. "Now that we know, we will go on from there," she said.

The citizens' group will meet tonight to make plans for the upcoming campaign, including scheduling public appearances for the candidates.

KISTEN, 1755 Sycamore, told the caucus a board member has "the obligation and responsibility to represent all people in the community."

Citing his position as chairman of the board's negotiation team, Kisten said he was "in an excellent position to become acquainted with the many changes in philosophy" in board-teacher relations.

"During last year's negotiations, teachers asked for increased wages and demanded management of the schools," Kisten said. "The negotiation of wages is no problem. To bargain management of the schools is a real problem for everybody."

Kisten added that teachers have "a right to organize for collective bargaining but they don't have the right to break the law or drive the district into bankruptcy." Striking by teachers is illegal in Illinois.

Polymaking in the district should be left to elected officials whose actions "are subject to review" by the public, he said.

Kisten said he will remain completely independent with "no ties or vested interests" dictating his actions.

BOCK, A SEVEN-year Des Plaines resident, said that "like it or not, teacher militancy is a fact of life."

"To quote a teacher on the subject, 'times are changing,'" he said. "I think that's true not only in this district but throughout the country. Teachers are saying, why sit back and take what's given. Why not take part."

Bock said the school district will have "to live with and work with" the new teacher activism.

"I think we can work with teachers without any harm to the district," he added, noting that industry has worked successfully with union for years.

MEYER, 2181 Plainfield, is a manager of the Commercial Group Insurance for the Firemen's Fund American Insurance Co. A resident of Des Plaines for nearly 12 years, he is an umpire for the Little League and served on the parent committee for school referendum in Dist. 62.

Meyer said the major thing he brings to the school board is "an open mind about the needs of the district and a willingness to work."

"I believe the schools are here to give a solid foundation in the basics needed for children to learn, read, express themselves and get on in the community," he said. "The schools are not here to take over parents' responsibilities or give children moral values."

While schools should be "responsive to change," they should not be a laboratory "to experiment with a child in an educational manner," he added.

Meyer classified himself as "very conservative" on the issue of school finances.

"We must balance the excellence of a school district with the ability to pay the costs," he said. "We must not allow our schools to be run down but we must be in the position to pay."

MRS. EVANS, a veteran campaigner who was defeated in the 1973 city elections when she opposed Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), is a 23-year resident of Des Plaines. She was elected to the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention and served as vice chairman of its education committee.

"Everybody knows about the educational financial crunch — I don't believe anybody is blind to it including the teachers," she said. "I think at the high school level we all need to pull together. We need input from everybody — parents, teachers and administrators."

The only declared candidate for the Dist. 207 vacancy, Mrs. Evans said "if you find some opposition, I wish you would ask them to run."

said he was "very happy to see that we've been able to work this thing out amiably. I'm looking forward to a good relationship with the teachers."

MTA Pres. DeWane Barnes said he was "quite satisfied" with the agreement.

"The board and the MTA both gave concessions — I think we came up with a settlement that is satisfactory to both parties," he said.

Barnes said he expects no hard feelings between teachers and the board.

"I think what happened last year is behind us — now I'm only concerned with going on from here," he said. "In fact, I think the informal discussions with the board were very helpful and helped clear up some misunderstandings."

The board canceled negotiations with the MTA last June. Claus said the teachers' union was not negotiating in good faith and had broken terms of the professional negotiations agreement.

The MTA filed a lawsuit, charging the school board acted illegally when it broke off talks. The board filed a counter-suit saying the MTA broke the agreement by releasing information on salary negotiations.

UNDER THE settlement, the board will begin negotiations for the 1974-75 school year for salary and economic benefits within 30 days after dismissal of the MTA suit.

A representative of the board will also meet with the MTA to "confer with teachers . . . on matters related to the general welfare of the staff and other facets of the educational program."

During the 1973-74 negotiations, the board refused to negotiate working conditions, including grievance procedure, class size and teacher evaluation procedures.

A board representative will also meet with the MTA to consider amendments to the professional negotiations agreement, which outlines items which can be negotiated. Barnes said teachers have already submitted a list of amendments, including modification of the "so-called gag rule."

The settlement states that either side can terminate negotiations by giving 10-day written notice setting forth the alleged violations of the negotiation agreement.

TEACHERS WILL meet today to discuss specifics of the settlement according to Barnes. Teacher union members will vote Monday on whether to accept the salary package.

uprising at Wounded Knee, S.D., last year.

"I'm an activist, not a militant and I think most Indians feel the same way," said Smith. He called the Wounded Knee incident, "pointless and an exploitation of the Indian more than anything else."

"To bring attention to the problems of Indians is fine, but they didn't use common sense. It went on too long," he said.

HE FAVORS education, "and legal channels as a means of pulling themselves out of poverty levels."

"Nothing more can be given to the Indian," he pointed out. "They need a desire to achieve; the opportunities are there they just have to take advantage of them."

He said one solution would be for "well-educated Indians to return to the reservation, if only for a visit, and serve as an example of what the Indian can do if he tries."

students to select another school, or building of an addition to the high school.

IF BOUNDARIES are changed, Gilbert said Prospect High School and Elk Grove High School may be the ones affected. Prospect will have 2,395 students next year with the present boundaries and Elk Grove will have 2,480. Gilbert stressed the enrollment situation at Forest View will have to be carefully studied before a decision can be made. "I don't want to speculate," he said.

Gilbert ruled out the possibility of building another high school. The district's newest school, Buffalo Grove, opened last fall. "We just don't see another high school in the picture for at least five years," said Gilbert. Most of the district's growth in the future will be in the northern part of the district, not in the Forest View or Elk Grove areas, he said. Dist. 214 now owns property in Prospect Heights which it has set aside for its ninth high school.

Enrollment projections for the district's other schools next year show 2,405 students at Arlington High School; 1,960 at Wheeling; 2,790 at Hersey; 2,635 at Rolling Meadows, and 2,010 at Buffalo Grove.

'Be Kind to Paper Boys' day

I have proclaimed today as National Be Kind to the Parents of Paper Boys Day and I am the honorary Paper Boy Mother of the Year.

My 10-year-old has had his route for about three months and I'm suffering. It's bad enough being in charge of gathering the news to fill the paper every day — but to also be supreme allied commander in charge of getting them out to the homes before 7:15 every morning is ridiculous.

It started out as a traumatic experience and it has become progressively worse. The first morning he was up at 5 a.m., wrapping his papers in the living room and waking me up every five minutes because he couldn't figure out the right way to roll them.

His customers had their papers by 6 a.m. and I had the crabbiest kid on the block for the rest of the day.

I BROKE HIM OF the habit by pushing ahead his bedtime every night until he decided it was better to get up at 6:30 than to be put to bed right after school.

The paper route went alright for the first few weeks. I learned to sleep through his clumping up and down the stairs, through the slamming of the front door, through the grumblings, groanings and yawns.

Then the first snowstorm hit and around 6:35 there was this little person standing by my bed whispering, "Mom, it's snowing outside... Mom... Mom, it's a blizzard outside... Mom... Mom, will you drive me on my route today?"

Mother's first mistake was saving her poor little paperboy from the driving snowstorm, piling boy and papers into the car and crawling through the flakes to get those papers out. I set a precedent and it's been a very snowy winter.

Now he can't understand it when he stands by my bed describing the 20-inch blizzard and I cover my head with a pillow.

I have lectured him with words of wisdom such as "Do your own route. I don't want to be a paper boy. If I wanted to be a paper boy I'd be one, but I don't want to."

Other standard lines I use include: You are not going to melt. I've yet to hear about a paper boy freezing to death on a 15-minute route. Put on your long underwear. Instead of hating the snow, walk your route and think of how beautiful nature is — positive mental attitude.

I HAVE ALSO FOUND that having a paper boy in the house costs a fortune. When we moved to daylight savings time I had to buy him a light for his bike so he wouldn't get run down on the streets. As his route grows I find he now needs a wagon. Of course he had to have a warmer hat, new gloves and insulated pants for the very cold mornings.

Those are the obvious expenses (not counting the temporary loans when a customer doesn't pay and he comes up short on his bill). The hidden expenses of having my young businessman hit every time he gets paid. With his money he bought a train set, found an old piece of wood and built a layout. Everytime I took him to the hobby shop for supplies he wound up borrowing on his allowance to finish paying for his purchases.

No sooner was the train set up and he bought a small aquarium. Same story... more advances. At the last tally he has spent his allowance through March of 1974. His debt book challenges deficit spending by the federal government.

BUT HIS JOB has given me an incite into the operation of this newspaper. I look at my son and am surprised at what he's doing. He gets up on his own, gets those papers delivered on time, collects from his customers and tries to sell subscriptions.

I don't know how long either of us will last but it has been a good experience. It's a big job for a little kid. It's a trial for his parents. But I think it's worth it — until the next snowfall anyway.

MEG undercover agents bust six on drug counts

Agents for the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) yesterday arrested six men on a variety of drug charges. The arrests stemmed from a month-long investigation of alleged thefts of drugs from a local hospital. Arrested were: Michael Miszkiewicz, 3746 Stoking, Niles; Edward Mueller, 21, 2157 Elmira, Des Plaines; George Nowak, 21, 1851 Maple, Glenview; Steven P. Best, 18, 8974 Western, Des Plaines; Neil Falrelius, 20, 2157 Elmira, Des Plaines and Allen Borre, 21, 1106 Waterman, Arlington Heights.

All six were arrested and taken into custody yesterday afternoon and evening.

MEG director John Alnchy said hospital administrators became suspicious of the drug thefts about a month ago and undercover agents were later put into various hospital service jobs to arrange for hand-to-hand sale of the drugs, mostly MDA and PCP.

Mueller was charged with sale of MDA and with sale of amphetamines. Nowak was charged with delivery of MDA and was arrested at his home.

Best was charged with two counts of delivery of marijuana, two counts of delivery of barbiturates and one count of delivery of amphetamines.

Falrelius faces two charges of possession of a controlled substance.

Borre and Miszkiewicz were charged with possession of MDA, amphetamines, barbiturates and marijuana.

Police reported confiscating several weapons, but as of last night, no charges had been made.

'More time needed' for study

School referendum date pushed back

by BOB GALLAS

It appears the proposed tax rate hike referendum for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has been pushed back, at least until next fall.

The Dist. 59 board, which originally eyed an April referendum date, has decided "more information is needed before a decision can be made on a referendum."

Erwin Poklaski, chairman of the board's policy committee, conceded yesterday that the April referendum is "probably out of the question" due to the fact that there is not enough time for the board to compile the information it wants before the April referendum date.

The policy committee met Monday night to discuss the referendum, which tentatively calls for a 15 cent per $100 assessed valuation increase in property taxes.

ACCORDING TO Poklaski, the information wanted by board members included an estimate on repair costs for the district's buildings which will be needed over the next several years. Areas to be considered include roofs, heating and ventilating systems.

A roof consultant hired by the district has already determined that school roofs will need almost $350,000 in repairs over the next six years.

Dist. 59 Supt. James Erviti questioned the board on the possibility of hiring another professional consultant who could more accurately determine building needs and report back to the board with an estimated cost figure.

Erviti is expected to request the authority to hire such a consultant at one of the next board meetings.

The board also wants to wait and see the results of the latest quadrennial assessment to see whether they will receive more tax money without a tax rate hike. Townships in Cook County reassess property value for tax purposes every four years.

A POLL OF BOARD members at the committee meeting Monday showed they are in favor of trying for a referendum by a 5-2 margin. Board president Allen Sparks and members Emil Bahnmaler, Charles Knaup, Erwin Poklaski and Al Domanico supported a referendum at some future date.

Board members Judy Zanca and Gerald Smiley voted against having the referendum, but indicated they might favor a one-shot referendum which would be used to fix roofs and heating and ventilating systems.

The board also decided that no more surveys would be taken to gauge public opinion towards a tax rate hike at least until further information and figures have been gathered. Two previous surveys showed that a referendum, if staged this April, would most likely be defeated.

Citizens' group planning for area day-care center

A Citizens Advisory Committee composed of interested citizens and experts in child care from the Northwest Suburban area are planning the necessary steps to start an Elk Grove Township day-care center.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall met with 12 persons Monday and gave them the task of nominating a nine-member governing board. Hall also will hold an office on the board with full voting power.

The day-care center, aimed for the children of the poor and needy, will be financially supported by township federal revenue sharing funds.

HALL NAMED Frances Wright, director of the Toy Box Day Care Centers of Lake Zurich and Mount Prospect, as chairman of the position committee. She will report on what types of service day-care centers must provide and, with the aid of her committee members, write a position paper defining the type of care the center will provide.

Bruce Newton, Northwest Opportunity Center, heads a committee investigating suitable facilities in the township.

The Rev. David Crail, pastor of the Wesleyan Church of Elk Grove Village, will chair a committee to explore the possibility of contracting with existing centers for service.

Hall will report on the legalities involved in forming a center and the use of federal revenue-sharing funds to finance the operation.

THE MEMBERS will meet again at 8 p.m., March 11, in the township offices, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The day-care center could start this year, says Hall. The most pressing first steps are appointment of the governing board, establishment of the type of service it will provide and hiring of a director, he added.

Any professional interested in the directorship may contact Hall at the township offices.

School tax hike vote pushed back; more time needed

by BOB GALLAS

It appears the proposed tax rate hike referendum for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has been pushed back, at least until next fall.

The Dist. 59 board, which originally eyed an April referendum date, has decided "more information is needed before a decision can be made on a referendum."

Erviti is expected to request the authority to hire such a consultant at one of the next board meetings.

The board also wants to wait and see the results of the latest quadrennial assessment to see whether they will receive more tax money without a tax rate hike. Townships in Cook County reassess property value for tax purposes every four years.

A POLL OF BOARD members at the committee meeting Monday showed they are in favor of trying for a referendum by a 5-2 margin. Board president Allen Sparks and members Emil Buhmaier, Charles Knaup, Erwin Poklaski and Al Domanico supported a referendum at some future date.

Board members Judy Zanca and Gerald Smiley voted against having the referendum, but indicated they might favor a one-shot referendum which would be used to fix roofs and heating and ventilating systems.

The board also decided that no more surveys would be taken to gauge public opinion towards a tax rate hike at least until further information and figures have been gathered. Two previous surveys showed that a referendum, if staged this April, would most likely be defeated.

Elk Grove jazz band named 'best'

The Elk Grove High School jazz band was named best band in its class last weekend at the Eastern Illinois University jazz festival.

This is the third straight year the jazz band has won the Class AA competition at Eastern. Outstanding soloist awards were presented to Scott Moninger, senior on trumpet; Jay Cohen, junior on trumpet and flugelhorn, and Kevin Oshiro, junior on saxophone.

Parents' protest expected

Changes in Boys Baseball under fire

Parents of boys participating in Elk Grove Village Boys Baseball are expected to turn out en masse tomorrow night to protest the recent decision of the Boys Baseball board, which changed the structure of the league.

The 14-member board has decided to change the league from its present setup for 9- to 12-year-olds of major league, A and B leagues, going to a new system of A, B, C, D, and possibly E levels of competition.

Some parents have protested the change bitterly, charging the new setup is "too skill-oriented."

According to Chuck Steiger, commissioner of Boys Baseball, the new program would have more smaller leagues of eight teams each instead of the present 16.

The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

WHILE ADMITTING the new league setup would provide "a finer breakdown of boys according to skill," Steiger added that the main reason for the change was to allow Boys Baseball to operate more efficiently.

According to Steiger, major problems now arise due to the fluctuating number of boys that turn out for baseball in the village, making it necessary to add and drop teams from leagues each year.

The new league would always have leagues of eight teams each, with leagues being dropped or added as necessary.

A similar move to change the league by the board last year also brought a storm of protest from village residents. The board later reconsidered and kept the program the same.

Opponents to the change don't agree with Steiger's contention the change is (Continued on Page 5)

Citizens' group planning for area day-care center

A Citizens Advisory Committee composed of interested citizens and experts in child care from the Northwest Suburban area are planning the necessary steps to start an Elk Grove Township day-care center.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall met with 12 persons Monday and gave them the task of nominating a nine-member governing board. Hall also will hold an office on the board with full voting power.

The day-care center, aimed for the children of the poor and needy, will be financially supported by township federal revenue sharing funds.

HALL NAMED Frances Wright, director of the Toy Box Day Care Centers of Lake Zurich and Mount Prospect, as chairman of the position committee. She will report on what types of service day-care centers must provide and, with the aid of her committee members, write a position paper defining the type of care the center will provide.

Bruce Newton, Northwest Opportunity Center, heads a committee investigating suitable facilities in the township.

The Rev. David Crail, pastor of the Wesleyan Church of Elk Grove Village, will chair a committee to explore the possibility of contracting with existing centers for service.

Hall will report on the legalities involved in forming a center and the use of federal revenue-sharing funds to finance the operation.

THE MEMBERS will meet again at 8 p.m., March 11, in the township offices, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The day-care center could start this year, says Hall. The most pressing first steps are appointment of the governing board, establishment of the type of service it will provide and hiring of a director, he added.

Any professional interested in the directorship may contact Hall at the township offices.

Moms reassured: 'don't feel guilty'

by PAT GERLACH

"Don't get hooked on feeling guilty," a Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 psychologist told a group of parents of preschoolers recently.

And from both a professional and practical standpoint, Dianne Bowger practices what she preaches. She also is the mother of a 2½-year-old.

Her advice boils down to recommending a "firm but kind" attitude toward small children when it comes to "the consequences of their actions."

Mrs. Bowger and other district staffers participated with the parents in an early childhood seminar in Dist. 54.

The program was the brainchild of Jennie Swanson, director of Schaumburg Early Education Center of Dist. 54.

The center, which serves nearly 200 youngsters, opened last fall when a $180,000 three year federal grant for the project was approved.

THE PROGRAM IS designed for the preschooler who has evidenced problems in the areas of perception, social communication or dexterity.

Parents interest generated by the early childhood center encouraged Mrs. Swanson to meet with interested parents.

During the sessions parents and school staffers discussed problems common to 3 and 4-year-olds.

Mrs. Bowger stressed the "amount

"ITS NOT THE quantity of time we spend with our children but the quality of those hours or minutes that make a difference," says Dianne Bowger, a Dist. 54 psychologist, and mother of a pre-schooler.

and quality of time" parents spend with their children and gave examples of how she handles "hassles"

"It isn't hard to use positive orientation," she said, suggesting parents find "one positive thing a day" to encourage good behavior in young children.

Forest View may alter boundaries

Attendance boundaries for Forest View High School in Arlington Heights may be changed next year to offset increases in enrollment.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board of education Monday that Forest View will have 2,915 students next year, the largest enrollment of any of the district's eight high schools. Most of the students attending Forest View come from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines. Enrollment is expected to increase until the 1977-78 school year when it will reach 3,320. The school's "capacity" is 2,500.

Gilbert said he will give the board a number of alternatives for reducing the enrollment at Forest View when the board meets Feb. 25 and a change in boundaries will probably be one of them. Gilbert said he would also consider busing some students at Forest View to another school, open enrollment to allow students to select another school, or building of an addition to the high school.

IF BOUNDARIES are changed, Gilbert said Prospect High School and Elk Grove High School may be the ones affected. Prospect will have 2,395 students next year with the present boundaries and Elk Grove will have 2,480. Gilbert stressed the enrollment situation at Forest View will have to be carefully studied before a decision can be made. "I don't want to speculate," he said.

Gilbert ruled out the possibility of building another high school. The district's newest school, Buffalo Grove, opened last fall. "We just don't see another high school in the picture for at least five years," said Gilbert. Most of the district's growth in the future will be in the northern part of the district, not in the Forest View or Elk Grove areas, he said. Dist. 214 now owns property in Prospect Heights which it has set aside for its ninth high school.

Enrollment projections for the district's other schools next year show 2,405 students at Arlington High School; 1,960 at Wheeling; 2,790 at Hersey; 2,635 at Rolling Meadows, and 2,010 at Buffalo Grove.

Literary discussion for adults scheduled

An adult literary discussion club will once again meet at Elk Grove High School this semester.

The club will meet for 16 weekly sessions on Tuesdays at 1:30 p.m. to discuss books chosen by the participants. The opening session Feb. 19 will center on favorite poems of participants.

The club has been sponsored for the last 15 semesters by Donald Fyfe, assistant principal, and Richard Calisch, head of the English and fine arts division. Total cost of the 10 week seminar is $1. Any adult may participate.

Belly dancing course most popular of park offerings

The fine art of belly dancing is by far the most popular course offered this spring by the Elk Grove Park District, according to Rich Ludovissy, superintendent of parks.

More than half of the 250 who have registered for spring programs this week have enrolled in the course, which will be taught by Soheir Hammoud, an Elk Grove Village resident originally from Egypt.

Ludovissy said that although the two sessions of belly dancing were originally set up to accommodate 30 women, all 130 who signed up for the course will be able to participate.

Boys Baseball changes to come under fire

for efficiency only and charge that "a few members of the board are trying to force their desire for skill level baseball on everyone else."

"IN THE FOUR years I've been associated with Boys Baseball, there hasn't been a team dropped or added," said Max Mergle, a spokesman for the group against the league change.

"It will make the difference between the first and last levels tremendous," said Mergle. "I'm worried about the possible effects on the boys by being put into such levels according to skill," he added.

When asked whether the new league would allow 12-year-olds to compete in the same league with 9-year-olds, Steiger said, "no, I don't think so."

Steiger added that there's still a chance that the board might reconsider its action in regard to changing the league if those who turn out at the meeting can convince at least one board member that the change should not go through.

Steiger added that the original vote that favored changing the league, passed by an 11-3 margin.

"We're going to open up six additional classes," said Ludovissy. "Those who have signed up and are on the waiting list will be notified by mail right away."

LUDOVISSY ADDED that further registration in the class was closed.

"The turnout for belly dancing was unbelievable," said Ludovissy. "On the day registration opened, people were waiting in line by 8 a.m. Twenty minutes after registration opened at 9 a.m., both classes were filled and there were 55 on the waiting list for belly dancing," he said.

Registration for remaining park district offerings for the spring session will continue this week at the park district office, 499 Biesterfeld Rd.

Other classes closed include both ceramics, beginning dog obedience and women's beginning golf.

According to Ludovissy, there's a possibility that another session might be added to the women's golf program, but it's not known whether that will be possible.

'Be Kind to Paper Boys' day

I have proclaimed today as National Be Kind to the Parents of Paper Boys Day and I am the honorary Paper Boy Mother of the Year.

My 10-year-old has had his route for about three months and I'm suffering. It's bad enough being in charge of gathering the news to fill the paper every day — but to also be supreme allied commander in charge of getting them out to the homes before 7:15 every morning is ridiculous.

It started out as a traumatic experience and it has become progressively worse. The first morning he was up at 5 a.m., wrapping his papers in the living room and waking me up every five minutes because he couldn't figure out the right way to roll them.

His customers had their papers by 6 a.m. and I had the crabbiest kid on the block for the rest of the day.

I BROKE HIM OF the habit by pushing ahead his bedtime every night until he decided it was better to get up at 6:30 than to be put to bed right after school.

The paper route went alright for the first few weeks. I learned to sleep through his clumping up and down the stairs, through the slamming of the front door, through the grumbings, groanings and yawns.

Then the first snowstorm hit and around 6:35 there was this little person standing by my bed whispering, "Mom, it's snowing outside... Mom... Mom, it's a blizzard outside... Mom... Mom, will you drive me on my route today?"

Mother's first mistake was saving her poor little paperboy from the driving snowstorm, piling boy and papers into the car and crawling through the flakes to get those papers out. I set a precedent and it's been a very snowy winter.

Now he can't understand it when he stands by my bed describing the 20-inch blizzard and I cover my head with a pillow.

I have lectured him with words of wisdom such as "Do your own route. I don't want to be a paper boy. If I wanted to be a paper boy I'd be one, but I don't want to."

Other standard lines I use include: "You are not going to melt. I've yet to hear about a paper boy freezing to death on a 15-minute route. Put on your long underwear. Instead of hating the snow, walk your route and think of how beautiful nature is — positive mental attitude."

I HAVE ALSO FOUND that having a paper boy in the house costs a fortune. When we moved to daylight savings time

District pulls out of computer co-op

High School Dist. 214 has pulled out of the Northwest Education Cooperation computer cooperative after sharing the cost of computer services with seven elementary districts for two years.

The Dist. 214 board of education Monday voted down a recommendation from the district administration to continue to use NEC computer services by a 4-to-2 margin. The board then authorized school officials to begin negotiations with Westinghouse Learning Corp. for computer service and to ask Westinghouse if it might also provide computer service to elementary schools through Dist. 214.

During the past year, Dist. 214 and several other districts have been critical of the service provided by the computer cooperative. Last month, Dist. 214 board members examined bids for other computer companies to determine whether they could get better service on their own for the same or lower cost.

Dist. 214 now will pay about $171,000 per year for computer services through Westinghouse, compared to $218,000 from NEC, according to Robert Weber, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for business services.

Dist. 214 administrators argued that if the district pulls out of the cooperative, the remaining elementary districts will have to pay a total of $80,000 more for the computer service.

"We believe that either the co-op or Westinghouse can supply our needs," said Supt. Edward Gilbert. "But we have to recognize that what we do has an impact on the elementary districts."

Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, said yesterday she is "naturally sorry the decision was made to leave NEC. It is a serious thing when a district with the size and potential of Dist. 214 withdraws." However, she said Dist. 214's action does not necessarily mean the computer cooperative will dissolve.

She said NEC will now reassess the computer plan and "see what we can take out of the plan that was geared specifically to Dist. 214's needs." Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 had earlier withdrawn from the cooperative because it felt the costs were too high.

Sick pay for pregnant teacher?

A teacher at Elk Grove High School may be Dist. 214's first teacher to receive sick pay while she has a baby.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told board members Monday the U. S. Supreme Court ruled a few weeks ago that pregnancy must be considered illness and a woman is entitled to sick pay as long as her doctor says she is unable to work. Nora Bremer, teacher of foreign language at Elk Grove High School, has notified Gilbert that she will ask for sick leave this semester when she has her child.

Teachers at Dist. 214 now receive maternity leave without pay and the teacher and her doctor decide when she will begin the leave of absence. Gilbert asked the board to think about the case to determine whether they should write a new policy regarding maternity leave.

Teachers can now accumulate up to 120 days of sick leave and can receive another 240 days from the sick leave bank run by the district education association. With the maximum sick leave, a teacher could conceivably leave the job for two years and receive sick pay, said Gilbert.

School to open earlier this fall

High School Dist. 214 will open before Labor day next year, three days earlier than this year, according to the 1974-75 school calendar approved by the board of education Monday night.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended moving up the starting date to allow a full two weeks winter vacation and to end the school year earlier in June to make it easier to schedule summer school.

Teacher workshops will begin on Aug. 26, teacher's institute will be Aug. 28 and classes will begin Aug. 29. Winter vacation begins Dec. 20 and classes will resume Jan. 6. The second semester will begin Jan. 27, spring vacation will begin March 27 and classes will resume April 7. The last day of classes next year will be June 13.

Contractor to give $3,000 for floor

High School Dist. 214 will receive $3,000 to refinish the gymnasium floor at Rolling Meadows High School from Wil-Freds, the school's general contractor.

Dist. 214 board members have complained that cracks between the boards in the floor are too wide and the wooden floor is slightly warped. Monday night the board agreed to a $3,000 settlement from the contractor if he will also repair the asphalt parking lot at the school which has deteriorated since the school opened three years ago.

Arlington Manor may get help from a 'neighbor'

Arlington Manor residents living in an unincorporated area of Elk Grove Township at Arlington Heights' southern border may get flooding help and a new sidewalk from Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights Village Engineer Al Sanders said a sidewalk on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision is in the village, but denied that flooding in the subdivision is the village's problem.

He said, however, that the village may, while it is working on its own flooding problems, aid the Arlington Manor area.

The Manor residents, plagued by flooding, have been seeking help from Elk Grove Township in the belief no other municipal body was interested or had the responsibility to aid them.

The subdivision, a semi-developed area southeast of Arlington Heights Road, lies in a flood plain and is also located at the edge of an Arlington Heights storm water outlet.

THE RESIDENTS have complained that the Arlington Heights storm water contributes to their flooding and claim a caved in walkway on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision was caused by the storm water.

Arlington Heights officials earlier denied that the sidewalk was the village's responsibility. Sanders said Tuesday that portion of Arlington Heights Road is annexed to the village.

Robert Loos, a builder who constructed most of the homes in the Arlington Manor area, is contemplating developing the strip of land bordering Arlington Heights Road between Magnolia Street and Cypress and will replace the broken walkway, Sanders said. He added that the sidewalks have been in bad disrepair since the early 1940s.

SANDERS SAID the village has a sidewalk repair ordinance that requires repair of unsafe walkways on a 50-50 share of costs between the village and resident but added that Loos was not required to repair the walks because they were broken up before he annexed his property.

The engineer said if a May 18, $16 million referendum for flood control is successful in Arlington Heights, it could also aid the Arlington Manor residents.

Part of the referendum package calls for construction of a retention area on the west side of Arlington Heights Road adjacent to the flooding area in the Manor subdivision, he said. "The retention pond cannot help but alleviate flooding in the flood plain," he added.

Sanders said he has talked informally with Township Supervisor Richard Hall and "the village and township will share engineering data and attempt to work out flooding problems to our mutual benefit."

"These are very preliminary talks, with no funding commitments," Sanders said.

Building materials stolen from firm here

The Elk Grove Police detectives division is investigating the theft of approximately $800 worth of building materials from the Pagni Industrial Plant at 401 Bonnie Ln., Elk Grove Village Industrial Park.

Police said the burglary was discovered by owner Raymond Pagni, late Monday. Taken were 36 sheets of a special darkroom paneling, white pine paneling, door sets, joints and baseboards.

Flood-prevention plan engineering study approved

A preliminary engineering study on a comprehensive flood-prevention plan for Palatine was authorized by the Palatine Village Board Monday.

Consoer, Townsend and Associates, the village's consulting engineers will prepare the flood prevention plan at an estimated cost of $20,000 to $25,000.

Funding for the engineering study is expected to come from motor fuel tax revenues. The board also authorized Trustee Clayton W. Brown to explore the possibility of funding from U.S. Soil Conservation District.

Preparation of the flood-prevention plan is expected to take seven months after a village-wide post card survey of flooding problems has been conducted.

THE FLOOD-PREVENTION plan will include a preliminary engineering survey of existing flood problems, proposed solutions and cost estimates.

The board had hoped to have the preliminary engineering study available in two to three months. Walter Model of Consoer, Townsend and Associates defended the seven-month timetable by saying the shorter period would necessitate snap decisions and could result in needless expenditures. Model indicated he believes the post card survey and a review of plans of the Metropolitan Sanitary District for intercepting the overflows from the Palatine Combined Sewer System into Salt Creek was necessary for a complete flood plan and this would also take time.

The village's engineering study will be interrelated with MSD and Upper Salt Creek Watershed plans and will concern itself with problems that will not be corrected by these plans.

Village Pres Wendell E. Jones has indicated flood prevention will be a major goal for 1974 and that it may take a village-wide referendum to carry out the flood-prevention plan.

Flood-prevention plans have already been prepared in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect. Mount Prospect sold a $2 million bond issue for flood control in December. Residents of Arlington Heights will be asked to approve a $165 million referendum on May 18.

Multi-family zoning plea controversial, but OKd

Tempers flared over a request for multi-family zoning in downtown Palatine at the village board meeting Monday. The request, however, received approval.

Trustee Clayton W. Brown charged that approval of Clyde E. Moffett's petition to rezone six lots on Johnson Street for the construction of four multi-family apartment buildings would lead to overloading of an already overloaded sewer system.

Village Pres Wendell E. Jones countered that the request was only for zoning and he would not approve engineering plans for a project which would overload the sewers.

The property in question is on the north side of Johnson Street between Cedar and Rose streets. Moffett requested the property be rezoned from single-family residential to multi-family residential.

The board approved the rezoning in a 4 to 2 vote. VIP Trustees Brown and Fred H. Zajonc opposed the zoning and Republican Trustees James Shaw, Richard Fonte, Bryan Coughlin and Jones voted for the rezoning.

Zajonc and Brown indicated they thought the zoning was proper but believe the developer should be asked to contribute funds for the upgrading of the sewer system before the zoning was granted.

Revised traffic study proposal gets board OK

A revised traffic study proposal of Palatine's central business district has been approved by the village board.

The traffic study will be conducted by Rolfe T. Gustus in conjunction with a central business district redevelopment plan being prepared by Wilton T. Baskies for the New Palatine Committee.

The traffic study will cost the village $3,800. The New Palatine Committee, a private group of businessmen studying the redevelopment of Palatine, is paying approximately $7,000 for the redevelopment plan.

Preliminary recommendations on both plans will be presented within five weeks.

The traffic study will include a survey and analysis of streets and 10 major intersections. A traffic flow map of the downtown area, a future traffic flow map, recommendations for improvement, preliminary cost estimates and recommendations for alternative methods of financing will be included in the traffic study.

Centner ouster political?

Police witnesses at continuing hearing tell of political intrigues

by JULIA BAUER

Key police witnesses for former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner testified yesterday that Centner's opponents in the department were determined to get the long-time chief ousted through political means.

Former Det. John Wallisch, who resigned from the department in May, said he was upset before the April, 1973, village elections when 11 Palatine police officers exhibited Republican campaign bumperstickers on their personal autos. Nine of those 11 officers lived outside the village limits and were ineligible to vote in the local election, Wallisch testified.

The man responsible for gathering 3,229 signatures in support of a public hearing for Centner, Palatine resident Siegmund Olaf Schneider, told the fire and police commission conducting the hearing that people he spoke with during the petition drive "didn't have any complaints about the department."

SCHNEIDER'S WIFE also testified that Republican Trustee Richard Fonte told the Schneiders that the board knew "right from the beginning" that three village employees had to go: former Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun, Centner and a third man whom Mrs. Schneider could not remember.

Yesterday marked the seventh session of the marathon hearing between Centner and the village board which forced his June 25 resignation. Previous testimony from village majority trustees and policemen centered on charges of ineffective drug control policies, overweight truck arrests, late night tavern surveillance and, particularly, emphasized low departmental morale.

The three-man fire and police commission will hold its next session March 5 at 8 p.m. in the Palatine Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway St. The commission's findings after the hearing are expected to have virtually no bearing on Centner's present status as lieutenant in the department. A new chief, former Rochelle, Ill., police chief Jerry Bratcher, took over the Palatine post last month.

OPponents of Centner's removal are charging that the newly-elected village board went along with dissident policemen to oust the chief in a political deal.

"If board members wanted to get views in the department, they should meet with all of the police officers," Wallisch said. "And they should be open to all the trustees instead of just a few."

Republican trustees Robert Guss and James Shaw held several meetings last spring with a number of policemen, without the knowledge of the two minority-party trustees. Those meetings were aimed at gathering information on the policemen's complaints, and included mention of removing Centner, according to previous testimony.

Wallisch was a former activist in a secret 1969 meeting with two village officials and the subsequent police walkout in January, 1970. Although he helped form the local chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association, Wallisch said he dropped out of the organization because it "tended to become a private club."

ONE OF THE EARLY organizational meetings of disgruntled patrolmen following the walkout caused a serious split between leaders of the group and Patrolman Richard J. Sikorski, one of yesterday's central witnesses.

Men who wanted Centner out as chief at that February, 1970, meeting "felt the best way was through political movement," by putting pressure on the village board and the fire and police commission, Sikorski testified.

When he refused to go along with the rest of the group, Sikorski said he was ordered to leave the meeting, and the next day submitted a report, at the request of his superior, to Centner detailing what had occurred at the session.

More recent indications of political involvement before the April, 1973, election, were described briefly by Sgt. Gordon Mosby. Mosby told the commission that, during a discussion with Det. Michael McDonald and Lt. Frank Ortiz, McDonald strongly supported the Republican slate over what he considered a passive, do-nothing VIP incumbent board.

Specific testimony hitting on village charges against Centner was detailed by Sgt. Walter Schoenfeld, a 14-year veteran on the force, and Fremd High School Youth Counselor David Zack.

THOSE CHARGES include:

- Drug control: Schoenfeld testified that the drug problem was small in Palatine, based on his discussions with policemen from surrounding departments on their towns' particular drug situation.

- "I haven't felt that the drug problem was our major problem. It was a symptom," Zack said. "I don't doubt that drugs are there and available to kids who want to get involved in it," he added, noting that a younger age group seems involved in drugs, particularly marijuana.

- Late-night tavern surveillance: As a detective on the 5 p.m.-1 a.m. shift from 1964 to 1970, Schoenfeld said, "I checked them every night that I worked and sometimes twice." Those checks were made at 1 a.m. or later, Schoenfeld testified, and if a particular problem came up between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m., detectives were on call to handle it.

- Morale: "I don't think it's any different today than it was ten years ago. There are always a few complainers," Schoenfeld said.

Program halted at Northwest Opportunity Center

Food stamps not available here

Food stamps no longer are available through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and officials there say many needy families are in danger of not being able to meet food needs.

Families seeking food stamps must now go to the downtown Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first-come, first-served basis. Most poor families in the suburbs cannot afford to take a day off from work to make the trip, said Mrs. Rena Trevor, a member of the center's board of directors.

Officials at the center and the Cook County branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) are attempting to convince state officials to reinstate the food-stamp program at the center. The program provides qualifying families with the stamps to supplement food purchases.

The food-stamp program is funded through the federal Department of Agriculture but is administered in Illinois through the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

MRS. TREVOR, yesterday said efforts through normal channels have failed to reopen the program at the center, which serves a seven-township area. Needy families are consequently in danger of not being able to meet their food needs, she said.

"Not only is there a backup, but there are other people waiting in the wings who are eligible for the program," she said. The center now has about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps, but the number will continue to increase, according to Mrs. Trevor. The increase will include families which are already in the program but which must be recertified every two to six months.

Until last month, two food-stamp representatives came twice weekly to the opportunity center to interview families seeking food stamp assistance. As many as 40 families were screened weekly.

Last month, however, state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent to seven area distribution outposts, including the center, because of a manpower shortage and a backlog of food stamp cases to be processed.

AFFECTED ALONG with the Rolling Meadows center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, Argo-Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights outposts.

This week the state moved to return food stamp counselors to the Montrose Avenue, Evanston and Maywood outposts, but personnel will still not be supplied to the other outposts, according to spokesmen for the state.

Valenza requests, receives leave as environment chief

by LYNN ASINOF

Michael Valenza, chairman of Wheeling's Environmental Commission, has requested and been granted a leave of absence following his indictment last month by a federal grand jury.

Valenza joins Building Director William Bieber, also indicted last month, in voluntarily removing himself from office at the request of the village board.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon announced Valenza's request, saying he had been contacted by the commission chairman at 3:35 p.m. Friday. "He had just left his attorney, and his attorney suggested he request a leave of absence," Scanlon said.

Board members unanimously approved Valenza's leave of absence, and appointed senior environmental commission member William Rogers to serve as acting chairman.

Valenza, a former trustee and plan commission chairman, was indicted on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with a delivery of more than $1,700 of furniture which he allegedly received as part of a shakedown of Wickes, Inc.

The commission chairman pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court just hours before requesting the leave of absence. When contacted yesterday, Valenza had no comment on his leave from the commission.

Village board members last week asked Valenza to voluntarily remove himself from office, at least temporarily. The Herald disclosed that a board representative phoned Valenza during a closed-door meeting called to discuss what village action should be taken on the indictments.

A similar phone call was made to Bieber, who requested a leave of absence last Wednesday.

Valenza's LEAVE will be in effect until the charges against him are resolved. Meanwhile, the environmental commission will continue to operate with two members, Rogers and Robert Kingsbury.

"We must continue the work and we will continue to hold meetings and prepare ordinances," Rogers said yesterday. "Our tentative timetable is within a year we would like to establish all the ordinances we need for the environmental commission to operate in the future. That's going to be a hard job."

Village trustees had little comment on the matter, other than saying Valenza acted in the best interest of the village.

"I feel that the less said the better because you have a case that is going to be tried in court," said Trustee Al Lang. "And that's where it should be tried — not in the streets and not in the newspapers."

TRUSTEE DON JACKSON, the only current board member not to have served a term with Valenza, agreed with the action of the former trustee. "I think it is best that he not be involved with the village in any official capacity until the outcome of the trial," he said.

Jackson noted the pressure on the village board to take some action following the indictments, but said the board had few alternatives. "It's legally about the only thing we can do," he said. "If we were to take any other action we might be liable to a law suit."

Trustee Ed Berger also said Valenza's voluntary action removed pressure from the village board. "Absolutely, it takes all the pressure off the village," he said.

"It is unfortunate that all this came about prompting this type of situation," Berger said. "I hope everything turns out favorably. In the meantime, the commission has been placed in very able, competent hands."

THE INDICTMENT against Valenza followed a year-long investigation into alleged shakedowns in Wheeling. Also indicted were James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who is influential in village government; Nicholas Phillips, a Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals employee and Stavros' cousin; Ira Colitz, a county zoning board member who resigned his seat following the indictments, and William Hart, a former Wheeling trustee.

The first court hearing in the Valenza case is scheduled for 10 a.m. March 8 before Judge William J. Bauer.

Truck substation law strengthened

The Palatine Village Board has made it more difficult for truck substations to be located in the village.

The board unanimously approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance Monday, making truck terminals a special use in industrial districts.

Trucking terminals had previously been a permitted use in industrial zoning areas. Less stringent zoning laws had resulted in a number of truck terminals being proposed for industrial areas. In Klefsstad Industrial Park on Hicks Road there are five trucking terminals proposed or existing and there are others scattered throughout the village.

Next meeting Feb. 19

The next meeting of the board will be 8 p.m. Feb. 19 at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St. The board will not meet Monday in observance of Washington's birthday.

Battle 'commercial strip'

The first steps to prevent further development of Northwest Highway as a commercial strip have been taken by the board.

The board voted Monday not to attempt to annex the proposed Ponderosa Steak House on Northwest Highway near the Village Oasis. A statutory objection to the change in zoning which would permit construction of the restaurant has already been filed by the village with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

"I would rather lose a few sales tax dollars than lose the integrity of the whole master plan," said Trustee Bryan Coughlin. Coughlin explained the proposed restaurant does not conform to the land use for the area designated in the village's master plan.

Chiropractor office denied

A request from Thomas B. McLaughlin, a chiropractor, to convert a house at 915 E. Palatine Rd. into a medical clinic has been denied by the board.

The board decided the clinic would not conform with existing land uses in the area.

The troops representing Lake Louise, Virginia Lake and Jane Addams schools, will be entertaining their mothers with songs and dances from foreign countries.

Board of Auditors to meet

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors is holding a special meeting on Monday at 8 p.m. at town hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., to discuss the 1974-75 budget.

2 communities may tell boundary accord today

Des Plaines and Mount Prospect officials are expected to announce today agreement on a boundary line between the two neighboring suburbs.

A tentative agreement hammered out in two meetings of representatives of the two towns was approved last week by the Mount Prospect Village Board, and was expected to be approved last night by the Des Plaines City Council.

Details of the boundary agreement have not been released, but it is believed that Des Plaines will annex property to the east of Elmhurst Road near Algonquin Road, and Mount Prospect will take over property to the west of Elmhurst Road.

The former Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm property at the southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street reportedly was not discussed in the tentative settlement. The property was the object of a 4½-year court struggle between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, and is currently considered part of Mount Prospect.

Ongoing disputes involving property around Elmhurst and Algonquin roads has kept the two towns in and out of court. In each instance, Des Plaines annexed a parcel that was later claimed by Mount Prospect, which considered the Des Plaines annexation improper because of legal technicalities.

Des Plaines last month sued Mount Prospect over the dual annexations, but officials in both towns agreed to try to work out an out-of-court settlement to avoid a lengthy and expensive court fight.

The tentative agreement is expected to be officially approved by Mount Prospect and Des Plaines next Tuesday night.

BRIGHTLY-HUED Indian handiwork Dr. Kermit Smith of Des Plaines, also bespeaks part of the heritage of a Des Plaines park commissioner.

Dr. Kermit Smith 'tries to live' his heritage

by JOHN MAES

To realize that Dr. Kermit Smith is part Indian, one needs only to tour his Des Plaines home. The trip seems more like a visit to a natural history museum rather than to a houseful of tokens of the heritage and culture he left behind.

The painting above the fireplace depicts the placid serenity of an Indian village while in another spot, the virile Indian brave, engraved in a metal plate, looks skyward while seated atop his painted pony.

"The handiwork was used as a display of wealth," he said referring to the bright, handcrafted accoutrements filling display cases in the basement.

Although Smith is only one-quarter Indian, "I'm aware of my heritage and try to live it," he said softly but emphatically as one hand gestured while the other toyed with Teddy, his French Poodle.

BORN ON A Ft. Peck, Mont., Indian reservation 34 years ago, his family was of the Assiniboine tribe, relatives to the Sioux.

"I was raised more or less by my grandmother who was very much an Indian in that she lived this oneness with nature and did very much for herself," he said. "We usually ate well, a lot of deer meat and homemade bread."

Built on a rather small frame with jet black hair, Smith, an osteopathic surgeon and Des Plaines Park District commissioner said, "I spent a lot of time celebrating as a kid. Indians believe in celebrating in the old tradition during summer and we'd spend whole summers going from one to another."

The education interest of his old-Indian grandmother, he said, guided his longtime desire to become a doctor. He attended St. Olaf College, in Northfield, Minn., where he met his wife, Mary, a native of Des Plaines.

They came to the city in 1962 after Smith received his medical degree from the Chicago College of Osteopathy.

AS FAR AS typical Indian reservation dwellers are concerned, Smith considers himself the exception rather than the rule.

His father, a wealthy landowner active in reservation politics, served as chief of his tribal board for many years. His aunt, Dolly Smith, was the first woman in the Montana State Legislature, serving in the late 1930s.

Some of the family activism has rubbed off on Smith who concerns himself with the lot of the modern American Indian.

"The reservation is changing," he said, "There are a lot of modular type homes going up but you can still see teepees."

ALTHOUGH HE said there is a "growing awareness of Indianism, especially among the younger ones," Indians still face problems.

"The people need jobs, motivation, something more fulfilling than they have now." The school dropout rate is high and there's just a lack of motivation to achieve," he said.

Alcoholism, also caused by lack of motivation, is another problem plaguing Indians, he said. "They're just encouraged to drink from boredom. It's an institution."

He disassociated himself from the militant Indian movement saying he disagreed with the dissidents who staged an

Arlington Manor may get help from a 'neighbor'

Arlington Manor residents living in an unincorporated area of Elk Grove Township at Arlington Heights' southern border may get flooding help and a new sidewalk from Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights Village Engineer Al Sanders said a sidewalk on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision is in the village, but denied that flooding in the subdivision is the village's problem.

He said, however, that the village may, while it is working on its own flooding problems, aid the Arlington Manor area.

The Manor residents, plagued by flooding, have been seeking help from Elk Grove Township in the belief no other municipal body was interested or had the responsibility to aid them.

Robert Loos, a builder who constructed most of the homes in the Arlington Manor area, is contemplating developing the strip of land bordering Arlington Heights Road between Magnolia Street and Cypress and will replace the broken walkway, Sanders said. He added that the sidewalks have been in bad disrepair since the early 1940s.

SANDERS SAID the village has a sidewalk repair ordinance that requires repair of unsafe walkways on a 50-50 share of costs between the village and resident but added that Loos was not required to repair the walks because they were broken up before he annexed his property.

The engineer said if a May 18, $16 million referendum for flood control is successful in Arlington Heights, it could also aid the Arlington Manor residents.

Part of the referendum package calls for construction of a retention area on the west side of Arlington Heights Road adjacent to the flooding area in the Manor subdivision, he said. "The retention pond cannot help but alleviate flooding in the flood plain," he added.

Sanders said he has talked informally with Township Supervisor Richard Hall and "the village and township will share engineering data and attempt to work out flooding problems to our mutual benefit."

"These are very preliminary talks, with no funding commitments," Sanders said.

The subdivision, a semi-developed area southeast of Arlington Heights Road, lies in a flood plain and is also located at the edge of an Arlington Heights storm water outlet.

THE RESIDENTS have complained that the Arlington Heights storm water contributes to their flooding and claim a caved in walkway on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision was caused by the storm water.

Arlington Heights officials earlier denied that the sidewalk was the village's responsibility. Sanders said Tuesday that portion of Arlington Heights Road is annexed to the village.

Local firm reports losing 'safe' radioactive material

A small amount of radioactive material, described as relatively harmless, was reported missing yesterday from the Amersham Searle Corp., 2636 Clearbrook, Arlington Heights.

William Wickes, spokesman for G. D. Searle and Co., said the loss was discovered "several weeks ago during a routine inventory." The loss was not made public until Tuesday, he said, until an "intensive" search was made by the company at the Arlington Heights facility.

The material, Americium-241, was contained in a small glass bead on top of a flat head screw about one inch in length. Americium-241, which emits weak gamma rays, is "relatively harmless," Wickes said, unless carried next to the skin for a long period of time.

Robert Clark, Searle radiation safety officer, said the material was either lost or accidentally buried with other radioactive materials at a government-approved disposal site.

Wickes said the lost material presented no hazard to the public. He said the loss was the first such incident at the Arlington Heights facility.

THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police were not informed of the loss until yesterday when contacted by The Herald.

Wickes said no report would have been made until a thorough search by company personnel was completed.

Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning, who is village civil defense coordinator, said the police were told by Amersham Searle spokesman the loss occurred in December but was not discovered until the inventory several weeks ago.

Kenning said there were, to his knowledge, no special village ordinances or regulations for the control of radioactive materials.

"Without looking, I'd say we followed the Atomic Energy Commission guidelines on this," he said.

Amersham Searle Corp. is a subsidiary of G. D. Searle and Co. and Amersham Radio-Chemical, of Amersham, England.

The Americium-241 is used for research and medical treatment, according to Wickes.

ARCO will delay car wash plans; gas crisis cited

A spokesman for the Atlantic Richfield Oil Co. (ARCO) admitted last night that plans to build a car wash and gasoline service station on Plum Grove Road and Euclid Avenue will not be carried out until the gas crisis is resolved.

Richard Koeller, manager of construction for ARCO, told the Rolling Meadows City Council last night that a proposed facility for the site may not be built for several years.

However, authorization to build the facility has been given by a court order, despite refusal last night by city officials to annex the site. The site, located in unincorporated Cook County, was rezoned under a 1970 court order which allows a gas station and car wash facility to be built on the site. The court order overruled a decision by the Cook County Board to deny a petition to rezone the lot for the facility.

ARCO has sought to have the property annexed to the city because it needs to obtain its water supply from Rolling Meadows.

Koeller said last night the facility could wash 120 cars per hour. An additional 43 cars could be held on the site waiting for washing, he said.

A SPECIAL CITY zoning commission had recommended several months ago that the proposal be turned down.

The proposal was met with criticism last night by city officials who challenged what they said were threats to the city, on the part of ARCO to force annexation.

Alderman William Ahrend, 1st, criticized Edward O'Rourke, the present property owner and ARCO for what he called using the court order to get the required zoning and then coming to the city for their needed utilities.

Artifacts added to library's collection

Historians dig into the city's past

by REGINA OEHLER

That old-fashioned washing machine, newspapers scattered in your attic or even a flyer from a Memorial Day parade might be worth something to three amateur historians in search of the history of Rolling Meadows.

The three — Janis Hahn, Phoebe Garland and Eunice Semple — are members of the Rolling Meadows Public Library's historical board and are trying to unearth clues to the city's past.

So far, they've traced down everything from the remains of the old "community Church in a barn" to cookbook covers; they've tracked down clippings on the start of the police and fire departments; and they've found two shovels used in ground-breaking ceremonies.

One shovel is a shiny relic of the Western Electric building groundbreaking and the other is a used survivor of the library's own groundbreaking in 1966 and a number of subsequent snowfalls.

All the information and artifacts received are added to the library's slowly growing historical collection. Mrs. Semple said the collection already contained a large number of clippings that would someday be copied and available for general use.

MRS. HAHN said that eventually all the historical items will be housed in the second story of the three-story library addition being planned for the near future. "It will be a complete section that can be shut off from the rest of the library easily," she said.

The idea for the historical collection began in midsummer, after someone suggested a collection to help celebrate the city's 20th birthday which starts next year.

The idea was taken up by the three women and the library staff who began work on the project. Anyone interested in helping is welcome, Mrs. Semple said. Those interested can contact the library at 259-8050.

The project may lead to a book on Rolling Meadows.

Nursing home opponents to meet with officials

Homeowners on Redwing Court and the west side of Owl Drive in Rolling Meadows have been invited to a meeting with city officials Friday to discuss their objections to a proposed nursing home near their property.

The meeting was called late Monday at the request of 5th Ward Aldermen Fredrick Jacobson and Kenneth Retzke after homeowners and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials expressed apprehension over developer Fredrick Walker's proposed nursing home.

Walter is seeking approval from the city to build a 200 bed facility on 4.3 acres on E. Frontage Road near Central Road School. The proposal was to have been presented to city officials at a public hearing last night but was postponed.

The residents and school district officials have expressed concern about the proposal because it calls for building on flood plain land.

Problems have been particularly bad at Central Road School near the proposed site of the nursing home. School officials said sandbags have been used to hold back water at entrances to the school on rainy days.

The meeting was announced to homeowners in a letter from City Mgr. James Watson. The letter said the meeting will be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

The nursing home proposal has already received a recommendation for approval from a special city zoning commission. It is one of several nursing home projects pending before the city.

Parks weigh new annexation plan

The Rolling Meadows Park District Board last night agreed to try another route in an attempt to acquire the Plum Grove Countryside Park District.

This will be Rolling Meadows' second try at obtaining an annexation corridor that will allow them to incorporate the $4 million assessed Countryside district.

The first attempt failed when the Salt Creek Park District Board last week refused a land trade-off because "a change in any of the park district boundaries at this time would not benefit the people in the affected communities," according to park board president Patrick Greulich.

The new possible annexation corridor would mean negotiations with the Palatine Rural Park District for a small strip of property running along the west side of Meacham Road, up to Plum Grove School. Part of the property being considered is outside city limits.

IN THE PAST, Rolling Meadows has annexed land from the Palatine Rural Park District without too much difficulty, said Rolling Meadows Park Board President Raymond Neuckanz.

Besides opening negotiations with the Palatine district, Neuckanz said he is writing to the Plum Grove Countryside Park Board to discover their feelings in the matter.

If Rolling Meadows does gain an annexation corridor, it will be a significant step in the city's growth.

GOING OVER OLD papers in search of historical items are library historical board members Eunice Semple, Janis Hahn and Phoebe Garland. The shovel was used for the library's groundbreaking.

BRIGHTLY-HUED Indian handiwork Dr. Kermit Smith of Des Plaines, also bespeaks part of the heritage of a Des Plaines park commissioner.

Local firm reports losing 'safe' radioactive material

A small amount of radioactive material, described as relatively harmless, was reported missing yesterday from the Amersham Searle Corp., 2636 Clearbrook, Arlington Heights.

William Wickes, spokesman for G. D. Searle and Co., said the loss was discovered "several weeks ago during a routine inventory." The loss was not made public until Tuesday, he said, until an "intensive" search was made by the company at the Arlington Heights facility.

The material, Americium-241, was contained in a small glass bead on top of a flat head screw about one inch in length. Americium-241, which emits weak gamma rays, is "relatively harmless," Wickes said, unless carried next to the skin for a long period of time.

Robert Clark, Searle radiation safety officer, said the material was either lost or accidentally buried with other radioactive materials at a government-approved disposal site.

Wickes said the lost material presented no hazard to the public. He said the loss was the first such incident at the Arlington Heights facility.

THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police were not informed of the loss until yesterday when contacted by The Herald.

Wickes said no report would have been made until a thorough search by company personnel was completed.

Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning, who is village civil defense coordinator, said the police were told by Amersham Searle spokesman the loss occurred in December but was not discovered until the inventory several weeks ago.

Kenning said there were, to his knowledge, no special village ordinances or regulations for the control of radioactive materials.

"Without looking, I'd say we followed the Atomic Energy Commission guidelines on this," he said.

Amersham Searle Corp. is a subsidiary of G. D. Searle and Co. and Amersham Radio-Chemical, of Amersham, England.

The Americium-241 is used for research and medical treatment, according to Wickes.

Dr. Kermit Smith 'tries to live' his heritage

by JOHN MAES

To realize that Dr. Kermit Smith is part Indian, one needs only to tour his Des Plaines home. The trip seems more like a visit to a natural history museum rather than to a houseful of tokens of the heritage and culture he left behind.

The painting above the fireplace depicts the placid serenity of an Indian village while in another spot, the virile Indian brave, engraved in a metal plate, looks skyward while seated atop his painted pony.

"The handiwork was used as a display of wealth," he said referring to the bright, handcrafted accoutrements filling display cases in the basement.

Although Smith is only one-quarter Indian, "I'm aware of my heritage and try to live it," he said softly but emphatically as one hand gestured while the other toyed with Teddy, his French Poodle.

BORN ON A Ft. Peck, Mont., Indian reservation 34 years ago, his family was of the Assiniboine tribe, relatives to the Sioux.

"I was raised more or less by my grandmother who was very much an Indian in that she lived this oneness with nature and did very much for herself," he said. "We usually ate well, a lot of deer meat and homemade bread."

Built on a rather small frame with jet black hair, Smith, an osteopathic surgeon and Des Plaines Park District commissioner said, "I spent a lot of time celebrating as a kid. Indians believe in celebrating in the old tradition during summer and we'd spend whole summers going from one to another."

The education interest of his old-Indian grandmother, he said, guided his longtime desire to become a doctor. He attended St. Olaf College, in Northfield, Minn., where he met his wife, Mary, a native of Des Plaines.

They came to the city in 1962 after Smith received his medical degree from the Chicago College of Osteopathy.

AS FAR AS typical Indian reservation dwellers are concerned, Smith considers himself the exception rather than the rule.

His father, a wealthy landowner active in reservation politics, served as chief of his tribal board for many years. His aunt, Dolly Smith, was the first woman in the Montana State Legislature, serving in the late 1930s.

Some of the family activism has rubbed off on Smith who concerns himself with the lot of the modern American Indian.

"The reservation is changing," he said, "There are a lot of modular type homes going up but you can still see teepees."

ALTHOUGH HE said there is a "growing awareness of Indianism, especially among the younger ones," Indians still face problems.

"The people need jobs, motivation something more fulfilling than they have now." The school dropout rate is high and there's just a lack of motivation to achieve," he said.

Alcoholism, also caused by lack of motivation, is another problem plaguing Indians, he said. "They're just encouraged to drink from boredom. It's an institution."

He disassociated himself from the militant Indian movement saying he disagreed with the dissidents who staged an

Arlington Manor may get help from a 'neighbor'

Arlington Manor residents living in an unincorporated area of Elk Grove Township at Arlington Heights' southern border may get flooding help and a new sidewalk from Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights Village Engineer Al Sanders said a sidewalk on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision is in the village, but denied that flooding in the subdivision is the village's problem.

He said, however, that the village may, while it is working on its own flooding problems, aid the Arlington Manor area.

The Manor residents, plagued by flooding, have been seeking help from Elk Grove Township in the belief no other municipal body was interested or had the responsibility to aid them.

The subdivision, a semi-developed area southeast of Arlington Heights Road, lies in a flood plain and is also located at the edge of an Arlington Heights storm water outlet.

THE RESIDENTS have complained that the Arlington Heights storm water contributes to their flooding and claim a caved in walkway on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision was caused by the storm water.

Arlington Heights officials earlier denied that the sidewalk was the village's responsibility. Sanders said Tuesday that portion of Arlington Heights Road is annexed to the village.

Robert Loos, a builder who constructed most of the homes in the Arlington Manor area, is contemplating developing the strip of land bordering Arlington Heights Road between Magnolia Street and Cypress and will replace the broken walkway, Sanders said. He added that the sidewalks have been in bad disrepair since the early 1940s.

SANDERS SAID the village has a sidewalk repair ordinance that requires repair of unsafe walkways on a 50-50 share of costs between the village and resident but added that Loos was not required to repair the walks because they were broken up before he annexed his property.

The engineer said if a May 18, $16 million referendum for flood control is successful in Arlington Heights, it could also aid the Arlington Manor residents.

Part of the referendum package calls for construction of a retention area on the west side of Arlington Heights Road adjacent to the flooding area in the Manor subdivision, he said. "The retention pond cannot help but alleviate flooding in the flood plain," he added.

Sanders said he has talked informally with Township Supervisor Richard Hall and "the village and township will share engineering data and attempt to work out flooding problems to our mutual benefit."

"These are very preliminary talks, with no funding commitments," Sanders said.

Dist. 214 wrapup

District pulls out of computer co-op

High School Dist. 214 has pulled out of the Northwest Education Cooperation computer cooperative after sharing the cost of computer services with seven elementary districts for two years.

The Dist. 214 board of education Monday voted down a recommendation from the district administration to continue to use NEC computer services by a 5-to-2 margin. The board then authorized school officials to begin negotiations with Westinghouse Learning Corp. for computer service and to ask Westinghouse if it might also provide computer service to elementary schools through Dist. 214.

During the past year, Dist. 214 and several other districts have been critical of the service provided by the computer cooperative. Last month, Dist. 214 board members examined bids for other computer companies to determine whether they could get better service on their own for the same or lower cost.

Dist. 214 now will pay about $171,000 per year for computer services through Westinghouse, compared to $219,000 from NEC, according to Robert Weber, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for business services.

Dist. 214 administrators argued that if the district pulls out of the cooperative, the remaining elementary districts will have to pay a total of $90,000 more for the computer service.

"We believe that either the co-op or Westinghouse can supply our needs," said Supt. Edward Gilbert. "But we have to recognize that what we do has an impact on the elementary districts."

Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, said yesterday she is "naturally sorry the decision was made to leave NEC. It is a serious thing when a district with the size and potential of Dist. 214 withdraws." However, she said Dist. 214's action does not necessarily mean the computer cooperative will dissolve.

She said NEC will now reassess the computer plan and "see what we can take out of the plan that was geared specifically to Dist. 214's needs." Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 had earlier withdrawn from the cooperative because it felt the costs were too high.

Sick pay for pregnant teacher?

A teacher at Elk Grove High School may be Dist. 214's first teacher to receive sick pay while she has a baby.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told board members Monday the U. S. Supreme Court ruled a few weeks ago that pregnancy must be considered illness and a woman is entitled to sick pay as long as her doctor says she is unable to work. Nora Bremer, teacher of foreign language at Elk Grove High School, has notified Gilbert that she will ask for sick leave this semester when she has her child.

Teachers at Dist. 214 now receive maternity leave without pay and the teacher and her doctor decide when she will begin the leave of absence. Gilbert asked the board to think about the case to determine whether they should write a new policy regarding maternity leave.

Teachers can now accumulate up to 120 days of sick leave and can receive another 240 days from the sick leave bank run by the district education association. With the maximum sick leave, a teacher could conceivably leave the job for two years and receive sick pay, said Gilbert.

School to open earlier this fall

High School Dist. 214 will open before Labor day next year, three days earlier than this year, according to the 1974-75 school calendar approved by the board of education Monday night.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended moving up the starting date to allow a full two weeks winter vacation and to end the school year earlier in June to make it easier to schedule summer school.

Teacher workshops will begin on Aug. 26, teacher's institute will be Aug. 28 and classes will begin Aug. 29. Winter vacation begins Dec. 20 and classes will resume Jan. 6. The second semester will begin Jan. 27, spring vacation will begin March 27 and classes will resume April 7. The last day of classes next year will be June 13.

Contractor to give $3,000 for floor

High School Dist. 214 will receive $3,000 to refinish the gymnasium floor at Rolling Meadows High School from Wilfreds, the school's general contractor.

Dist. 214 board members have complained that cracks between the boards in the floor are too wide and the wooden floor is slightly warped. Monday night the board agreed to a $3,000 settlement from the contractor if he will also repair the asphalt parking lot at the school which has deteriorated since the school opened three years ago.

Program halted at Northwest Opportunity Center

Food stamps not available in area

Food stamps no longer are available through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and officials there say many needy families are in danger or not being able to meet food needs.

Families seeking food stamps must now go to the downtown Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first-come, first-served basis. Most poor families in the suburbs cannot afford to take a day off from work to make the trip, said Mrs. Rena Trevor, a member of the center's board of directors.

annexation corridor, Countryside residents living in the 300 single-family homes and the Kings Walk Apartments would have to approve by referendum any annexation plan. Presently, the Countryside park district tax rate is about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation, while the Rolling Meadows rate is about 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Rolling Meadows needs the Plum Grove Countryside area so that they can expand westward with the city, according to Neuckranz.

The countryside district is approximately bounded by Winnetka Avenue, Kirchhoff Road, Hicks Road and Meacham Road.

ARCO won't build car wash quickly

Ahrens told the developer. ALDERMAN John Rock, 3rd, also questioned whether the court-ordered zoning permitted the car wash as well as the gas station.

Attorney William Reilly, representing O'Rourke, read a section of the county zoning code which allows up to four cars to be washed at one time in a facility under the zoning classification.

Reilly said about two cars would be washed at one time in the proposed ARCO station.

Several city residents living near the proposed site objected to the annexation, including Harold Brissenden, representing the Plum Grove Village Assn.

Brissenden charged ARCO was seeking the annexation for "speculative purposes" which could ultimately lead to a "fast food franchise" on the site.

The council voted down the annexation proposal by a 9-0 vote. Alderman Merrill Wuerch, 1st, was absent from the meeting.

Officials at the center and the Cook County branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) are attempting to convince state officials to reinstate the food-stamp program at the center. The program provides qualifying families with the stamps to supplement food purchases.

The food-stamp program is funded through the federal Department of Agriculture but is administered in Illinois through the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

MRS. TREVOR, yesterday said efforts through normal channels have failed to reopen the program at the center, which serves a seven-township area. Needy families are consequently in danger of not being able to meet their food needs, she said.

"Not only is there a backup, but there are other people waiting in the wings who are eligible for the program," she said. The center now has about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps, but the number will continue to increase, according to Mrs. Trevor. The increase will include families which are already in the program but which must be recertified every two to six months.

Until last month, two food-stamp representatives came twice weekly to the opportunity center to interview families seeking food stamp assistance. As many as 40 families were screened weekly.

School officials see 55% more students by 1980

by STIRLING MORITA

Students, expansion of school facilities, more students — that's all Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 officials can see for the near future.

The officials anticipate that the student population in the district will grow about 55 per cent by 1980. School district figures based on area builders' estimates of development completions indicate that the present enrollment will increase from 15,511 to 24,150 in 1980.

At the start of the 1974-75 school year, expected enrollment is 16,800.

Authorization to issue bonds to build new schools and other facilities will be voted on by local residents Saturday. The $16.6 million referendum will be divided into two parts — one for construction of a $700,000 administration center, and the other for construction of four school additions, eight new schools, renovation to eight schools and a nature area center.

THE BONDS would be issued during a five-year period according to the need for a new facility or addition. The bond issue referendum is not expected to raise taxes, but rather the taxes are anticipated to drop $6 for a homeowner of a house assessed at $10,000. School district officials have said taxes would drop between $25 and $30 for the average homeowner if the referendum did not pass.

But officials feel that financial assistance from the state will negate the need to issue some of the bonds and that the resulting drop in taxes might be around $12. The $6-tax drop will be made possible by a tremendous growth in the assessed valuation in the district and retirement of outstanding bonds.

Additions are tentatively planned for Eisenhower Junior High School in Hoffman Estates, Collins School in Schaumburg, Einstein School in Hanover Park, and Link School in Elk Grove Village.

Officials said the new facilities were needed to prevent overcrowding of classes or the undesirable switch to a double-shift system in which the school day is cut and two shifts of students attend the same school at different times. Desired class size is 28 pupils. Presently, the average class size is 27.4.

DONNIE RUDD, president of the school board of education, has said if the referendum fails, he will take the bond issue back to the public again because of the need to meet the growth in the district.

Officials have set up a very tentative schedule for construction of facilities. It is subject to change pending completion of various housing in the district.

Renovation of the eight older schools in the district is slated to be between 1975 and 1977 at a cost of about $3 million. Schools involved in this project include Blackhawk, Campanelli, Fairview, Lakeview, Hillcrest, Hoffman, Schaumburg and Twinbrook.

A NATURE CENTER building north of Frost Junior High School would be built from 1974 to 1975 at a cost of about $62,000. Between 1975 and 1976, an addition to Eisenhower School and a new school planned for Campanelli Bros. Builders' donated land northeast of Schaumburg High School would be constructed. The addition would cost about $550,000 and the new school about $1 million.

Additions to Collins and Einstein schools would be added from 1976 to 1977 at a cost of about $400,000 each. The new administration center near Schaumburg School and a new school on the Gray farm in western Schaumburg between Schaumburg and Bode roads would be built in this period also. Construction costs for the school are estimated to be about $1.11 million.

NEW SCHOOLS ARE planned for construction from 1977 to 1978 at a site in Hanover Park near Irving Park and Wise roads and at one south of Nerge Road in the Kennedy Construction development. Both schools are anticipated to cost about $1.25 million each. At the same time, construction for an addition to Link School is planned for about $460,000.

From 1978 to 1979 a new school would be constructed on land donated by Centex Construction Co. in Elk Grove Village south of Nerge Road. Cost is estimated to be about $1.3 million.

At a site in the Village in the Park apartment area on Valley Lake Drive in Schaumburg and at one near Wise and Roselle roads, elementary schools are planned for construction from 1979 to 1980. Costs for the Roselle Road school are anticipated to be about $1.15 million and for the other about $1.35 million.

At the same time, a junior high school would be built either at the Hoover School site on Springguth Road in Schaumburg or one of the school sites in Elk Grove Village depending upon the growth pattern in the district. Cost would be about $2.55 million.

IT'S CHOW TIME for Princess Nova's 12 new arrivals. Schaumburg firefighters, gave birth last week to 14 Princess, one of two Dalmatian dog mascots for the pups, but two died. Their father is Butch Meacham.

Twinbrook Y Family Drive opens tonight

Twinbrook YMCA will open its 1974 Family Drive 8 p.m. tonight at St. Peter Lutheran School, 208 E. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg.

Keynote speaker will be Michael Carlucci, an active member in Y programs and a division chairman for the drive. He and his daughter are members of the Y-Indian Princess program and his son is a Gra-Y club member.

Other speakers will include Steve Novick, Herald city editor, and Janis Busse, a Conant High School senior.

Novick will speak on the success of December's Patron Drive which raised more than $16,000 from local businesses, exceeding its $14,000 goal.

Miss Busse, an adviser in the Junior High-Y program, will relate her experiences and the values of YMCA programs.

More than 200 workers, members of the Family Drive team, will attend to hear the speakers and pick up their campaign kits.

Each worker is to call on eight prospects during the drive.

The drive ends March 3, and will be capped by a banquet at the Holiday Inn of Rolling Meadows.

Night students now can catch bus to NIU

A bus for night students at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, will begin operating today.

The bus, available through the Schaumburg Transportation Co., will be operated by Dale Nygaard of Streamwood and Dennis Ward of Elgin.

It will leave Monday through Thursday at 4:30 p.m. from Schaumburg High School, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd., and will stop at 4:35 p.m. at Elgin Community College before expressing to DeKalb.

The fare will be $1.25 per person round trip. The bus is being operated on a not-for-profit basis, said Nygaard, adding, the service is being initiated because of the fuel crisis.

Schaumburg Transportation Co. has agreed to provide the bus and will subsidize losses for the first few weeks hoping it can operate at a break even point after that, Nygaard added.

Nygaard said he hopes to see the fare drop as ridership increases.

Lexington Green condos get first OK

Lexington 'Green,' a 400-unit condominium complex on 43 acres near Meacham and Old Schaumburg roads, received tentative approval from the Schaumburg village board last night.

The land, owned by Mayor Robert L. Atcher and Chicago philanthropist Jack M. Pritzker, is under contract purchase by Ronald J. Benach, of Hallmark Homes, Rolling Meadows.

Trustees asked Benach to reopen negotiations with Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 concerning proposed cash contributions to offset the project's impact on the school system.

Dist. 54 School Board President Donnie Rudd told the board that school officials formally oppose multiple-family zoning for the project since Benach failed to meet district guidelines for contributions.

Benach offered Dist. 54 $25 per unit, which Rudd considers inadequate. The developer reluctantly agreed to further meetings with school officials. "I'm happy to talk with Mr. Rudd and if he can convince me of reasons for a change, fine, but I won't promise anything," Benach said.

UNDER CURRENT guidelines for developers' contributions, school officials feel he should contribute about $123,000.

Benach is also expected to present detailed plans for retention of stormwater at the next village meeting, two weeks from last night.

Other contributions Benach has pledged include $100 per unit to Schaumburg's proposed cultural center and $100 per unit to the Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North fund, as well as $5,000 each to the police and fire departments.

Construction is slated to begin on models in April. Benach said he expects 40 units in Phase I of development will be occupied by the end of 1974.

The two-story buildings will contain four or eight units each with private garages and patios, he said. Prices will range from $28,000 to $37,000.

The complex will consist of 400 two-bedroom units and 73 three-bedroom units. A recreational center will be completed during Phase I construction.

Attempted murder warrant issued

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Ellen Erickson of Hoffman Estates, who is charged with attempted murder in connection with an incident in which her child suffered a skull fracture and severe arm cuts.

Hoffman Estates police said yesterday Mrs. Erickson, 32, 2100 Hassell Rd., has apparently left town although her family remained here.

She was also charged with child neglect. Mrs. Erickson was charged originally with aggravated battery, but a grand jury indicted her attempted murder.

Her daughter, Amy, 3, was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, Oct. 31, 1973, after suffering a skull fracture and severe razor cuts on both forearms, police said. Amy was released from hospital Nov. 5.

Mrs. Erickson had been undergoing treatment at the psychiatric ward of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. She had been freed on $20,000 bond.

Judge LaPlante typifies the 'all-American jurist'

by PAT GERLACH

"Good morning! We are the hardy ones — we made it. Let's get started, we have a lot of work to do today."

Those were the opening remarks of Associate Circuit Judge Albert H. LaPlante at Schaumburg traffic court one day last week.

He was addressing a crowded room of people who had battled blizzard conditions to keep their court dates.

Later, the judge confided he had gotten through the heavy snow and icy roads "by the grace of God alone."

DURING THE two-hour session, Judge LaPlante, who appears the typical example of the white-haired bespectacled traditional American jurist, exhibited a variety of emotions and attitudes.

A young father charged with driving with a suspended license was shown compassion by the judge. The man had been in custody for two days in another community.

The man, who became 22 years old on his court date, had to remain in jail because his wife had just given birth to their second child and couldn't come to post bond.

Judge LaPlante ordered the man released on his own recognizance bond and continued the case to a March date.

But, under normal circumstances, Judge LaPlante does not believe in "cluttering up the court calendar" with continuances.

"If it is warranted, I will grant one continuance. But if the parties are here, I feel most cases should immediately go to trial and get it over with," he explained.

"But, that is not to say I don't believe everyone is entitled to his day in court."

JUDGE LAPLANTE showed irritation with several persons involved in accidents who couldn't remember the names of other drivers not present in court.

"I suggest strongly that if you get into an accident, find out who it's with . . . at least as a matter of pure curiosity," he advised one man.

Judge LaPlante makes it clear that if an accused feels there is a logical defense he will listen.

But he shows impatience with people charged with running red lights who offer the excuse "I was in a hurry to get home."

Again, there was the case of a 17-year-old who made a U-turn following a snow plow. The youth, who came to court in his high school letter jacket and accompanied by his dad, told his story.

HE EXPLAINED that he delivers newspapers for his father who operates a news agency. He followed the plow in order to toss papers onto driveways but when the plow turned back he said he could go no further.

The young man came up with a continuance, of sorts. He is to report back to Judge LaPlante next month and the case will be dismissed, provided there are no further U-turn incidents.

"I don't think a court room should go without certain light touches. A little humor in good taste never hurt anyone," the judge believes.

Our Twinbrook YMCA Says: "Thank You for '73!"

The Twinbrook Y does an awful lot! Over 3,000 participants in one of the largest Y-Club and Y-Camp programs in the state. But it takes money to make it work. In fact, one-half of the Y's budget comes from contributions.

And the people listed below are the ones who made the contributions. They kept Twinbrook YMCA in the "youth business" in 1973!

Without community financial support, there would be no YMCA. The Twinbrook Board, Staff and Members extend their sincere gratitude to these people.

Village board wrapup

TV monitor plans for sewers delayed

Installation of a television monitoring system to spot breakdowns in Hoffman Estates' water supply system and help speed repairs was delayed again for almost a month when bids reviewed this week exceeded estimates.

Engineers had estimated the cost of the system at about $155,000. The lowest of three bids was $167,145, and the highest was $187,924. The village board Monday night rejected all bids and directed engineers to review specifications, eliminating or revising some components, to reduce cost of the project. They are to advertise for new bids Feb. 20, and open them March 7.

The project already is about a year behind schedule, said Village Mgr. George Longmeyer. Delays stem from setbacks in general water system improvements, negotiations with developers who have contributed improvements to the system, the effects of inflation trends on planning and allocating money for the project and shortages of materials by suppliers who were solicited for information preparatory to writing specifications, he said.

Fire consultant approved

Trustees approved a contract this week with National Loss Control Service Corp. for consulting services during the transition from a fire protection district to a municipal fire department.

The village is preparing to start formal proceedings to assume responsibilities and powers for fire service. The contract with National Loss provides a $37 per hour fee, if the corporation's services are needed. There will be no fee if the services are not used.

Bicentennial funds sought

Bicentennial preparations are under way in Hoffman Estates, with a local committee initiating requests for funding.

The village board Monday night was asked to contribute $7,500 for the 1974 Fourth of July celebration, with portions of that lump sum being diverted to 1975 and 1976 observances. Last year the village contributed $5,500 for the annual Fourth of July activities. Committee members now anticipate using about $5,500 of this year's request for this year's celebration. They will return next year and in 1976 with requests for more funding, they said.

William Palmer, chairman of the Fourth of July committee, and Charles Ritz, chairman of the Bicentennial committee, said they also would like help from public works crews in setting up equipment at this year's celebration.

The board took no action on the requests.

All interested students from Conant and Hoffman Estates high schools are invited to attend the meeting at 4:30 p.m. in the upstairs offices of the park district office, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

Forest View High boundaries may change next year

Attendance boundaries for Forest View High School in Arlington Heights may be changed next year to offset increases in enrollment.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board of education Monday that Forest View will have 2,915 students next year, the largest enrollment of any of the district's eight high schools. Most of the students attending Forest View come from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines. Enrollment is expected to increase until the 1977-78 school year when it will reach 3,320. The school's "capacity" is 2,500.

Gilbert said he will give the board a number of alternatives for reducing the enrollment at Forest View when the board meets Feb. 25 and a change in boundaries will probably be one of them. Gilbert said he would also consider busing some students at Forest View to another school, open enrollment to allow students to select another school, or building of an addition to the high school.

IF BOUNDARIES are changed, Gilbert said Prospect High School and Elk Grove High School may be the ones affected. Prospect will have 2,395 students next year with the present boundaries and Elk Grove will have 2,400. Gilbert stressed the enrollment situation at Forest View will have to be carefully studied before a decision can be made. "I don't want to speculate," he said.

Gilbert ruled out the possibility of building another high school. The district's newest school, Buffalo Grove, opened last fall. "We just don't see another high school in the picture for at least five years," said Gilbert. Most of the district's growth in the future will be in the northern part of the district, not in the Forest View or Elk Grove areas, he said. Dist. 214 now owns property in Prospect Heights which it has set aside for its ninth high school.

Enrollment projections for the district's other schools next year show 2,405 students at Arlington High School; 1,960 at Wheeling; 2,790 at Hersey; 2,635 at Rolling Meadows, and 2,010 at Buffalo Grove.

Deadline for vehicle stickers is Friday

Mount Prospect residents are reminded that the deadline is midnight Friday for display of 1974 Illinois license plates and village vehicle stickers.

The village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., will sell vehicle stickers from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. today through Friday and also from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday for latecomers.

The stickers are $10 each for cars ($5 for senior citizens), $8 for motorcycles and $12 to $22 for trucks, depending on size.

License plates are available at local currency exchanges and banks at $18 for cars with less than 35 horsepower, and $30 for cars with more than 35 horsepower. The fee for motorcycles is $12.

2 communities may announce border plan

Des Plaines and Mount Prospect officials are expected to announce today agreement on a boundary line between the two neighboring suburbs.

A tentative agreement hammered out in two meetings of representatives of the two towns was approved last week by the Mount Prospect Village Board, and was expected to be approved last night by the Des Plaines City Council.

Details of the boundary agreement have not been released, but it is believed that Des Plaines will annex property to the east of Elmhurst Road near Algonquin Road, and Mount Prospect will take over property to the west of Elmhurst Road.

The former Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm property at the southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street reportedly was not discussed in the tentative settlement. The property was the object of a 4½-year court struggle between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, and is currently considered part of Mount Prospect.

Ongoing disputes involving property around Elmhurst and Algonquin roads has kept the two towns in and out of court. In each instance, Des Plaines annexed a parcel that was later claimed by Mount Prospect, which considered the Des Plaines annexation improper because of legal technicalities.

Des Plaines last month sued Mount Prospect over the dual annexations, but officials in both towns agreed to try to work out an out-of-court settlement to avoid a lengthy and expensive court fight.

The tentative agreement is expected to be officially approved by Mount Prospect and Des Plaines next Tuesday night.

'Suspicious man' near Busse School

Another incident involving a suspicious man in the vicinity of Busse School in Mount Prospect has been reported to police.

According to a police report released yesterday, a man driving a dark blue car called "come here" to a 10-year-old boy walking north of the school at around 11:55 a.m. last Thursday. The boy ran, and the car left. The man was described as 30 to 40 years of age with black hair.

The incident was the fourth reported this year involving similar circumstances around Busse School.

School tax referendum off at least until fall

by BOB GALLAS

It appears the proposed tax rate hike referendum for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has been pushed back, at least until next fall.

The Dist. 59 board, which originally eyed an April referendum date, has decided "more information is needed before a decision can be made on a referendum."

Erwin Poklacki, chairman of the board's policy committee, conceded yesterday that the April referendum is "probably out of the question" due to the fact that there is not enough time for the board to compile the information it wants before the April referendum date.

The policy committee met Monday night to discuss the referendum, which tentatively calls for a 15 cent per $100 assessed valuation increase in property taxes.

ACCORDING TO Poklacki, the information wanted by board members included an estimate on repair costs for the district's buildings which will be needed over the next several years. Areas to be considered include roofs, heating and ventilating systems.

A roof consultant hired by the district has already determined that school roofs will need almost $350,000 in repairs over the next six years.

Dist. 59 Supt. James Erviti questioned the board on the possibility of hiring another professional consultant who could more accurately determine building needs and report back to the board with an estimated cost figure.

Erviti is expected to request the authority to hire such a consultant at one of the next board meetings.

The board also wants to wait and see the results of the latest quadrennial assessment to see whether they will receive more tax money without a tax rate hike. Townships in Cook County reassess property value for tax purposes every four years.

A POLL OF BOARD members at the committee meeting Monday showed they are in favor of trying for a referendum by a 5-2 margin. Board president Allen Sparks and members Emil Bahrnsaler, Charles Knaup, Erwin Poklacki and Al Domanico supported a referendum at some future date.

Board members Judy Zanca and Gerald Smiley voted against having the referendum, but indicated they might favor a one-shot referendum which would be used to fix roofs and heating and ventilating systems.

The board also decided that no more surveys would be taken to gauge public opinion towards a tax rate hike at least until further information and figures have been gathered. Two previous surveys showed that a referendum, if staged this April, would most likely be defeated.

Support refused for former chairman

Caucus backs incumbent, newcomer

by LUISA GINETTI

An incumbent and a nonincumbent have been endorsed by the Dist. 26 caucus for the April 13 school board election.

Incumbent Sylvia Lurie, who has served on the board one year, and Frank G. Smith, who has lived in the district two years, received the backing of the caucus Monday to fill two three-year terms that will be up for election.

Marsha Lupton, a former caucus chairman who has served on the board since last summer, failed to get the group's backing but said yesterday she will still seek reelection.

A fourth candidate who appeared before the caucus, Mary Watters, has withdrawn from the race. Mrs. Watters substitutes in the district and dropped out of the race because of a possible conflict of interest.

The caucus conducted interviews with each of the candidates during the past few weeks. Its decision on endorsements came Monday night following interview sessions with Mrs. Lurie and Mrs. Lupton.

MARY STEMBRIDGE, caucus chairman, did not reveal the actual voting of the membership because it was conducted behind closed doors.

Candidates were asked questions ranging from how they would select an alternative to the Gregory St. site for the new Maryville School to what they felt would be the advantages of having a citizens committee.

Other questions included:

- What is your opinion on the no-grade system?
- What is your opinion on the proposed Rob Roy development project and should the school board take a public stand on it?
- What should the maximum classroom size be for the grades and for kindergarten?
- Is there a drug problem in the district and if so what should be done about it?
- What should school standards of discipline be?

• What is your opinion on open classrooms, the media center and expansion of physical education, band and art programs?

MRS. STEMBRIDGE said these questions were used as a guideline for interviews but did not always represent exact questions asked of each candidate.

Mrs. Stemberidge said the caucus publicity committee will probably meet soon to organize plans for campaigning but no meeting date has been arranged yet.

The filing date for submitting petitions of candidacy opens Feb. 27 and runs through March 22. Petitions must be filed with the district superintendent at the district office, 1900 S. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Citizens' group weighs day-care center

A Citizens Advisory Committee composed of interested citizens and experts in child care from the Northwest Suburban area are planning the necessary steps to start an Elk Grove Township day-care center.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall met with 12 persons Monday and gave them the task of nominating a nine-member governing board. Hall also will hold an office on the board with full voting power.

The day-care center, aimed for the children of the poor and needy, will be financially supported by township federal revenue sharing funds.

HALL NAMED Frances Wright, director of the Toy Box Day Care Centers of Lake Zurich and Mount Prospect, as chairman of the position committee. She will report on what types of service day-care centers must provide and, with the aid of her committee members, write a position paper defining the type of care the center will provide.

Bruce Newton, Northwest Opportunity Center, heads a committee investigating suitable facilities in the township.

The Rev. David Crail, pastor of the Wesleyan Church of Elk Grove Village, will chair a committee to explore the possibility of contracting with existing centers for service.

Hall will report on the legalities involved in forming a center and the use of federal revenue-sharing funds to finance the operation.

THE MEMBERS will meet again at 8 p.m., March 11, in the township offices, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The day-care center could start this year, says Hall. The most pressing first steps are appointment of the governing board, establishment of the type of service it will provide and hiring of a director, he added.

Any professional interested in the directorship may contact Hall at the township offices.

School nominating panel to recommend 5 to caucus

The nominating committee of the Dist. 57 caucus will submit to the caucus membership five names of prospective school board candidates for endorsement consideration.

Newt Hallman, nominating committee chairman, said the five are incumbents Robert Novy, 206 E. Council Trail Rd., and Edith Freund, 700 S. Main, and newcomers Kathleen Klein, 204 N. Emerson; Arthur Vogelgesang, 111 N. Kenilworth, and Harry Stewart, 133 S. Waverly Pl., all of Mount Prospect.

Letters have been sent to each of these persons inviting them to appear before the caucus at a meeting Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School.

The meeting will be open to the public and candidates will be asked to present a five-minute statement and answer questions from the caucus membership.

The membership will then vote to endorse candidates for the April 13 election. Two three-year terms will be filled in the race. The caucus may back more than two candidates, Hallman said.

The five candidates invited to appear before the caucus were screened by the nominating committee during the past few weeks. Hallman said although they have been invited to come in front of the

The 43 books are on the reading list for the educational psychology course being offered Tuesday nights at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington Rd. Books for a second course, physical education, are to be sent to the library soon.

The courses began Jan. 20 and will last until May 7. They are for both graduate and undergraduate level students.

caucus, all the candidates may not necessarily appear.

Mrs. Freund, for example, has said she has not decided if she will seek reelection. Hallman said the nominating committee decided to forward her name to the caucus as a courtesy since she is an incumbent member.

Novy, current board president, is likely to accept the caucus invitation since he has said he will seek another board term.

Accident victim leaves hospital

A Chicago man was released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights yesterday, where he was treated for head injuries after an auto accident last Saturday afternoon in Mount Prospect.

Stevan Segvic, 52, of 1546 N. Monroe, Chicago, was northbound on Fairview Avenue when his car was hit at Thayer Street by a vehicle driven by Frederick H. Eckhardt, 21, of 10394 Michael Todd Terr., Glenview.

Eckhardt was ticketed for failure to yield the right-of-way, driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor and narcotic drugs, and possession of 22.5 grams of a substance police believe to be marijuana. He is to appear in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court March 27.

District pulls out of computer co-op

High School Dist. 214 has pulled out of the Northwest Education Cooperation computer cooperative after sharing the cost of computer services with seven elementary districts for two years.

The Dist. 214 board of education Monday voted down a recommendation from the district administration to continue to use NEC computer services by a 5-to-2 margin. The board then authorized school officials to begin negotiations with Westinghouse Learning Corp. for computer service and to ask Westinghouse if it might also provide computer service to elementary schools through Dist. 214.

During the past year, Dist. 214 and several other districts have been critical of the service provided by the computer cooperative. Last month, Dist. 214 board members examined bids for other computer companies to determine whether they could get better service on their own for the same or lower cost.

Dist. 214 now will pay about $171,000 per year for computer services through Westinghouse, compared to $219,000 from NEC, according to Robert Weber, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for business services.

Dist. 214 administrators argued that if the district pulls out of the cooperative, the remaining elementary districts will have to pay a total of $90,000 more for the computer service.

"We believe that either the co-op or Westinghouse can supply our needs," said Supt. Edward Gilbert. "But we have to recognize that what we do has an impact on the elementary districts."

Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, said yesterday she is "naturally sorry the decision was made to leave NEC. It is a serious thing when a district with the size and potential of Dist. 214 withdraws." However, she said Dist. 214's action does not necessarily mean the computer cooperative will dissolve.

She said NEC will now reassess the computer plan and "see what we can take out of the plan that was geared specifically to Dist. 214's needs." Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 had earlier withdrawn from the cooperative because it felt the costs were too high.

Sick pay for pregnant teacher?

A teacher at Elk Grove High School may be Dist. 214's first teacher to receive sick pay while she has a baby.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told board members Monday the U. S. Supreme Court ruled a few weeks ago that pregnancy must be considered illness and a woman is entitled to sick pay as long as her doctor says she is unable to work. Nora Bremer, teacher of foreign language at Elk Grove High School, has notified Gilbert that she will ask for sick leave this semester when she has her child.

Teachers at Dist. 214 now receive maternity leave without pay and the teacher and her doctor decide when she will begin the leave of absence. Gilbert asked the board to think about the case to determine whether they should write a new policy regarding maternity leave.

Teachers can now accumulate up to 120 days of sick leave and can receive another 240 days from the sick leave bank run by the district education association. With the maximum sick leave, a teacher could conceivably leave the job for two years and receive sick pay, said Gilbert.

School to open earlier this fall

High School Dist. 214 will open before Labor day next year, three days earlier than this year, according to the 1974-75 school calendar approved by the board of education Monday night.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended moving up the starting date to allow a full two weeks winter vacation and to end the school year earlier in June to make it easier to schedule summer school.

Teacher workshops will begin on Aug. 26, teacher's institute will be Aug. 28 and classes will begin Aug. 29. Winter vacation begins Dec. 20 and classes will resume Jan. 6. The second semester will begin Jan. 27, spring vacation will begin March 27 and classes will resume April 7. The last day of classes next year will be June 13.

Contractor to give $3,000 for floor

High School Dist. 214 will receive $3,000 to refinish the gymnasium floor at Rolling Meadows High School from Wil-Freds, the school's general contractor.

Dist. 214 board members have complained that cracks between the boards in the floor are too wide and the wooden floor is slightly warped. Monday night the board agreed to a $3,000 settlement from the contractor if he will also repair the asphalt parking lot at the school which has deteriorated since the school opened three years ago.

Des Plaines residents try again for park swim pool

Another appeal was made this week for a swimming pool in the Des Plaines section of the Mount Prospect Park District. Park District commissioner agreed to consider the request when making recreational plans, but are not likely to give the go ahead for a pool.

Thomas Cooper, director of parks and recreation, said yesterday that because the park district's three present pools lost $58,000 last year, another pool probably will not be constructed.

Richard F. Ward, a Des Plaines city alderman and former Mount Prospect Park District commissioner, and four neighbors appeared before the park district board Monday night to ask that a pool be built at Friendship Park, at Algonquin Road and Janice Avenue.

Ward said a pool is needed to serve the 10,000 to 14,000 Des Plaines residents of the Mount Prospect Park District. Cooper said, however, "I don't know where the heck we would get the money to afford it."

Two months ago, Ward had encouraged residents of Des Plaines to push the park district for another swimming pool, but the park district reacted coolly to the suggestion.

Two Scout troops set paper drives

Boy Scout Troop 153 and Ship Explorer Post 600 of Mount Prospect will hold their monthly paper drives on Saturday.

Papers will be picked up at the curb in the area bounded by Kensington Road on the north, Rand Road and Mount Prospect Road on the east, Golf Road on the south and the village limits on the west.

Residents living outside the area can arrange for pickup, by calling 255-8043 or 255-8085 if they live north of Northwest Highway; or 437-7281 or 259-3548 if they live south of Northwest Highway. In addition, those numbers can be called if papers on the curb are not picked up by 3 p.m. Papers should be in brown bags or tied.

Containers will be available for residents to deposit papers. The Troop 153 container will be at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory St., and the Ship 600 container will be at the south end of Prospect High School, off Dale Avenue.

Heat detectors may be required in all homes here

The Village of Arlington Heights may require heat and smoke detectors in single-family homes as well as apartment and condominium buildings.

Trustee James Ryan, chairman of the Arlington Heights Village Board legal committee, said a "working draft ordinance" will be readied by his committee in early March.

The proposed ordinance, according to Ryan, would require the detectors in both new and existing houses. He said the ordinance, as it would apply to existing houses, could be written on one of two ways: the first would require installation of the units within a set time limit; the second would require the units be installed only when the present owner sells the house.

HE SAID THE detectors would provide effective life saving measures at minimal cost. He estimated the price at $45 and $50 per unit. He said most houses would need one or two units to comply with the proposed ordinance.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden, who testified at the hearings, said, "The fact that we've had 11 lives lost in the last 28 months demonstrates the need for them."

Units for homes would be "ionization detectors." He said the units, which activate an alarm, are triggered by carbon and other by products in smoke. He said the alarm would be sounded before there are flames present.

"We're talking about saving lives at night. In a typical two-story house a unit would be installed at the top of the stair well. It would sense the rising smoke and set off the alarm," he said.

WHEN ASKED if such detectors would have saved the 11 lives lost in the past 1 1/2 years, Chief Hayden said, "Yes, they would. These people would be alive today if they had had them."

He said home owners might get a reduction in their insurance rates if the units were installed.

"I've talked to a number of insurance men and they've said people could get a 10 to 15 per cent savings if they had the complete system," he said.

"The systems we're talking about are not expensive — only about $100 or less. They are certainly worth it for the protection they give," he said.

BUFFALO GROVE has an ordinance adopted in 1972 which requires smoke detectors in all new single family homes. The village tries to persuade persons to install the detectors in older houses but does not require the devices in houses built before the ordinance was passed.

Ryan said apartment building owners and representatives of the smoke detectors, in addition to the fire department, testified on installation of the units in multi-family dwellings.

He said, "They all agree they may be necessary but they are expensive." Ryan said detectors would cost between $200 and $400 per apartment unit. He said they probably would be installed in hallways.

Library expansion study ahead

Arlington Heights Memorial Library officials are planning to prepare a study of the library and its projected growth in light of a proposed building expansion project.

Members of the library board approved last night the final study of a library addition by Nicol, Nicol, Chaney and Vanek of Chicago, the architectural firm which originally designed the library building in 1968. Board members did not vote to proceed with the project but recommended that library personnel study the current problems and its possible solutions.

The library spent $3,500 last fall on a feasibility study which gave recommendations, renderings and cost estimates of expanding the building, now crowded with books, materials and patrons, according to Frank Dempsey, executive librarian.

The firm estimated that costs of the new addition will be approximately $1.1 million dollars, including $150,000 for furnishings such as carpeting and shelving. The architectural style of the addition will be consistent with the lines of the existing building.

PLANS CALL FOR extending the existing floor level over the parking section on the west side of the library with entrance and exit drives on Vail Street.

The addition will provide 189 more seats by rearranging the present seating arrangements. The children's department and the audio-visual departments will be enlarged and seating in the Dunton Room will increase from 90 to 140 persons.

Parking facilities will be altered by the elimination of 12 parking spaces. A loading dock and a garage will be constructed.

ALTHOUGH THE BOARD did not vote on proceeding with the project, members did agree that they should work as fast as possible because of the increasing costs of construction labor and materials.

In other board discussion, members debated what privileges children should have in taking out library materials.

The discussion is part of a major ongoing effort of the board to determine the policies of the library.

Board officials debated whether children should be allowed to take out adult books and expensive materials such as records and tapes.

"In my opinion, I think it's up to the parents to determine what materials the kids read and not public institutions," said Richard Frisbee, board president.

"THE LATE, GREAT Christopher Bean, a comedy students at Buffalo Grove High School. Included in the cast are Margaret DeGroot and Jeff Anderson, here rehearsing a scene. The play will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Little Theater.

Also want collective bargaining, contract

Firemen seek 10 per cent pay hike

The Arlington Heights Firefighters Assn. is asking the village for a contract guaranteeing a 10 per cent across-the-board salary increase and fringe benefits totaling more than $116,000.

LeRoy Gudgeon, attorney representing the association, said at budget hearings last night collective bargaining was necessary for a fair settlement. He said attempts to get written statements from Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson have been unsuccessful.

The firemen, and all other village employees, would receive a 5 per cent salary increase, according to a preliminary budget prepared by Hanson.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the legal committee, said the committee would not engage in any bargaining with the association during the session. While refusing to set a date for a future meeting, he did not rule out such a meeting.

"YOU SHOULDN'T expect a response from us tonight, as far as I'm concerned... You'd better say it (make requests) tonight; although I'm not saying they won't have further meetings," Palmatier said.

He later said he was not responding to any specific requests because "I have no authority as an individual to speak for the village." He said the hearings were an attempt to get "the over-all picture" prior to making recommendations to the full village board.

Dennis Horcher, association president, said after the hearings, "The hiring of an outside attorney was the last step before going to a union. We need a contract in writing. We have asked for information and they (the village) haven't given it to us. What more can we do?"

HORCHER DECLINED to speculate what the next action by the association would be. "We asked a date for another meeting with them and they can't tell us that. I don't know what we'll do," he said.

The association requested a 10 per cent pay increase for all firemen, plus an added 5 per cent for 28 men who are certified paramedics and engineers. They also asked for complete dental care under insurance coverage and an increase in the per-day payment for hospitalization from the present $50 per day to $80 per day.

The association asked that required class sessions attended by firemen during their free time be considered overtime and firemen attending them be paid at a $7.50 per hour rate. Engineers and paramedics must spend six hours per month in refresher courses to remain certified, according to Horcher.

The association also asked for a shortened work week from 33.4 hours to 30.2 hours. They said this could be done without undermining the stations if firemen were given every 10th working day off.

Local firm loses radioactive material

A small amount of radioactive material, described as relatively harmless, was reported missing yesterday from the Amersham Searle Corp., 2636 Clearbrook, Arlington Heights.

William Wickes, spokesman for G. D. Searle and Co., said the loss was discovered "several weeks ago during a routine inventory." The loss was not made public until Tuesday, he said, until an "intensive" search was made by the company at the Arlington Heights facility.

The material, Americium-241, was contained in a small glass bead on top of a flat head screw about one inch in length. Americium-241, which emits weak gamma rays, is "relatively harmless," Wickes said, unless carried next to the skin for a long period of time.

Robert Clark, Searle radiation safety officer, said the material was either lost or accidentally buried with other radioactive materials at a government-approved disposal site.

Wickes said the lost material presented no hazard to the public. He said the loss was the first such incident at the Arlington Heights facility.

THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police were not informed of the loss until yesterday when contacted by The Herald.

Wickes said no report would have been made until a thorough search by company personnel was completed.

Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning, who is village civil defense coordinator, said the police were told by Amersham Searle spokesman the loss occurred in December but was not discovered until the inventory several weeks ago.

Kenning said there were, to his knowledge, no special village ordinances or regulations for the control of radioactive materials.

"Without looking, I'd say we followed the Atomic Energy Commission guidelines on this," he said.

Amersham Searle Corp. is a subsidiary of G. D. Seale and Co. and Amersham Radio-Chemical, of Amersham, England.

The Americium-241 is used for research and medical treatment, according to Wickes.

Forest View attendance boundaries may change

Attendance boundaries for Forest View High School in Arlington Heights may be changed next year to offset increases in enrollment.

High School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told the board of education Monday that Forest View will have 2,915 students next year, the largest enrollment of any of the district's eight high schools. Most of the students attending Forest View come from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines. Enrollment is expected to increase until the 1977-78 school year when it will reach 3,320. The school's "capacity" is 2,500.

Gilbert said he will give the board a number of alternatives for reducing the enrollment at Forest View when the board meets Feb. 25 and a chance in boundaries will probably be one of them.

Gilbert said he would also consider bus-ing some students at Forest View to another school, open enrollment to allow students to select another school, or building of an addition to the high school.

IF BOUNDARIES are changed, Gilbert said Prospect High School and Elk Grove High School may be the ones affected. Prospect will have 2,395 students next year with the present boundaries and Elk Grove will have 2,480. Gilbert stressed the enrollment situation at Forest View will have to be carefully studied before a decision can be made. "I don't want to speculate," he said.

Gilbert ruled out the possibility of building another high school. The district's newest school, Buffalo Grove, opened last fall. "We just don't see another high school in the picture for at least five years," said Gilbert. Most of the district's growth in the future will be in the northern part of the district, not in the Forest View or Elk Grove areas, he said. Dist. 214 now owns property in Prospect Heights which it has set aside for its ninth high school.

Enrollment projections for the district's other schools next year show 2,405 students at Arlington High School; 1,960 at Wheeling; 2,790 at Hersey; 2,635 at Rolling Meadows, and 2,010 at Buffalo Grove.

The Dist. 214 board of education Monday voted down a recommendation from the district administration to continue to use NEC computer services by a 5-to-2 margin. The board then authorized school officials to begin negotiations with Westinghouse Learning Corp. for computer service and to ask Westinghouse if it might also provide computer service to elementary schools through Dist. 214.

During the past year, Dist. 214 and several other districts have been critical of the service provided by the computer cooperative. Last month, Dist. 214 board members examined bids for other computer companies to determine whether they could get better service on their own for the same or lower cost.

Dist. 214 now will pay about $171,000 per year for computer services through Westinghouse, compared to $219,000 from NEC, according to Robert Weber, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for business services.

Dist. 214 administrators argued that if the district pulls out of the cooperative, the remaining elementary districts will have to pay a total of $90,000 more for the computer service.

"We believe that either the co-op or Westinghouse can supply our needs," said Supt. Edward Gilbert. "But we have to recognize that what we do has an impact on the elementary districts."

Gloria Kinney, director of NEC, said yesterday she is "naturally sorry the decision was made to leave NEC. It is a serious thing when a district with the size and potential of Dist. 214 withdraws." However, she said Dist. 214's action does not necessarily mean the computer cooperative will dissolve.

She said NEC will now reassess the computer plan and "see what we can take out of the plan that was geared specifically to Dist. 214's needs." Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 had earlier withdrawn from the cooperative because it felt the costs were too high.

Sick pay for pregnant teacher?

A teacher at Elk Grove High School may be Dist. 214's first teacher to receive sick pay while she has a baby.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert told board members Monday the U. S. Supreme Court ruled a few weeks ago that pregnancy must be considered illness and a woman is entitled to sick pay as long as her doctor says she is unable to work. Nora Bremer, teacher of foreign language at Elk Grove High School, has notified Gilbert that she will ask for sick leave this semester when she has her child.

Teachers at Dist. 214 now receive maternity leave without pay and the teacher and her doctor decide when she will begin the leave of absence. Gilbert asked the board to think about the case to determine whether they should write a new policy regarding maternity leave.

Teachers can now accumulate up to 120 days of sick leave and can receive another 240 days from the sick leave bank run by the district education association. With the maximum sick leave, a teacher could conceivably leave the job for two years and receive sick pay, said Gilbert.

School to open earlier this fall

High School Dist. 214 will open before Labor day next year, three days earlier than this year, according to the 1974-75 school calendar approved by the board of education Monday night.

Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended moving up the starting date to allow a full two weeks winter vacation and to end the school year earlier in June to make it easier to schedule summer school.

Teacher workshops will begin on Aug. 26, teacher's institute will be Aug. 28 and classes will begin Aug. 29. Winter vacation begins Dec. 20 and classes will resume Jan. 6. The second semester will begin Jan. 27, spring vacation will begin March 27 and classes will resume April 7. The last day of classes next year will be June 13.

Contractor to give $3,000 for floor

High School Dist. 214 will receive $3,000 to refinish the gymnasium floor at Rolling Meadows High School from Wil-Freds, the school's general contractor.

Dist. 214 board members have complained that cracks between the boards in the floor are too wide and the wooden floor is slightly warped. Monday night the board agreed to a $3,000 settlement from the contractor if he will also repair the asphalt parking lot at the school which has deteriorated since the school opened three years ago.

Bumper stickers to protest Nike site use by Reserves

Golf course plans for Nike site unveiled

Architectural plans for a golf course on the Arlington Heights Nike site were unveiled last night and park officials reiterated their pledge to try to gain control of all 137 acres of the military property.

Golf course architect David Gill of St. Charles presented three plans to the park board of commissions and estimated the cost of an 18-hole course at between $600,000 and $750,000. With a clubhouse and parking area the cost would be over $1 million, he said.

The small L-shaped piece of land at the military base on Central Road south of Northwest Community Hospital that already is in the hands of the park district will accommodate only six holes and likely could not be made into the standard nine-hole course, Gill said.

The architect presented three alternative layouts for the entire site — two 18-hole courses and a 27-hole course. The park board indicated they preferred the 18-hole arrangement and authorized Gill to draw up plans for the golf course which will be sent to representatives and senators to solicit their aid in turning the land over to the park district.

THE GOLF COURSE plans show a layout of more than 6,000 yards. Soil would be hauled into the site to separate fairways and elevate the now almost flat property.

Retention ponds to hold flood water were consolidated in the plans along with a driving range. Gill said the golf course could be used for skiing, sledding and skating during the winter months.

The park board feels a golf course or another revenue-generating facility is necessary to the future of the park district. Without such a facility, the board has said revenues will not be great enough to expand park programs.

Representatives of the Green Acres condominium apartments who live just east of the Nike site attended last night's park board meeting and said residents there were in favor of transforming the military reservation into a golf course.

Nominating group elects

The Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 nominating committee recently elected new officers for the 1974-75 school year.

Thomas Hanlon of 1505 E. Hawthorne, was elected chairman; Hugh Weed of 623 S. Pine, vice chairman and Carol Sanders of 1810 N. Highland, secretary-treasurer.

The nominating committee, consisting of delegates representing various organizations throughout the village, convenes each year to find and endorse candidates to run in school board elections.

Mobile exam station set

A mobile driver examination station unit will be stationed in the Market Place Shopping Center, Golf Road and Elmhurst Road, in Arlington Heights Feb. 18-21 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The unit is equipped to give full examination service, including road tests, depending on weather conditions. In addition, both written and vision tests will be given and renewal licenses issued.

Art workshop March 5-7

Fifty teachers from Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 will attend an art workshop on March 5, 6 and 7 at Olive School, 303 E. Olive, Arlington Heights.

The workshop is a free educational service provided by Binney & Smith Inc., manufacturers of school art supplies. It will be conducted by Florene Ann Wolfe.

The teachers will spend approximately 15 hours of their own time learning to use art materials and tools. Arrangements for the workshop were made by Donald Strong, superintendent, Suzanne Jacobs, teacher center director, and James Montgomery, director of instruction.

Scout paper drive this weekend

Arlington Heights Scout Troop 186 is planning a newspaper collection drive this weekend. Persons interested in having newspapers picked up should call 283-5474.

The Committee for Utilization of the Nike Base will be issuing bumper stickers to protest use of the site as an Army Reserve center.

Ed McDonald, a member of the committee, said the stickers will read, "Park Games In, Army Games Out." McDonald said the stickers will be ready for distribution by the end of the week.

The committee is, according to McDonald, an ad hoc group favoring declaring the Arlington Heights Nike base as surplus land and making it available to local residents for recreational use. The committee is formed of two members from the park district, two from the village board and representatives from two homeowners associations.

THE STATUS OF the Nike land has been uncertain since funding for the base was eliminated in the new federal budget. The park district is attempting to have the land declared surplus and a spokesman for the Army at Ft. Sheridan said the land is being sought for use as a Army Reserve training center.

McDonald said he was told by an Army spokesman from Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., that Arlington Heights is one of three sites near Chicago being considered for a local Army Reserve training center. He said the Army considers some of its six present reservist centers in the Chicago area as inadequate and is considering transferring of some units to centers to be established in Homewood and St. Sheridan, as well as Arlington Heights.

According to McDonald's information, the bases would need approximately 10 acres for classroom buildings and parking. He said the centers would serve about 1,000 men.

McDonald said the Army, while actively considering the plans, has not formalized them nor have they made use applications for the land, including the Arlington Heights base.

McDONALD SAID he was told it would take the Army two or three years to establish the local centers after plans were drawn and approved.

When contacted, a spokesman at Ft. Sam Houston would only say the Army does not now have plans for establishment of such a center at Arlington Heights. He did say a center for 1,000 men was being readied at Ft. Sheridan.

Last week, a civilian with the public information office of Ft. Sheridan said applications for deed to the Nike base land had been made in November and December of 1973. Part of the land in question had been designated for use by the Navy for housing but withdrew its plans in the face of strong local opposition.

The Arlington Heights Park District has applied for the Navy land as well as the rest of the Army acreage. The district plans to build a $1 million golf course on the site.

The district and local homeowners have received support from area legislators in their struggle to obtain the land from the Army. U. S. Senators Charles Percy, R-Ill., and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, have publicly backed efforts to keep the Nike land available for recreational use.

Program halted at Northwest Opportunity Center

Food stamps not available in area

Food stamps no longer are available through the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and officials there say many needy families are in danger or not being able to meet food needs.

Families seeking food stamps must now go to the downtown Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first-come, first-served basis. Most poor families in the suburbs cannot afford to take a day off from work to make the trip, said Mrs. Rena Trevor, a member of the center's board of directors.

Officials at the center and the Cook County branch of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) are attempting to convince state officials to reinstate the food-stamp program at the center. The program provides qualifying families with the stamps to supplement food purchases.

The food-stamp program is funded through the Federal Department of Agriculture but is administered in Illinois through the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

MRS. TREVOR, yesterday said efforts through normal channels have failed to reopen the program at the center, which serves a seven-township area. Needy families are consequently in danger of not being able to meet their food needs, she said.

"Not only is there a backup, but there are other people waiting in the wings who are eligible for the program," she said. The center now has about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps, but the number will continue to increase, according to Mrs. Trevor. The increase will include families which are already in the program but which must be recertified every two to six months.

Until last month, two food-stamp representatives came twice weekly to the opportunity center to interview families seeking food stamp assistance. As many as 40 families were screened weekly.

Last month, however, state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent to seven area distribution outposts, including the center, because of a manpower shortage and a backlog of food stamp cases to be processed.

AFFECTED ALONG with the Rolling Meadows center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, Argo-Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights outposts.

This week the state moved to return food stamp counselors to the Montrose Avenue, Evanston and Maywood outposts, but personnel will still not be supplied to the other outposts, according to spokesmen for the state.

Arlington Manor may get help from a 'neighbor'

Arlington Manor residents living in an unincorporated area of Elk Grove Township at Arlington Heights' southern border may get flooding help and a new sidewalk from Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights Village Engineer Al Sanders said a sidewalk on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision is in the village, but denied that flooding in the subdivision is the village's problem.

He said, however, that the village may, while it is working on its own flooding problems, aid the Arlington Manor area.

The Manor residents, plagued by flooding, have been seeking help from Elk Grove Township in the belief no other municipal body was interested or had the responsibility to aid them.

The subdivision, a semi-developed area southeast of Arlington Heights Road, lies in a flood plain and is also located at the edge of an Arlington Heights storm water outlet.

THE RESIDENTS have complained that the Arlington Heights storm water contributes to their flooding and claim a caved in walkway on the east side of Arlington Heights Road bordering the subdivision was caused by the storm water.

Arlington Heights officials earlier denied that the sidewalk was the village's responsibility. Sanders said Tuesday that portion of Arlington Heights Road is annexed to the village.

Robert Loos, a builder who constructed most of the homes in the Arlington Manor area, is contemplating developing the strip of land bordering Arlington Heights Road between Magnolia Street and Cypress and will replace the broken walkway, Sanders said. He added that the sidewalks have been in bad disrepair since the early 1940s.

SANDERS SAID the village has a sidewalk repair ordinance that requires repair of unsafe walkways on a 50-50 share of costs between the village and resident but added that Loos was not required to repair the walks because they were broken up before he annexed his property.

The engineer said if a May 18, $16 million referendum for flood control is successful in Arlington Heights, it could also aid the Arlington Manor residents.

Part of the referendum package calls for construction of a retention area on the west side of Arlington Heights Road adjacent to the flooding area in the Manor subdivision, he said. "The retention pond cannot help but alleviate flooding in the flood plain," he added.

Sanders said he has talked informally with Township Supervisor Richard Hall and "the village and township will share engineering data and attempt to work out flooding problems to our mutual benefit."

"These are very preliminary talks, with no funding commitments," Sanders said.

School tax referendum off at least until fall

by BOB GALLAS

It appears the proposed tax rate hike referendum for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 50 has been pushed back, at least until next fall.

The Dist. 50 board, which originally eyed an April referendum date, has decided "more information is needed before a decision can be made on a referendum."

Erwin Poklacki, chairman of the board's policy committee, conceded yesterday that the April referendum is "probably out of the question" due to the fact that there is not enough time for the board to compile the information it wants before the April referendum date.

The policy committee met Monday night to discuss the referendum, which tentatively calls for a 15 cent per $100 assessed valuation increase in property taxes.

ACCORDING TO Poklacki, the information wanted by board members included an estimate on repair costs for the district's buildings which will be needed over the next several years. Areas to be considered include roofs, heating and ventilating systems.

A roof consultant hired by the district has already determined that school roofs will need almost $350,000 in repairs over the next six years.

Dist. 50 Supt. James Erviti questioned the board on the possibility of hiring another professional consultant who could more accurately determine building needs and report back to the board with an estimated cost figure.

Erviti is expected to request the authority to hire such a consultant at one of the next board meetings.

The board also wants to wait and see the results of the latest quadrennial as-essment to see whether they will receive more tax money without a tax rate hike. Townships in Cook County reassess property value for tax purposes every four years.

A POLL OF BOARD members at the committee meeting Monday showed they are in favor of trying for a referendum by a 5-2 margin. Board president Allen Sparks and members Emil Bahmaier, Charles Knaup, Erwin Poklacki and Al Domanico supported a referendum at some future date.

Board members Judy Zanca and Gerald Smiley voted against having the referendum, but indicated they might favor a one-shot referendum which would be used to fix roofs and heating and ventilating systems.

The board also decided that no more surveys would be taken to gauge public opinion towards a tax rate hike at least until further information and figures have been gathered. Two previous surveys showed that a referendum, if staged this April, would most likely be defeated.
